SATURDAY MORNING.....JAN. 24 1863

MURFREESBORO'.

BY LT.-COL. W. A. HAWKINS.

The red sun g o'er the hospital,
The moans of dying and pale—
The stiffened forms of friend and foe,
And the sobbing gale.

"Quietly, comrades—gently to the ground,"
But we knew that he would die,
While narrow filled our heavens then,
And wilder night, the sky.

The valleys of the mountaineer,
The vivid flash—the thunderous boom—
The dragged flags that come and go,
Where the gathered gloom.

The whirr of shot—the scream of shell,
The yell—the shock—the fierce charge,
While from his visions slow coursed away,
A soldier's proudest life.

Scarcely we heard the bugle's call,
Scarce felt the night wind's heavy breath,
We only saw the sunrise fall—
And the chill of ghastly death.

A pallid splendor touched his brow,
Like an angel's had loved crown,
And that in that murky sea of woe
Life's star sank slow y down.

He gave us in a fevered dream—
We felt his hand's hot clinging grasp,
Pulses also that in never more
Shall think Love's warm wring o'esp.

Dying he knew not where he lay,
He thought himself once more at home,
"Mother wife—dear child! I am here again,
Close to me—closer come!"

"Too hard, but oh! my country call'd
You would not, could not, have me stay;
But I've come home to you again,
No more to turn away."

"Sit here, sit here sweet wife, and place
Our little darling by the bed,
Take one hand to your lips, my own,
I'm cool on baby's head."

He raised—the blood gushed forth again,
The glazing eyes closed slowly o'er;
The pale lips gently sank apart,
To speak of Love no more.

His latest breath was borne away,
Like Music's plaintive dying swell
And thus he reached the golden arch
Of Heaven's citadel.

One clammy hand I held in mine,
And o'er it bowed a pleading prayer;
Beneath the other seemed to lie
A baby's golden hair.

LOST, STRAYED, &c.

STOLEN—$50 REWARD.—On Christmas morning, about daybreak, a very large and tall, dappled, green colored MARE, six years old, was stolen from my stable, in Chesterfield, five miles from Richmond. The Mare was tracked up the turnpike to within two miles of the coal pits, and two gentlemen coming towards Richmond said they met a negro man riding such a Mare, very fast in the direction of the pits. This Mare has very large feet, and the hind legs are very much bruised from kicking, and one hind foot, just above the hoof, quite sore and swollen, by being frequently struck by the shoe on the other foot. I will give $20 reward for the delivery of the said Mare at my stable.

STRAY.—Strayed from my stable, two days ago a light sorrel HORSE, with spots, white hind feet, blaze face, and very poor in flesh. It is likely he is at the place which I sold to Dr Johns, on Marion Hill, below Rocketts. A liberal reward will be paid if brought to me.

STRAYED OR STOLEN.—$150 REWARD.—On the night of the 5th January, three years old, slightly sway-backed; a dark bay Mare and a light bay Horse, were stolen, or strayed from Hanson's Division, while camped near Falling Creek, between Richmond and Petersburg. To any one delivering these horses to the Postmaster of Richmond, $150 reward will be paid, or $50 for either of them.

Description.

One small sorrel Horse, (thoroughbred,) 7 years old, slightly sway-backed; when you approach him appears very spiteful, but go directly up and he is not at all so.

One dark bay Mare, (small,) about 8 years old has a small white spot upon her back, caused by saddle galls, long mane and tail; also, has a running sore under her jaw; walks, trots, paces, and canters well.
