NEW YORK MARKET

FINANCIAL

New York, Sept. 15.—Stocks moved to materially higher levels in the early period of today's broad dealings, on reports that the labor unions had reconsidered their steel strike order, but part of this gain was lost later when these reports met with qualified denials.

Another development which served to check the advance was the further slump of exchange rates to France and Italy, both falling to lowest quotations ever recorded in this market, with German bills.

Otherwise the trend of advices over the week-end was of a character calculated to sustain the substantial upward progress made in the final days of the preceding week.

Industrial centers reported decided increase of production in steel and iron, further contracts for equipment were said to be under negotiation by the railroad administration and railroad earnings gave promise of improvement.

Another event of interest and encouragement was the easing of time funds, these being shaded 5 per cent, as against the long prevailing six and even 6½ which borrowers were made to pay on the less acceptable collateral, call loans also relaxing moderately.

Although trading encountered many different issues, including rails, interest gradually concentrated in steel equipment, motors, oils, tobaccos and food shares, oils and tobaccos receiving best quotations toward the close, when the tendency elsewhere was towards moderate reactions. Sales amounted to 1,050,000 shares.

The bond market reflected many uncertain tendencies, chiefly due to heaviness of utilities and several of the leading rails, this being balanced, however, by the activity and strength of Liberty issues and the firmer tone of internationals. Sales (par value) aggregated $1,650,000. Old United States bonds were unaltered on call.

Liberty Bonds: 3½'s, $100; first 4's, $94.80; second 4's, $93.10; first 4¼'s, $94.90; second 4¼'s, $93.30; third 4¼'s, $95.24; fourth 4¼'s, $93.26; Victory 3¾'s, $99.86; Victory 4¾'s, $99.84.

Stock Market as seen by Bulls & Bears

New York, Sept. 15.—The news over Sunday led to the belief that the steel workers had postponed the strike call schdeuled for next week. As a result a fesh buying wave made its appearance and prices in all departments consequently advanced. Around midday the advance was checked following the publication of a statement credited to Mr. Gompers in substance contradicting the dispatches of the early day regarding the labor situation of the steel industry. This naturally places the steel situation in the same position as it was last week and the nervousness over the next move in this connection was responsible for the late selling of steel stocks. It expected, however, that something definite will result from the meeting scheduled to take place among the labor union leaders on Wednesday of this week, but in the meantime, irregularity will likely feature the dealings.

CHICAGO MARKET

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS

Chicago, Sept. 15.—Signs that, for the time being, liquidation was at an end, brought about a sharp rally, today, in the corn market after new crop deliveries had fallen to the lowest prices yet this season. The close was strong, half to 2½ net higher, with September $1.37⅛ and December $1.20⅛ to $1.20¼. Oats finished 1c to 1⅜c up and provisions varying from $1.50 decline to 40c advance.

The day was almost half over before Julius influences had any noticeable effect on corn. Notwithstanding reports that the steel strike had been postponed, corn values at first continued weak, dominated by agitation for lower food cost. Upturns in the value of hogs were also temporarily ignored. On the ensuing declines in the corn market, also temporarily changed into strong hands. Then, shorts hurried to cover, and during the rest of the day, the buying side was the favorite.

Oats swayed with corn. Considerable notice was taken of the Hoover statement that expert business was a matter of credits.

Seaboard buying of lard gave strength overcame weakness of pork and ribs.

Prices:

BALTIC PROVINCE IS SHRUNKEN CITY

Riga, Latvia, Has But 200,000 of 600,000 Pre-War Population Left.

By ARTHUR E. MANN

Riga, Sept. 15, via London.—Chicago Tribune Cable, Copyright.—"Ah, you are American, that is fine!"

So said the head porter of the hotel when I handed him my passport to take to the police station for registration. I had heard in Stockholm that Americans were the uncrowned kings of Riga, capital of the new state of Latvia, which used to be one of the Baltic provinces of the old ruined empire. But I thought this must be considerable exaggeration, until the close of the first day here.

Riga, after nearly five years of war, having suffered both German and bolshevik occupation, now is the city of lost souls, poverty, and until recently semi-starvation. The first evidence of the city's punishment I saw was when the steamer from Stockholm docked at 6 o'clock in the morning. Huge electric traveling cranes used for unloading and loading freight had been stripped of all their machinery. Only the bare iron framework remained.

I walked off the steamer behind another American delegate, Mrs. Tilda Anderson of Chicago. She is a Lettish woman and told me she came back to Riga to visit her aged parents whom she had not seen for twenty years.

Third of People Remain.

The first few hours in Riga are very depressing. You wander around the streets of the huge city which fed and housed 600,000 persons before the war, but which now shelters only 200,000.

In Paris women sometimes go stockingless as a fashion. In Riga I have already seen a number not only without stockings, but barefooted as well—not fashion or style, but dire necessity.

Walking in one of the city's beautiful parks, I saw a woman who, though poorly dressed, yet with well and carefully mended clothes, feverishly picked long, uncut grass and was stuffing it into two large sacks—probably for a horse or goats—entirely oblivious to the people hurrying past.

Few have good clothes here. Everybody is happy if they can look fairly respectable.

Shoes at Premium.

Shoes are at a premium. I have seen on the streets bedslippers, tennis shoes, canvas shoes, slippers with coiled rope soles, shoes which are principally uppers. All but the children of the wealthy families are going barefooted, while often their mothers do likewise. When you meet a woman wearing fresh looking dresses of the pre-war style, you turn around to stare after her as though she were a model from a fashionable Paris dressmaker.

I saw tonight a good example of the hunger of the people here for clothes and every article which a civilized community needs. At a corner on the main street was a brilliantly lighted store window surrounded by a huge crowd of men and women. When I had worked my way through the mob, I discovered that the shop had just received a supply of amusingly mixed goods, mostly second hand—American typewriters, several women's evening gowns, American lawnmowers, women's neck furs—a regular country store assortment. News of the wonderful exhibit had spread through the city and, standing there for fifteen minutes, I saw people walking briskly out from the side streets to see it.

Everything Riga and Latvia need can be bought in America.

PHYSICAL HYGIENE WAS UNKNOWN HERE

Montenegrins Believed Spirits Visited Them at Night Scattering Diseases.

Associated Press Correspondence.

Paris, Sept. 5.—Inhabitants of the mountains of Montenegro live in ignorance of the most elementary rules of hygiene and the strangest superstitions concerning diseases still flourish among them, says a report of the mission of the American Red Cross which has just returned from that country.

The mountaineers believed that physical ailments were carried on the wings of baleful breezes and that contagious diseases were distributed during dark nights by evil spirits. Thus they slept with their windows hermetically sealed and tuberculosis reigned supreme. The peasants received the advices, suggestions and medicine of the American Red Cross without enthusiasm.

One aged man suffering from chronic affection of the throat insisted that it was caused by his tongue being too small. He refused to make use of the antiseptic gargle supplied by the Red Cross until a doctor told him it would make his tongue grow. He was the most surprised Montenegrin in the world when after a few days he was cured.

JEWS PERSECUTED IN SCHOOL STRIKE; BEATEN AND JAILED

Rumanians Lend Hand in Rough Treatment; Religious Locks Shaved Off.

By JOHN CLAYTON.

Budapest, via Paris, Sept. 15.—(Chicago Cable, Copyright).—The Polytechnic school at Budapest was closed after a strike by the Christian students, who demand the exclusion of all Jews from the institution. The situation became serious, when several Jews were beaten. The minister of education immediately ordered the institution closed until the students "came to their senses."

The Rumanians surrounded the second and seventh district on the excuse of searching for arms. They returned with a hundred Galician Jews. They turned them over to the Hungarian police who released them, badly beaten.

The long curls of hair at the temple which mark the religious distinction of Galician Jews was shaved off.

The son of a rabbi was among those arrested. The rabbi declared he was offered his release for 600 kronen. When he could only produce 300 the soldier took that and shoved him into the waiting line. He was badly bruised about the head and back. One arm was broken and is blue and green from elbow to shoulder from the beating he suffered.

BISHOP TAKES RAP AT SHIMMY DANCE

Declares It Immoral, Sinuous and Lascivious Movement Worse Than Tango

Paris, Sept. 15.—Chicago Tribune Cable Copyright—The bishop of Bordeaux has issued a pronunciamento denouncing shimmy—which the French call Jazz.

The bishop refers to shimmy as "an immoral, sinuous, lascivious movement brought to Bordeaux from far beyond the seas," and adds that whereas he thought tango bad enough, shimmy is a great deal worse.

American sailors introduced Bordeaux to shimmy, and now every one in France knows the new movement. They also taught the shimmy to American boys who passed through Bordeaux on their way home, as shimmy became popular in the United States while many of them were abroad.

Paris critics are ignoring shimmy, which is spreading in popularity, and are concentrating their criticism upon jazz bands. French highbrows can't find enough things to say and write about Jazz bands, but they can't explain why jazz artists are among the best French society and why summer resorts are clamoring for jazz bands to dance by.

Sandals—exactly like the ancients wore—are the latest fad at Deauville for afternoon and evening wear. The sandals are equipped with long colored ribbons, which are criss crossed around the bare legs—as they go with the stockingless fad.

Incidentally, it is related that a certain American union now playing in Paris asked the French actresses why they don't form a union and strike for higher wages like the American chorus girls, who could not buy silk stockings on their former wages.

"Why do they wear stockings in America? Why don't they go bare-legged like we do, and they won't need more money to buy stockings," replied the French chorus girls.

Says Kaiser and Rent Hogs Will Get Theirs

Chicago, Sept. 15.—(Chicago Tribune Service.)—Dollar chasers, chasers of butterflies, rent hogs, the kaiser, sugar hoarders and like well-known types, are due to come back to earth shortly after they die and lead a mean existence.

"People like those," says C. H. Holland of Los Angeles, one of the trustees of the National Theosophical society of America, in convention here, are their own punishment. They will not go to a higher development of human being, because their lives have not been given over to self-purification and service.

"Until they lead what we call 'The Life' instead of what they call 'the life,' they cannot hope for perfection and the world, of course, is the loser."

Several hundred delegates from all over the country gathered for the first business meeting of the society.

Death is but the "next octave of light" in life, claims Mr. Holland, where, according to the purity of one's life on earth, one stays a long or short time, to be reborn a better or an unperfected human.
