

WASHINGTON IRVING'S LOVE.—We copy as follows from the Philadelphia Inquirer:

About the bachelorhood of Washington Irving there always hung a cloud of mystery, which even his familiar acquaintances tried in vain to dispel. But the grave that more generally hides than discloses the well-kept secrets of a life-time, having just closed over the late Miss Rebecca Gratz, of this city—a Hebrew lady of exemplary goodness, and who was noted for the greatness of her bounty to all poor and needy persons—we are informed that she was the occasion of Irving's single life. In regard to the matter, a correspondent of the Jewish Messenger writes:

"Twenty years ago I heard the story—a story that has long been current in Philadelphia in Jewish circles, among her friends and acquaintances, and which has again been revived here since her death. It runs thus: Many years ago, when Miss Gratz was a young girl, Washington Irving, then already risen in literary reputation, came to Philadelphia and became a visitor at the house of her family. It is said that in youth she was very beautiful and very good, and as her features, together with the fact that she was a living representative of that nation whose whole history is romance, so wrought upon his heart that he became deeply enamored with her. It is needless to say that his attachment soon grew so strong, with her strength in her faith, it would have been wasted. As it was, it was wasted. Irving left the city, but did not forget the lady of his love."

But the romance does not end here, for the correspondent says that when Irving met Sir Walter Scott abroad, he told him the story of his attachment to the beautiful and good Jewess of Philadelphia. At the time, Scott was about to write the novel of "Ivanhoe," and was so impressed with the picture of Irving's love, who, though loving, was still so faithful to her religion, that he gave his heroine the name of Rebecca. True or not, the story is a beautiful one, and there is nothing in it that is not honorable to all. Miss Gratz died, aged 88.

SUCCESSION OF A VIRGINIAN.—We copy as follows from the Baltimore Gazette of the 31st:

A few days since a man, who gave his name as Dr. E. J. Hudson, stopped at a boarding house on Sharp street, where he continued until yesterday, when he committed suicide. About eleven o'clock yesterday morning he was found in his room, and after a few minutes a servant heard a noise proceed from that room as of a heavy fall. She went to the room and found Dr. Hudson lying on the floor in the agonies of death. He had been lying on the bed, from which he fell, by which his head was slightly bruised. Before aid could reach his life was extinct. On the table in his room was a sealed letter addressed to his wife, "Mrs. Eleanor Hudson, care of Mr. S. N. Davis, Richmond, Va." The following open note was directed to the landlady and left on the table:

"Please telegraph my brother, Capt. E. M. Hudson, Camp street, New Orleans, and he will repay you for all your kindness to me. Do not allow a post-mortem examination, as I can tell you that thirty grains of cyanide of potassium administered by myself is the cause of my death, or rather freedom from the accursed life I cannot bear. Send the letter to my wife, etc. Have my body decently buried and my brother will repay you. Do not by any means let my wife's picture be taken from my body."

"Truly your friend,
Dr. E. J. Hudson."

"P. S.—Send my trunk etc., to my wife in Richmond, Va." Hudson's letter to his wife is directed, it is said to be the father-in-law of the deceased, and is a wealthy citizen of Richmond. A few moments previous to the act of self-destruction, Dr. Hudson was in the parlor playing on the piano, and appeared to be in excellent spirits. Before the war he was wealthy, and was traveling in Europe, but upon the commencement of hostilities, he returned to Virginia, and joined General Ely's brigade as surgeon. He had a large circle of relatives and friends in Virginia, and was a native of Petersburg, but lately resided in Richmond. Dr. R. Wilson Carr, coroner, held an inquest on the body, when the jury rendered a verdict "that he committed suicide by taking cyanide of potassium." Deceased was thirty-eight years of age. His body was taken in charge by Mr. J. F. Byrne, undertaker, on liberty street, and was placed in a vault to await the disposal of his friends. No cause is known that prompted him to the commission of the rash act.

DIRECTIONS FOR WASHING TATTING.—Get a common stone bottle (a quart porter bottle will do), saw a piece of thin flannel evenly all over it; wrap the tatting on, carefully tacking each row as flatly as possible to the flannel. Sew a piece of tartan (or very thin muslin) over it, leaving the tartan long enough to tie firmly both at the bottom and top of the bottle. Sink the bottle in a large basin of cold water, and soak it all night. Cut up a piece of white soap, put it in a large steaming water, with the bottle, and stew for six hours; if the tatting does not look quite clean, rub the bottle a little with the hand and more soap, and stew it again; rinse well in clean cold water, and put the bottle in the sun or near the fire to dry, when the tatting can be untacked and taken off. If it has been tacked on well, and in its proper form, it will be just like new tatting. This is also an excellent recipe for washing valuable lace. The flannel can be left on for use.

TO PRESERVE GREEN CORN.—A correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette says: Take the corn when it is sufficiently matured for table use, remove the husk from it, and boil it nearly as much as you would if you were going to use it on the table; let it cool; cut it from the cob; take any sized stone jar, put the corn in the jar with common salt; first a layer of salt half an inch, then a layer of corn two inches; pack closely; then half an inch of salt and two inches of corn, until the jar is filled; tie a cloth over the jar, and set it away. It will not form a brine, and will only take up a certain quantity of salt, so that there is no danger of putting too much on it. To prepare it for use, soak it over night in fresh water, remove the water in the morning, putting on it fresh water for a short time.

ALEXANDRIA INSTITUTE FOR YOUNG LADIES.

THIS Institution will open its third session on the FIRST MONDAY OF SEPTEMBER next.

Considering the short period which has elapsed since its establishment, it has met with a fair share of success; and the Principal, Mrs. G. A. CANFIELD, hopes, by assiduous attention and an increase of public patronage, to raise it, during the ensuing Term, to the first rank among Young Ladies' Seminaries in this or the adjoining States.

The want of a Select Female School has long been felt in this community—this want Mrs. CANFIELD purposes to supply, and she hopes that the people of Rapides will second her efforts by patronizing a Home Institution, instead of sending their children to build up schools in other Parishes.

Competent teachers in FRENCH and MUSIC have been employed, and a thorough course of ENGLISH studies will be gone through under the personal instruction of the principal.

TERMS PER MONTH:
English—Primary Class, $3 00
Intermediate Class, 4 00
