PUSHING THE SURVEY.

Harrison's Arrest Does Not Daunt the British in Venezuela.

Mail advices from Demerara up to July 8 indicate that the British have not by any means abandoned the survey of the road through the disputed territory on the border of Venezuela and that while the official surveyor, Mr Harrison, is returning to Georgetown a special force of twenty armed men under the command of Police Inspector Shaw has left Georgetown, June 24, under instructions to protect the surveyors.

Mr Im Thurn has also been hurried to the Aracabeo to deliver a protest against Venezuelan interference. It is stated that force, however, is not to be opposed to force, and in the event of a large body of hostile Venezuelans presenting themselves the officer in charge has expaid instructions to retire without offering any resistance.

It is stated that at the time of Mr Harrison's arrest only nine miles of the survey remained to be completed and it is extremely probable that the remaining distance has been covered since that time. Mr. Harrison had not yet arrived at Georgetown, although he was known to be on his way. The Georgetown newspapers say that the policemen were fully equipped with haversacks, hammocks, etc., and a hundred rounds of ball cartridges each.

No Money to Be Appropriated.

Health Officer Woodward, assecretary of the Board of Supervisors under the law enacted to regulate the practice of medicine and surgery, recently advised the Commissioners that the board is without funds. The inquiry was referred to Auditor Petty, who decides that as Congress established a rate of fees upon which the board is to depend for its expenses, the failure to make an appropriation was manifestly intentional, and in his judgment it would not be proper to use the emergency fund for the purpose suggested. This opinion is indorsed by the Commissioners. The board will get no money until it is in shape to collect fees, and it evidently has trouble in getting into shape for the want of money.

Rock Creek Park Sewer Case.

The report of Messrs. Philip M. Snowden, Joseph A. Settle and Lewis D. Uhler, the commissioners appointed to assess damages in the matter of the Rock Creek Park sewer, made a report yesterday afternoon. The intrinsic value of the ring is $5. The case was turned over to Detective Boyd.

LAURA SOLD NO WHISKY

Sergt. Daly's Assailant Acquitted by a Jury.

SHE MUST STAND TRIAL AGAIN

She Threw Lye in the Officers' Faces When Her House Was Raided and an Assault Charge Is Still Against Her—Sharp Rebuke to Counsel From the Bench.

After an hour's consideration a jury in Judge Miller's court yesterday evening acquitted Laura Brackier, a colored woman, on the charge of keeping a "speak easy" at her house, 630 Delaware avenue southwest.

Her house was raided Sunday afternoon, June 21, by Sergeant Daly, of the Fourth precinct, and a squad of six officers. She is the woman who, after her arrest, threw a can of caustic lye at Daly and officer Greer, burning their faces badly and incapacitating them for duty for quite a while. The officers, in spite of their narrow escape from blindness, show only a few faint marks of the fiery bath they received.

The verdict was not only a surprise to the sergeant and his men, but a bitter disappointment, for they confidently expected a conviction. The government all along felt that their case was weak, and if it had not been for the impetus argument advanced by Mr. Pugh, who conducted the prosecution, the jury would have remained out five minutes instead of sixty.

An incident in the trial was the rebuke Judge Miller gave Mr. Frank Closs, the defendant's counsel, for the use of intemperate language in the bold declaration that his client would have been justified in killing the police for entering her house without a warrant and by force, as two of them did, breaking their way in through a window.

HINTED AT PERJURY.

Mr Closs made some sarcastic observations on the government's method in procuring witnesses, and how easily men could be secured who would swear to anything for $1.25 a day, the witness fee. This accusation Mr. Pugh took due notice of in his closing remarks, and he addressed the jury so eloquently in defense of the people he had put on the stand, that twelve men, who were almost a unit for acquittal before the speech, had a heated argument in the seclusion of the jury room before they arrived. Mr. Pugh's driver inadvertent in a poker game would have been called a "bluff." Bowie, the government's principal witness, had the case, has remarkable story of drinking in the woman's place with another man, Morton Chandler, who proved to the satisfaction of the jury he had never been there, caused a revulsion of feeling in favor of the defendant.

Sergt. Daly, the first witness, said that in the afternoon of the day of the raid he received information that Laura was running a speak easy at her house, and there were a number of men there drinking. When the police entered she was in the act of serving a man with a drink.

DALY ON THE STAND.

"I put her under arrest," said the sergeant. "She went in the back room, and, coming back, threw lye in my face and Policeman Greer's."

Lawyer Closs jumped up and objected to this testimony. "We are not trying her for throwing lye," he said.

Judge Miller overruled counsel and told Daly to proceed.

"These policemen," said Closs, resuming his seat, "had no business jumping through the woman's window and rushing her house without a warrant. She had a right to kill them."

Judge Miller bridled up at this and his face flushed with anger.

"No, sir," he said. "I have heard these remarks made here before against this man on the stand, and this is the result, this lye throwing. We will hang them as fast as they kill, and hang them high as Haman. These people have been educated badly enough in the direction of murdering officers."

Policeman Bauer said as they broke in the room, the defendant was holding a whisky bottle in one hand, pouring a drink out for a man who held the glass. The bottle was produced, and contained about one drink.

Officer Muller said they found, beside the whisky, four bottles of beer, and a quantity of empty bottles.

Laura Buckner, the defendant, said she had never sold whisky and for years worked in service and of late took in washing for a living. The bottle of whisky, she said, was her sister's and the beer for her own use. Bowie she knew only slightly. He came to her house Sunday saying he had been out all night, spent his wages, and was afraid to go home and wanted to rest.

SAID SHE WAS MISTREATED.

She stoutly maintained that some officers among the raiding party had treated her with brutality. "Two of 'em got in the window," she said, "and the rest through the door. The man that grabbed Bowie kicked me and knocked me on the floor."

"You don't mean to say Sergeant Daly kicked you?" asked Mr. Pugh.

"I don't know," was the answer. "If he's the man who held Bowie, he's the man that kicked me."

She said another policeman beat her over the head with his black jack.

"That was after you threw the lye?" asked the judge.

Laura said it was.

Mr. Pugh made a short opening and closing address, as did Mr. Closs, and the judge gave the case to the jury, who found the defendant not guilty. She was taken back to jail to await trial for assaulting Daly and Greer.

Now that she is acquitted of keeping a speak-easy, it follows that the officers had no right to enter her house, at all events not without the proper papers, and she has a good chance of being cleared on the charge of assault.

Will Appeal to the President.

Attorneys Langston and Jones yesterday withdrew their appeal for a new trial in the case of Thornton Alexander, sentenced to hang November 27 next, for the murder of "Punk" Burrell. It is probable that an appeal will be taken to the President for a commutation of the sentence to life imprisonment.

PLANNING FOR A SPEEDWAY

Broad Suburban Thoroughfare Under Highway Act.

Engineer Commissioner, Assisted by Mr. J. C. Olmstead, Hastening Street Extension Preliminaries.

The work of the engineer department on the second and third sections of street extensions under the highway act is progressing satisfactorily and is nearing completion.

Mr. J. C. Olmstead, the landscape engineer, who has been in conference with Commissioner Powell for the past ten days, has been devoting almost all of his attention to the parkings and their relations with the intersecting streets, particularly in the Anacostia section. A great deal of time has been devoted to this branch of the work. Mr. Olmstead going over the details with care and at the same time examining the topography of the ground with a view to ascertaining the adaptability of the plans to the location.

One important feature of the plans in that area will be a "speedway" in two sections, each one mile in length. It will begin at the end of the Pennsylvania avenue bridge and extend eastward to the District line.

This "speedway," the parkways and the prominent streets and drives will be laid off with great care, in order that future changes may be avoided.

It is not possible, the Engineer Commissioner states, to say exactly when the plans will be ready for submission and final action. Suggestions are often made of changes that lead to other changes, and sometimes it occurs that a plan thought to be in a fair way to completion must be almost wholly reorganized.

A large part of the time of the Engineer Commissioner is being given to these plans, and his intention is not only to have them perfect but to finish the work as early as possible, in order that the public may know the results.

COMING TO THE THEATERS.

The Washington stock company in their forthcoming production of "School" at the National Theater next Monday will present themselves to the summer patrons in a new atmosphere, of course retaining all of their powers that have made them so popular thus far. "School" is of a more serious nature than any of the comedies thus far given and will bring out all of the real dramatic talent these clever people are possessed of.

Robertson has written many plays, but he never penned one that appealed more to the heart than "School." Its sentimentality, story, etc., magnify told. It is pathetic, it is witty, and its comedy is derived from natural causes. There is no striving after effect, but it is a simple outline and has been the foundation for many another play.

All the favorites are well suited to the more quiet serious style of work that "School" calls for. Frederic Bond, Charles Mackay, William Boag, John Findlay, George Stevens, Edythe Chapman, Mary Sanders, Mrs Findlay, Britta Marti, Corinne Parker, and a whole lot of pretty girls will compose the cast.

Percy Brooke, another old favorite in Washington will also be in the cast, having come over from New York to appear.

No one should overlook these wonderful late these close nights. Heat and humidity have to depart when they start the atmosphere agoing. Saturday night marks the fiftieth performance of "My Awful Dad," and a silver souvenir will be presented.

Officers Won by a Lap.

William Hamby and John White, both colored, forgot all about recent police regulations, last night, when they decided to race from the Peace monument to the Treasury. Bicycle Policemen Dodge and Estes were on hand, however, and made the contest more interesting. The policemen proved to be winners and handed their opponents at the Twelfth street station, where they left collateral for violating the police regulations.

For Religious Mania.

Robert Parker, whose home is at No. 4021 Eighth street northwest, was yesterday sent to St. Elizabeth's Insane Asylum. Parker has been at Emergency Hospital for the past month, suffering from injuries inflicted on himself during a fit of religious mania. At times the young man is perfectly rational. Then he will suddenly become insane and pray for hours at a time. An examination into his condition was made yesterday by the physicians, and he was committed to the asylum.

Chapel Point Excursions.

On Saturday next the third of this season's weekly excursions to Chapel Point, the beautiful summer resort on the Potomac, about sixty miles below this city, will be made by the steamer Harry Randall. This is the cheapest and most pleasant excursion out of Washington. For 25 cents you get a cool ride of 120 miles and spend the day at one of the prettiest resorts on the river. The Randall will leave the River View wharf at 9 a. m., and will reach Chapel Point shortly before 1 o'clock. Several hours are given for salt water bathing, crabbing and fishing, and the excursionists are brought home again before 10 o'clock. This is a delightful trip, and is especially designed for families. The steamer is one of the most comfortable on the river and its officers do all they can to make all have an enjoyable time.

THE NEXT PLACE OF MEETING

It Has Been Left to the Executive Committee to Select—Interesting Papers Read at the Concluding Session—Farewell Reception to Be Tendered the Delegates.

The closing exercises of the second annual convention of the Afro-American Women in the Nineteenth Street Baptist Church were held last evening. Mrs. Booker T. Washington presided and on the platform were seated the ladies who were to deliver the addresses of the evening.

The music was supplied by a chorus of 100 voices, which were led by Prof. J. T. Layton. Among the more prominent persons present were: Miss Jane Thompson, Mrs. Lottie Wilson, Miss Jackson, the noted artist of Jackson City, Mich.; Mrs. Dr. Miller, New York; Mrs. A. B. Thomas, Mrs. C. O. Keeler, a leader in prison reform; Mr. Jesse Lawson, Mr. T. H. Lyles, St. Paul, Minn.; Mrs. M. Tate, Grand Rapids, Mich., and Mr. R. H. Terrell.

The evening's program was begun by a praise service, in which the choir sang an anthem, "Praise the Lord," a selection written by the director. There was a prayer, after which Miss L. C. Carter, the recording secretary, read the minutes of the sessions during the day.

The first speaker of the evening, Mrs. T. H. Lyles, national president of the John Brown Memorial Association, delivered a eulogy on John Brown, whom she described as the greatest warrior who ever buckled on a sword, and the greatest hero of the nineteenth century, who gave his benediction to the colored race by stooping down and kissing the face of a colored child while on his way to his execution.

FUTURE OF THE RACE.

"The Needed Woman of the Nineteenth Century," an address by Mrs. Selena Butler, of Atlanta, Ga., was the next theme that commanded the attention of the large gathering. The statement made to the effect "that the twentieth century woman will be the woman of color who will be as proud of the negro blood that courses through her veins as her white sister is proud of the Anglo-Saxon blood that courses through hers," was received with enthusiastic applause.

"Our Country Women and Children" was the interesting topic on which Miss Georgianna, Washington, of Central, Ala., a graduate of Hampton Institute, read a paper. She referred particularly to the situation of the colored people at Mount Meigs, a village near Montgomery, Ala., where a school has been established for colored people. "Country women," she said, "are suffering for the help and for the influence of her more educated sister of the North and in other sections."

Mrs. Rosetta Douglass Sprague, the only daughter of the late Frederick Douglass, was introduced, and in a few words expressed her thanks for the tribute paid to the memory of her dead father. Following Mrs. Sprague's address there was a song, "Jerusalem," by F. J. London, the original jubilee singer, and a song by the choir.

A collection was taken up for the Margaret Tubman Home, at Auburn, N. Y., and amounted to $27.42, and Mrs. Tubman, who made an earnest appeal for the money, expressed her thanks for the amount.

The only other paper of the evening was "Our Western Women," read by Miss Jennie V. Kemp of Minneapolis, who, upon the conclusion of the paper, invited the new association to hold its next meeting there.

REPORTS PRESENTED.

The reports presented were those of the finance committee, who reported receipts, $103.40; expenditures, $40.55. The committee on courtesies then presented a resolution thanking the pastor and people of the Nineteenth Street Baptist Church for the use of their edifice and to the people of Washington for courtesies extended, to Prof. Layton and all others who helped to contribute the excellent music during the convention, and to the daily newspapers for the reports they had made of the deliberations in the convention. The ushers and all others connected with the church who had aided in the work at the church and who had helped to entertain the delegates were well remembered.

Miss Jones of Raleigh, N. C., on behalf of the visiting delegates, presented Mrs. B. T. Washington with a handsome bouquet of white roses in appreciation of the wisdom and kindness she had shown as chairman of the convention.

The list of officers which had been selected during the afternoon to act during the year for the new organization, which is to be known as the National Association of Colored Women, was announced as follows:

President, Mrs. Mary Church Terrell of Washington, D. C.; vice presidents, Mrs. Fannie Jackson Coppin, Philadelphia; Mrs. Josephine St. Pierre Ruffin, Boston; Mrs. Lucy B. Thurman, Michigan; Mrs. F. E. W. Harper, Philadelphia; Mrs. J. S. Yates, Kansas City, Mo.; Mrs. Sylvanus Williams, New Orleans, La.; Mrs. Jennie Chase Williams, Abbeyville, S. C.; treasurer, Mrs. Helen A. Cook, Washington, D. C.; recording secretary, Miss Alice Ruth Moore, New Orleans, La.; corresponding secretary, Miss A. V. Tompkins, Washington, D. C.; chairman of executive committee, Mrs. B. T. Washington, Tuskegee, Ala.; national organizer, Mrs. Victoria Earle Matthews, New York city.

Members of ways and means committee—Mrs. J. Napier Kent, Minneapolis; Miss Lulu Chase, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Ella Mahammett, Omaha; Miss Julia F. Jones, Philadelphia, and Mrs. W. A. Hunter, Richmond.

Editorial staff of Woman's Era, the organ of the new association—Mrs. B. T. Washington, Tuskegee; Dr. Rebecca Cole, Philadelphia; Mrs. Rosa D. Bowser, Richmond; Mrs. Ida B. Barnett, Chicago, and Mrs. Frances J. Jackson, Kansas City.

Committee to form a constitution for the new organization—A. V. Tomkins, Anna Jones, C. L. Franklin, Rosa Bowser, V. E. Matthews.

It was announced that at the conclusion of the meeting an informal reception would be tendered the delegates. The details of the reception were prepared by the ladies' auxiliary and the citizens' committee.

After a brief word from Pastor Brooks of the church, the convention adjourned by the singing of the doxology.

The executive committee will determine at a later meeting when and where the next meeting will be held.
