The mystery of the disappearance of William Cullen of Ashton has been solved. Cullen's body was found on Sunday in the James river near where he lived. Special from Flandreau of the 12th instant, says: Sheriff Cogley today arrested S. Christianson charged with killing N. Jensen. The facts in the case appear as follows. The Christianson had whipped Jensen's dog, whereupon Jensen, his wife and son attacked Christianson, who, with a club taken from Mrs. Jensen, struck Jensen on the head, causing his death. Christianson will have an examination tomorrow.

Spring Lake Star: Seven children from one family in Hand county, have died this spring from diphtheria. The family lived in a sod house, having a cellar, which was filled with turnips last fall and froze during the winter. Instead of removing them and purifying the cellar, they were allowed to decay. It is supposed the poison from the decaying turnips, created and fed the dread disease and caused the death of those children.

A little son of Treasur Anderson of the school district on the reservation south of Bismarck, recently shot a man who had entered the house in company with another, while his father was absent, and, pointing a revolver at the boy's mother, demanded money. Thoughtful Notes.

Affected simplicity is refined imposture.

The truly vailant dare everything but doing any other body an injury.

We esteem good sense and we love vanity; we do for the person we love more than for the person we esteem.

Excess of ceremony was always the companion of weak minds; it is a plant that will never grow in strong soil.

Courtage is evinced in words as much as in deeds, and in acts of omission not less than those of commission.

It is a great defect not to know how to make the most of our qualities; but what a great quality to know how to make the most of our defects!

No life can be well ended that has not been well spent; and what life has been well spent that has had no purpose, that has accomplished no object, that has realized no hopes?

Nature can do much to render a a countenance attractive, but character accomplishes far more. The beauty which is of feature merely catches the careless, wandering eye. The beauty which is the reflex of character holds the eye, and eventually wins the heart.

The hero who saves life does not catch the vulgar fancy like the hero who destroys it. Human sheep admire the butcher and chant his glory. Comparatively few know a hero when they see him, or even suspect that the loftiest deeds of true heroism are wrought around them every day.

There are three wicks to the lamp of a man's life—brain, blood and breath. Press the brain a little, its light goes out, followed by both the others. Stop the heart a minute, and out go all three of the wicks. Choke the air out of the lungs, and presently the fluid ceases to supply the other centres of flame, and all is soon stagnation, cold, and darkness.

There is a great deal of virtue in the five W's. Don't be ashamed to ask Why? or When? or Who? or Which? It was the philosopher Locke who, when he was asked how he had contrived to accumulate a mine of knowledge so rich, yet so extensive and deep, replied that he attributed what little he knew to not having been ashamed to ask for information, and to the rule he had laid down, of conversing with all sorts of men on those topics chiefly that formed their own peculiar profession or pursuit. And that road is open to everybody.
