SATURDAY MORNING.... APRIL 5 1862.

[From the Charleston Mercury.]

THE KENTUCKY PARTIZAN.

BY PAUL H. HAYNE.

I.

Hath the wily Swamp Fox
Come again to earth?
Hath the soul of Sumter
Owned a second birth?
From the Western hill slopes
Starts a hero-form,
Stalwart, like the oak tree,
Tempestous, like the storm!
Hist! an eye of lightning!
Hist! a heart of steel!
Flashing deadly vengeance
Thrilled with fiery zeal!
Hound him down, ye Minions,
Slay him—if ye can,
But we worship the hireling knave
Who meets him, man to man!

II.

Well done! gallant MORGAN!
Gather with might and main,
Till the fair fields redden
With a gory rain.
Sweep them by the roadside
Scatter them in the wood,
By the lonely valley,
And the purpling flood!
Smite the myrtle starlight,
Smite the glare of day,
Harass, sting, and [illegible] them,
Scatter them and [illegible]
Hound him down, our Chieftain!
Hound him—if ye can—
But we worship the Hessian thief
Who meets him, man to man!

III.

There's a hurid Purpose,
Brooding in his breast
Worth of solemn Passion,
And a deep unrest:
For our ruined homesteads,
And our ravaged land,
For our women cursed
By the bastard hand,
For our thousand sorrows
And our untold shame
For our blighted harvests,
For our towns of flame—
He has sworn, (and rocks not
Who may cross his path)—
That the foe shall feel him
In his terrid wrath—
That, while will and spirit
Hold one spark of life,
Blood shall stain his broad sword
Blood shall wet his knife—
On! ye Hessian horsemen!
Crush him—if ye can!
But we worship your stanchest slave
Who meets him, man to man!

IV.

Tis no time for pleasure!
Doff the silken vest!
Up! my men! and follow
MARION of the West!
Strike with him for freedom!
Strike with main and might,
Match the noonday splendor
With the gloom of night;
Strike by rock and roadside,
Strike in wold and wood!
By the shadowy valley,
By the purpling flood,
On! where MORGAN's war horse
Thunders in the van!
God! who would not gladly die
Beside that glorious man!

V.

Hath the wily Swamp Fox
Come again to earth?
Hath the soul of Sumter
Owned a second birth?
From the western hill-slopes
Starts a hero form,
Stalwart, like the oak tree,
Restless, like the storm!
Hist! an eye of lightning!
Hist! a heart of steel!
Flashing deadly vengeance
Thrilled with fiery zeal!
Hound him down, ye robbers!
Slay him—if ye can!
But we worship the hireling knave
Who meets him, man to man!

COMMERCIAL.

Richmond Markets, April 4, 1862.

There is so little doing that the prices are hardly more than retail quotations. All necessaries are inordinately high. The Military Executive proposes to restrict the maximum of a good many articles sold at the markets. The order to this effect leaves them quite high enough. Beef is certainly higher than it ought to be; yet it is not included in the list of regulated articles.

Money is superabundant and seeking investment, in the absence of means for its adoption in commercial enterprises. Real estate has, therefore, advanced to a most extravagant appreciation. Much is therefore thrown on the market. What effect this will have remains to be seen. Stocks continue firm.

BREAD—Navy, 4 cents; Pilot, 5 cents; Butter and Soda, 8 cents per lb.

BACON—Stock light and firm at 24 to 26 for hog round, Hams, 26a28 cents per lb.

WAR DEPARTMENT,
ADJUTANT AND INSPECTOR GEN.'S OFFICE,
Richmond, March 24, 1862.

GENERAL ORDERS, No. 16.—All leaves of absence and furloughs, from whatever source obtained, are revoked; and officers and men absent from duty, except on surgeon's certificate of disability, will return at once to their respective commands. It is with extreme reluctance that the Department adopts a measure which deprives our patriotic soldiers of the relaxation they have so well earned; but the enemy presses on every side, and the necessities of the service demand new illustrations of that noble self-denial which has been so many times evinced since the commencement of our struggle for independence. The furloughs of all who have engaged for the war, which are thus curtailed, will be extended hereafter, when circumstances permit. But, judging from the past, no fears are entertained of an unwilling response to this call. Those who have so many times proved their devotion to their country, cannot be indifferent or backward in this hour of her greatest need.

By order of the President.

S. COOPER,
mh 2,—6t Adjutant and Inspector Gen.
