SWITCHES.--II.

"With sorrow? No! I bid thee go,
As I have done a bird,
Whose warble pleased me for a day,
And then no more was heard.
Thou has not left a single thought
That hath the power to sting,
I cast thee from me—go thy way!
A false and fickle thing.

Go! seek the smile that lured thee from
A love too fond and true,
To be the plaything, for an hour,
Of such a wretch as you.
Begone! 'tis mockery, insult, now,
These fawning words to me!
Begone, sir!"—
—"had n't you better have
A cup of ginger tea?"

On Friday the 8th James B. Glentworth of "pipe-laying" memory, was removed from the office of Tobacco Inspector of the city of New York, and Egbert Benson, appointed in his place.

MR CRITTENDEN AND HIS TWO PROPOSITIONS.

The position which this Senator now occupies gives to his propositions a claim upon the public attention which those of no Senator, however respectable, considered merely as a Senator, could command. Mr Crittenden's proposition is that of a (reputed and believed) member of the new Cabinet. He is the confidential friend of Mr Clay, and Mr Clay's position is that of President de facto for four years to come, with an arrangement for the succession for four years thereafter. These circumstances give to Mr Crittenden's propositions the stamp of Executive recommendations; and therefore his declaration in the Senate on Wednesday last, that he was in favor of the creation of a new National Bank, and his offered amendment to the pre-emption bill on Friday, to divide the proceeds of the public lands among the States, may be considered as administration measures under the new Federal rule, and measures to be accomplished at the called session of Congress. Thus far, then, the political curtain is lifted. It is lifted high enough to let the people have a glimpse of the new monster—a National Bank of fifty or one hundred millions, to be built up for foreigners on the credit and revenue of the United States—and to let them see that the distribution policy has now got beyond "surplus revenue," and is seizing upon the current revenue, indispensably necessary to the daily payments of the Government, and which cannot be seized for distribution without occasioning an immediate resort to loans or taxes. Now what is raising money by loans or taxes, to supply the place of revenue distributed to the States, but raising money by loans or taxes to be given to the States? What is it but this? Disguise it as you may, what else is it? Mr Crittenden did not say whether loans or taxes would be the Federal substitute for the loss of the four millions of land revenue which he proposed to distribute, but it must evidently be one or the other; and as the Federalists love both, it will be for themselves to say which they prefer in the present case.

The proposition of Mr Crittenden—in the present condition of the Treasury, when it requires economy to meet the demands upon it, when his friends allege the existence of a public debt—his proposition under these circumstances, was so extraordinary, that Mr Benton denounced it upon the spot as being equally unconstitutional and mischievous—as throwing away revenue to get a pretext for loans or taxes—as creating a new National Debt for the foundation of a new National Bank; for he said there was no way to get the capital for a new National Bank but to make it out of stock issued upon a National Debt.—Globe.

TREASURY NOTES.

The bill for the issue of five millions of Treasury Notes, which is now pending in Congress, should be understood by the community, as intended only to supply a temporary deficit, in the Treasury.

The last Report of the Secretary of the Treasury, stated, that unusually heavy expenses would fall on the first quarter of the year 1841, and that, hence, the accruing revenue, though it might be sufficient to meet all the demands on the Treasury, for the whole year, might not be able to meet them in time. To provide for this contingency, the Treasury Note Bill has been brought forward in the House of Representatives. "It is highly important,' said Mr Jones, the Chairman of the Ways & Means Committee, "that a temporary supply be made, to enable the Treasury to meet the demands upon it, during the present quarter; not but that the accruing revenue will enable the Department, to meet its obligations, during the year, but that it will not enable it to do so, in proper season."

We mention this because the Federalists are seizing upon every possible pretext, to make the people believe that the Government is deeply in debt, and are not slow in using the Treasury Note Bill for this purpose.

The true state of the National Finances has been fully given, this winter, in the Report of Mr Woodbury, and the President's Message—and the Federalists have not been able to controvert it, in a single point. Their desperate attempt to do so, arises from the fact that they intend themselves to create a National Debt, for the foundation of another National Bank, and wish to throw the odium of such a debt, as far as possible, upon the present Administration.—Eastern Argus.

TAKE CARE! STAND FROM UNDER!—The editor of the Montreal Gazette, in some remarks introducing to his readers the two last letters of the correspondence which has taken place between Mr Forsyth and Mr Fox, in relation to the Caroline outrage, and the arrest of Mr M'Leod, one of the individuals concerned in that affair, is quite indignant, and blusters away in the characteristic style of "her Majesty's dutiful subjects." That our readers may enjoy a hearty laugh at his expense, we subjoin his concluding observations:

"As nothing is now too base for the office of the Republican to sanction, we should not be suprised to hear of British officers, who were engaged in the war of 1812, being seized and put on trial for damage done to the citizens of the separate States, by orders of government. * * * *
The cup of iniquity is fast filling up, and we should like to see the country left to itself. [An awful wish surely! It did not occur to the editor, that Great Britain has twice left "that country to itself."] Those persons who firmly believe in Providence overruling the affairs of the world, cannot but be impressed with the conviction, that a government which does not acknowledge a God, and acts as if there were no God, must ultimately be brought to dissolution"!!

LITERARY INTELLIGENCE.

We learn from our English papers that a new edition of Pilkington's Lives of the Painters is ready.—Edited by Allan Cunningham.

A volume of the most popular naval ballads of the late Charles Dibdin, is preparing under the patronage of the Lords of Admiralty, to be illustrated by George Cruikshank, and published by John Murray. Lord William Lenox, ex-husband of Mrs. Wood, has a novel in press. It will be entitled 'Compton Audley.'

Mrs. Gore has a novel in the press, called 'Greville, or a season at Paris.' 'Mercedes of Castile,' by Fenimore Cooper, has proved a complete failure. Capt. Hall has issued a popular work called 'Patchwork.' It consists of odds and ends.

A work is in the press to be called 'Some account of my Cousin Nicholas.'

Horace Smith's new novel will be called 'Moneyed man, or the Lessons of life.'

Mrs. Trollope has commenced her new work in the Metropolitan. It is called 'The Blue Belles of England.'

Bulwer's new novel, 'Night and Morning,' is nearly ready for publication.

Boz is busy on a work in 3 volumes to be called 'The Pic Nic paper,' edited by Boz.

'De Clifford or the constant man,' is the title of a new novel by Ward, the author of Tremaine.

The 'Life of Petrarch,' by Thos. Campbell is nearly read.—New Era.

COWARDLY ATTEMPT TO MURDER.

We copy the following account of a most cowardly attempt to murder Major HARRIS, the editor of the Nashville Union, from that paper of the 14th ult. A more noble, generous and brave man than Major Harris does not exist, and the bold and able manner in which he has conducted the "Union" since he assumed the editorship, has drawn down upon him the most bitter personal animosity of the federalists in that place, and in more than one instance he has been violently assulted.

Are the federalists of Nashville so destitute of manly and honorable principles, as to resort to such base and cowardly means to get rid of an honorable opponent, who we know would never shrink from meeting any man on fair and gentlemanly ground?
Bay State Democrat.

"On the evening of Monday last, an attempt was made to take away the life of the editor of this paper, by Robert C. Foster, Jr. eldest son of Ex-Senator Foster of this city. A misunderstanding of a personal character had existed between the parties for several days previous. On the evening referred to, Mr Harris repaired as usual to his supper at the Nashville Inn, and entered the bar-room between the ringing of the first and second bells.—He had not advanced, perhaps, more than half the length of the room, near the counter at which he stopped, when Foster who was standing near the fire-place, within some four or five paces, drew a pistol and remarked "Gentleman, I have an announciation to make," and instantly fired.

Mr Harris had no weapon in his hand, and had no time to draw one before he received the fire of his assailant. There were three wounds inflicted, and, in the opinion of some, by different persons. One ball wounded the flexor of the right arm, paralizing the limb—the other entered the cavity of the chest, about the center of the breast bone, and an inch or two above the nipples. Mr H. was conveyed to his room in the inn, where he yet remains in a precarious and dangerous state."

It gives us great pleasure to learn, from the Nashville Union of the 8th ult. that the principal wound inflicted upon Mr Harris, though severe, is not likely in the opinion of his physicians to terminate fatally. The symptoms thus far have been favorable.

LEAP YEAR HAS PASSED.—"The summer is gone, the harvest is passed," and our chance has not come. Col. Wentworth, what should those bachelors now do who have no epaulettes to recommend them?—Niles Intelligencer.

They should throw themselves into the arms of the first "old maid" they meet, and swear that

Together they will go
To jail or jibbet, joy or woe.
Chicago Democrat.

Horror! Thank our stars for our epaulettes!

NEVER LOOK SAD.

Never look sad, nothing so bad,
As getting familiar with sorrow,
Treat him to-day, in a cavalier way,
And he'll seek other quarters to-morrow.

Long you'd not weep, could you but keep
At the bright side of every trial;
Fortune you'd find, is often most kind,
When chilling your hopes with denial.

Let the sad day, carry away,
Its own little burden of sorrow,
Or you may miss, half of the bliss,
That comes in the lap of to-morrow.

FEBRUARY.
GLORIOUS COMMENCEMENT.

S. J. SYLVESTER has opened the campaign for 1841 in his usual brilliant style, having had the good fortune, in the month of December, of selling

THREE CAPITAL PRIZES!!!
One - - - - of - - - - - $20,000!!!
One - - - - of - - - - - $12,000!!!
One - - - - of - - - - - $10,000!!

This is certainly unprecedented—but it is a mere trifle compared to what he intends to do. S. J. SYLVESTER, of 130 Broadway, has ever been the most fortunate vender in the United States, and he is determined to maintain the reputation still further. His office has always been known for punctuality and a prompt and strict compliance with all orders forwarded to him. After a residence in the same office for 17 years any reference is unnecessary—but should such be required, there is not a city or town but where S. J. SYLVESTER has dispensed some of Fortune's favors.

The SCHEMES for FEBRUARY are more than usually attractive, and particular attention is invited to the annexed.

PERKINSVILLE ACADEMY.

THE subscribers take this opportunity to announce to the Public, that they have made arrangements to establish at Perkinsville, Vt., a literary institution, to be called the Perkinsville Academy. Various considerations have influenced them in selecting this location, among which may be mentioned, its retired situation—its rural and picturesque scenery—abundance of rooms and cheapness of rent, occasioned by the distruction of the Ascutney Woolen Mill by fire—low prices of provisions &c. &c.

Although High Schools and Academies abound in New England, yet but few are permanent or receive such patronage as to warrant the expense of employing a sufficient number of competent instructors to bestow that critical and undivided attention which students in their academic course ought, in justice, to receive.

Such institutions as are liberally endowed and not entirely dependant upon tuition for their support, possess this peculiar advantage, and consequently secure large numbers of students.

The subscribers are fully aware of the disadvantage under which they labor in commencing without endowments, yet feelfully determined to make any sacrifice that may be necessary in order to have a sufficient number of competent teachers to meet the requirements of the students.—They feel confident, that by such a course, patronage will increase until a liberal and competent support will be given the institution. In addition to their services they have secured the assistance of a lady, competent to manage the female department and render such assistance as may be necessary. They are determined that no effort on their part shall be wanting to make the institution second to none in this section of the country. Special attention will be given to the classical department, and a thorough and systematic preparatory course will be adopted. During the Spring and Fall terms particular attention will be given to such as wish to qualify for teaching. The institution will be furnished with a choice Chemical and Philosophical apparatus and illustrations given by lectures and experiments. The Government of the school will be mild and parental, though uniform and decided.

The principal Text Books will be Andrew's and Stoddard's Latin Grammar and Reader; Salhust; Cooper's Virgil; Cicero's Select Orations; Andrew's Latin Exercises; Leverett's Latin Lexicon; Fiske's Greek Grammar and Exercises; Goodrich's Greek Lessons; Xenophon's Analysis; Homer's Iliad; Donnegan's Greek Lexicon; Porter's Rhetoric al Reader; Adam's Arithmetic; Mitchel's Geography; Abercrombie's Intellectual Philosophy; Wayland's Moral Science; Paley's Natural Theology; Comstock's Philosophy Chemistry Physiology and Geology; Olmstead's Astronomy; Burrett's Geography of the Heavens; Day's Algebra; Playfair's Euclid; Davie's Surveying; Smellies Natural History; Hitchcock's Book Keeping, &c. &c.

The Academic year will be divided into four Terms commencing as follows:

SAVE YOUR FUEL.
CHASE'S COOKING STOVE,
OPERATING UPON A PRINCIPLE ENTIRELY NEW.

THE subscriber having contracted with Mr S. L. Chase for the right of his stove for the County of Windsor, begs leaves to call the attention of the public to the same. The stove is beyond doubt more economical and convenient than any other cooking stove in use. It is convenient, because of its peculiar construction, and economical, for the reason that it will save three fourths of the fuel necessary to be consumed in other stoves, in order to do an equal amount of cooking. It contains two ovens of large dimensions, which can in an instant have the temperature so changed by dampers, as to be adapted to baking or roasting the most delicate as well as the coarsest food. The boiling and broiling department is perfect in every point of view. Six boilers can be used at a time. The broiling department is so constructed, that the smoke is not suffered to pass into the room, being conveyed directly into the stove. Owing to the peculiarity of the principles upon which this stove operates, none of the heat from the fire chamber is suffered to pass directly into the pipe, while all the coldest air in the stove is so discharged. This is done by an air chamber for rarefying the air and smoke after it has parted with its heat and, in such a manner, as to produce a very strong draught—thus all the heat generated must be applied to some practical purpose.

In proof of the above, I have connected with this advertisment, the following certificates from gentlemen of undoubted character who are now using the stove in this vicinity.

The stoves will be kept constantly on hand and for sale by, TITUS HUTCHINSON JR.

CERTIFICATES.

Dear Sir,—I have used one of your Cooking Stoves, in my family for some time past. The Stove is all that you have recommended it to be and I feel it my duty to state that I consider it one of the most important inventions within my knowledge. Being simple in construction and convenient in form I deem it to be a durable, and well calculated Stove. From the fact that I believe it would save the price of the Stove in fuel in one year in addition to the many conveniences which this stove possesses over all other stoves in use, I have no hesitation in recommending it in pecuniary point of view to every one, whether they already have or have not other stoves. PAUL HOWE.
Woodstock, Vt., June 14th 1840.

This certifies that I have used S. L. Chase's Cooking Stove for all the purposes of cooking Washing &c usual in families and find it to be the most economical and convenient cooking stove which I have ever used or seen and from experiment I find that it requires no more than one fourth of the fuel necessary to be consumed in any other cook-stove which I have used or seen calculated to do an equal amount of cooking. The ovens of the stove surpass any thing of the kind in use they bake and roast admirably well. In a word the stove is without a fault and I would most confidently recommend it to all persons in want of stoves. H. B. WITT.
Woodstock Vt., July 15th 1840.

Mr. S. L. Chase.—Having used your cooking stove in my family for some time past and finding it worthy of all praise I feel it my duty to state that I consider it to be by far the best cooking store in use. Having used it for all the purposes of cooking such as baking, roasting, boiling broiling &c. I can confidently assert that in point of economy and convenience it very far excel any thing of the kind which has come to my knowledge. The stoves is most ingeniously calculated for every culinary purpose. My family are remarkably well pleased with the broiling department of the stove none of the smoke being suffered to come into the room. ZERAH LULL.
Woodstock, Vt., July 15th 1840.

Mr. Chase,—Sir: After having used your cooking stove, No. 2, in my family for a sufficient time to have fully satisfied myself of its usefulness; I am prepared to express my opinion that it is preferable to any COOKING STOVE of which I have knowledge. The saving of fuel, the amount of business that may be accomplished by it, the uses of which the hearth is susceptible, and all its adv
