DIRECTIONS.

The line will be formed on Main street at 10 o'clock A. M., the right resting on Twenty-second street, fronting South.

At 11 o'clock, column will be formed to the right, carriages single—mounted troops by fours—foot troops by platoons, all others on foot, in front of doors—and in this order the column will move off by music in quick time—up Main to 8th—by 8th to Franklin—up Franklin to Foushee—by Foushee to Broad—down Broad to Ninth—by Ninth street to the Capitol Square.

Arriving at the gate, there will be a momentary halt, when all in carriages and on horses will dismount—(except the cavalry which will continue down Ninth street, halting at such point as the Commander may select)—carriages and horses will turn out to the right and remain near until the return of the procession.—the column will then move forward "by the right flank file left" to such point as the Chief Marshal may designate.

Arriving at the place of resting, the troops will be formed in "close column by companies on the four company right in front," fronting the Platform, arms ordered and at "parade rest." The remainder of the procession will take such position as the Chief Marshal will direct.

After prayer and the oration, (at the close of which the Statue will be unveiled and a salute of thirteen guns fired,) the line will be re-formed and move off by music to the gate by which it entered, where, passing to be rejoined by the Cavalry—carriages will be resumed, horses mounted—when the procession will be conducted to Broad street, and be dismissed by the Chief Marshal.

During the march, officers in charge of bodies will see that proper distances are maintained, and good order preserved.

The Assistant Marshals (to be recognized by their scarfs and badges,) will be assigned to their positions by the Chief Marshal, after which they will see that order is preserved, and that the streets are kept free from obstructions, requiring spectators to confine themselves to the sidewalks.

The police, in charge of the Square, platform and seats, will preserve good order and so much silence as consists during the ceremonies upon the platform. They will not permit any persons to occupy the seats or platform, except those designated by the Committee of Arrangements.

At 9½ o'clock A. M., the authorities and individuals designated by the numbers, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17 and 18, will be at the Exchange Hotel where they will be seated in carriages under the direction of the Committee of Arrangements. At 9½ o'clock A. M. the Marshals will report to the Chief Marshal at the Armory, where they will receive their orders for duty.
