FRIDAY MORNING.....SEPT. 26 1862.

Kossuth on Garibaldi.

Kossuth has published a letter denouncing the call of Garibaldi on Hungary to rise, and repudiating the use of his name in connection with the call. He says:

I cannot but attribute this abuse of my name to the manoeuvres of the Court of Vienna. It is not the first time that its busy agents have abused it in order to cause the Hungarians to engage in desperate enterprises. Austria acts in this manner at all times when, feeling herself free from any danger of an attack from without, she considers herself sure of being able to repress any such movement.

I am not astonished, therefore, at beholding her active agents lay hold of the proclamation of General Garibaldi; for, much as Austria fears a combined action by Italy and Hungary, she would be more pleased at seeing an isolated insurrection break out in Hungary at a moment in which, in consequence of regrettable dissensions, Italy, treading on the verge of civil war, would not only find herself completely paralyzed, but in what is worse still, placed in danger of engaging in a conflict with the conqueror of Magenta and Solferino.

Thus, the abuse of my name, which has just been mentioned to me, imposes on me the duty of cautioning against a fatal error those political friends who do me the honor to confide in my guidance, and obliges me to declare openly that not only am I a perfect stranger to the appeal to arms which General Garibaldi has addressed to Hungary, but that I entirely disapprove of it in the most positive manner, as supremely inopportune and inconsiderate.

What a moment has the General chosen for making this appeal! To bring about a collision with the Emperor of the French—a collision which would inevitably involve the ruin of Italy. The cry of "Rome or death!" if it signifies anything, signifies war with the Emperor of the French, since he it is, and not Austria, who mounts guard at the Capitol.

Such is the conjuncture which the situation presents to us in support of the appeal to arms addressed to Hungary. The reasons for making this appeal may be thus summed up: "Since the Montenegrins are fighting with Turkey; since the relations of the Servians and the Turks are inimical, I (Garibaldi) propose to embroil myself with my King and the Government of my country in order to embroil them with France, and then the moment will have arrived when Austria will have nothing to fear either from the Turks, the Montenegrins, the Servians, the Italians, or from France—then will be the precise moment for you, Hungarians, to attack Austria, for happily for your glory, she will will then be prepared to receive you warmly, not being engaged upon any side; more than all, I (Garibaldi) have taken care to put forth my proclamation."

We may admire the singularity of this reasoning, but we ought not to be astonished that Hungarian good sense prefers waiting for the moment when Austria shall be engaged, or in danger of being engaged, on some point; or at least until some European conjuncture may present Hungary with the possibility of arming and ranging her forces in order of battle. Every patriotic Italian must rejoice at this determination. I know better than any other person that Hungary is decided on profiting by the first occasion of freeing herself from the domination of Austria.

If the Hungarian nation thinks herself able to engage alone in a supreme struggle, without regard to exterior conjunctures, I am ready to partake her risks and her perils. But in such a case, as she will act without any support from abroad, honor and my conscience tell me to leave with her the responsibility of the resolution and the choice of the moment.

If, on the contrary, it is intended to drive to arms the Hungarian nation by excitement from abroad, I do not hesitate to declare that it does not belong to any person, and still less to any foreigner, however highly he may be placed, to rouse up a nation without affording it a support which, joined to the resolution of the nation itself, would promise a reasonable chance of success.

AUCTION & COMMISSION STORES.

NEW AUCTION STORE IN RICHMOND, VA.—In connection with our regular Grocery and Commission business, we propose selling at public auction, consignments of all kinds of MERCHANDISE, and MANUFACTURED TOBACCO, and respectfully solicit consignments. Having a large and well arranged warehouse, and with our knowledge of the trade, we think we have advantages, at least equal to any auction house in this city.

Our commissions will be precisely the same that we charge upon private sales, thus giving consignees choice of the two methods of selling.

Our first sale will take place on TUESDAY, October the 7th, 1862
TARDY & WILLIAMS,
Corner Cary and 13th streets, se 22—1t Richmond, Va.

NOTICE.—Our withdrawal from the PRODUCE COMMISSION BUSINESS is hereby made known. The failure to obtain acceptable assistants has forced us to this step, under circumstances different from those for which we have waited

Our office will be kept open for settlements till further notice; and the present time is commended to our debtors as the most favorable for paying out easy that they will ever see.

Those having our GRAIN BAGS will please send them to us very promptly, that they may be sold while the price is high. When the Grain Bag accounts can be written up, those in arrears will be notified, and payment claimed for all not returned.

Our co-partnership is not dissolved

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE.

DESIRABLE FARM OF 815 ACRES, IN HENRICO COUNTY, 12 MILES WEST OF RICHMOND, FOR SALE.—As the request of Mr. Milton R. Cottrell, we offer for sale his FARM, located as above, adjoining the lands of Dr. R. Coates and others, within two miles of the West Mines and three of the Canal. About two-thirds of the land is under good fence and divided into three fields, which produce the usual crops of this section. About 75 acres are in cultivation, and the balance in original timber and old field pines. The buildings are all in good order, consisting of an excellent dwelling, with six rooms, and the usual out-buildings, and a well of good water in the yard. There are about forty acres of good flat land, well adapted to grass. Mr. Henry A. Cottrell, residing on the place, will show the same to persons who may call on him. Possession given the 1st of January next, or sooner if required.
se 23—1m GODJIN & APPERSON.

ELEGANT OPPORTUNITY.—The subscriber is authorized to dispose of a first class BOARDING-HOUSE, with every article necessary for the prosecution of such business upon an extensive scale.

The location is central, house commodious and well arranged, the furniture of most excellent character.

The reputation of the house is not surpassed, and has afforded, during the past few years, a very satisfactory profit.

For terms, apply to E. B. COOK, se 23—4t No. 70 Main street.

A VERY DESIRABLE FARM FOR SALE.—I have for sale a very beautiful little FARM, of 350 or 400 acres, lying in Mecklenburg, and within four miles of Red Oak Grove, Charlotte county, Va. The improvements are excellent, nearly every one of which has been newly erected in the past few years. The locality is exceedingly healthy and attractive. It possesses every convenience that could be desired upon a place of its size. There are three orchards of choice fruit upon it, and, as to the quality of the land, is considered by those who know it to be equal to any in the country for grain and clover. Neighborhood unexceptionable. It lies about twelve miles from Roanoke, on the Richmond and Danville Railroad, and within five or six of the Clarksville and Keysville Railroad, which road will doubtless be completed in a year or so. Any one wishing to purchase, will apply to me in Richmond, and for particulars as to the place, to Dr. R. R. PURYEAR, Red Oak Grove, Charlotte county, Va. J. B. FAULKNER,
