WARM SPRINGS, VIRGINIA.—These Springs, so well known to the public who have been in the habit of visiting the Virginia Springs, are situated at BATH COURT-HOUSE, in a beautiful and fertile valley, 15 miles west of the Virginia Central Railroad, at Mulboro' Depot, 5 and 8 miles east of the Hot and Healing Springs, and 40 miles east of the White Sulphur Springs. The picturesque mountain scenery is beautiful and sublime.

This ancient and celebrated Watering Place is noted and esteemed for its medicinal and curative qualities, salubrity of climate, health-giving and pleasure Baths. There are now five WARM BATHS, of a temperature of 96 to 98 degrees Fahrenheit; also, two COLD SPRING BATHS adjoining.

It is to be regretted that no effort has been heretofore made to collect and preserve accurate and particular accounts of the curative agency of these Warm Baths. If records of cases that have been relieved and cured by their use, had been collected and preserved, from their early opening as a place of invalid visitation, doubtless volumes of such cases might now be recorded. But it is a matter of sober history, that very soon after the discovery of the Warm Springs by civilized man, they became celebrated for their curative qualities in various diseases, as well as for the mere luxury of bathing, which are not surpassed by any Baths in the United States. They were much frequented, at much labor and fatigue, by great multitudes, before any other of the valuable Watering Places in Virginia were known.

ROUTE.—By railroad from the principal cities in the United States to the Millboro' Depot of the Va. Central Railroad; thence by fine stage coaches, (under the care and management of responsible gentlemen,) fifteen miles over a well graded turnpike, to the Warm Springs. Passengers leaving Baltimore, Md., Richmond, Petersburg or Lynchburg, Va., in the morning, can come through to the Warm Springs the same day to supper.

The following is the analysis made by Professor Wm. B. Rogers, of the University of Virginia:

"The large Bath is 40 feet by 20 feet in diameter; its arena is 1,163.77 feet. The ordinary depth being five feet, (it can be increased to six,) the cubic capacity is 5,818.85 feet, or 43,533.32 gallons. Notwithstanding the leaks, this quantity of water will flow into the reservoir in one hour. The average temperature of the Bath is 98 Fah. The gas which rises in the Bath consists of nitrogen, with minute quantities of sulphuretted hydrogen and carbonic acid. Besides this gas, each gallon of water contains 4.5 cubic inches of gas, consisting of:

Nitrogen	3.25 cubic inches.
Sulphuretted hydrogen	0.25 " "
Carbonic acid	1.00 " "

The saline contents of one gallon of the water are as follows:

Muriate of lime	3.968
Sulphate of magnesia, Epsom salts	9.984
Carbonate of lime	4.288
Sulphate of lime	5.456
And a trace of soda	0.099

GEO. MAYSE.

MR. GEO. MAYSE—Dear Sir: Your favor of the 15th inst. is to hand, asking me to give my views from personal observation, and practice as a resident physician at the Warm Springs, Bath county, Va. I most cheerfully comply with your very reasonable request, and can with candor say that I regard the Warm Spring Waters as being of very great benefit to persons laboring under the following diseases: Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Gout, Chronic Hepatitis, Torpidity and Enlargement of the Liver, Enlargement of the Spleen, Jaundice, some form of Diarrhœa, Paralysis, Syphilis and Hypochondriasis. In large majority of the above named diseases have fallen under my own personal observation, and many of the invalids suffering from them left the Springs entirely restored to health, while others left very much improved and greatly relieved, and doubtless would have been wholly restored to health had their sojourn at the Springs been of longer duration.

Very respectfully, your ob't serv't,

C. P. BRYAN, M. D.

Warm Springs, June 16th, 1860.

GEORGE MAYSE, Esq.—Dear Sir: Your note of the 10th inst. asking my opinion, (formed from personal observation,) as to the remedial effects of the Warm Springs as a curative agent, is to hand, and it affords me pleasure to say, in reply, that I have been advising their use, for various diseased conditions of the system, with the happiest results, for the last eight years, as a resident physician.

When taken internally, they are diuretic antacid and aperient, acting most happily in Constipation of the Bowels. In Rheumatic and Gouty Diatheses, Lumbago, Sciatica, and kindred diseases, their good effects have long been known and appreciated. For the cure of Dyspepsia, I regard it as one of the most valuable remedial agents. Functional Derangement of the Liver, Enlargement of Spleen, Secondary Syphilis, Paralysis, and some diseases peculiar to females, have all been relieved from the use of these waters. Very respectfully, your,

A. G. MCCHESNEY, M. D.

Warm Springs, June 21st, 1860. jy 17—d2awlm

This place has advantages over any watering place in the Virginia mountains. Here is a chalybeate Spring that has been resorted to for the last half century, and its virtue highly appreciated all over the State. It is second only to the Green brier White Sulphur Water. The Alum Water is equal, if not superior, to any in the State, and the proprietor recommends it with perfect confidence in cases of scrofula, Chronic diarrhœa, Dysentery, Dyspepsia, &c., it has been the means of restoring a large number of invalids. The physicians who lived and practiced in this neighborhood, certify that they have used it in their practice with fine effect years ago. The Chalybeate waters are of good quality, and what is remarkable, these three different waters come out of the same ridge, all within the grounds, and within 200 yards of each other. There is also fine Freestone water piped into the grounds. Analysis of these waters sent on application.

There will be fine MUSIC for the BALL-ROOM, and all the amusements found at such places. The Proprietor can only say that he will continue to do all in his power to please his visitors, both invalids and pleasure seekers, and nothing shall be left undone to make their stay pleasant and agreeable.

An experienced Physician resides at the Springs.
