Local and Personal.

Mr. B. F. Bush, general manager of the Roslyn coal mines, was a visitor to the city last Tuesday and expected to be on the Sound the most of the week. "Our mines were never doing better," said he, "and the men never seemed better pleased."

Mr. S. P. Freeman, an old Northwest pioneer, died in this city last Friday. Mr. Freeman was one of the first colored men that ever settled in Seattle and he has done some kind of business the greater part of the time he has been living in the city. His only son, Al, was at one time quite prominent in political affairs of the city, but lost his foothold and finally drifted away. He came up from Portland last Saturday to attend the funeral, which was held from the Episcopal church last Sunday, of which Mr. Freeman and his entire family were members.

Wanted: By a colored man and woman a place to do work in a private family. Woman good cook and man an all around handy man about the house. Apply at this office for further information.

Mr. L. C. Copeland of Tacoma was attending to business in the Queen City last Monday.

A letter from J. W. Riggs from Dawson City can be found in another column hereof.

Quite a few of the Afro-Americans of the city picniced at West Seattle last Tuesday and report a most enjoyable time. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Tutt, Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. John Robison, Mrs. J. T. Gayton and others.

Amusements.

SEATTLE THEATER.

The coming three weeks' engagement of the two popular stars, Clay Clement and L. R. Stockwell, commencing next Sunday evening at the Seattle theater, will be one fraught with much interest to local play-goers, both on account of the excellence of the plays to be submitted and the all-round excellence of the company. "The New Dominion," Mr. Clement's romantic comedy-drama, will be the opening play, with Mr. Clement in his incomparable portrayal of the Baron Von Hohenstauffen, and Mr. Stockwell as Napoleon Lafayette Randolph, an old colored retainer. Mrs. Clement will also be in the cast. Summer prices during this engagement; 300 seats lower floor, 50 cents; balcony 25 cents and 50 cents; gallery 15 cents.

THIRD AVENUE THEATER.

Unlooked for complications frequently arise when people fired with love's young dream seek a congenial partner through the medium of the matrimonial papers. This is what happens in the case of "The Real Widow Brown," a clean, farcial play bubbling over with jollity, which will be seen at the Third Avenue Theatre next week. In most plays the characters are made to bring about situations which are strained and unnatural, but in Mr. A. Q. Scammon's latest bid for public recognition old lines have been ignored. The real widow is impersonated by an audacious young man while another gay young man "makes up" an assumes to be an old deacon who believes he has found his affinity through the "Matrimonial Times," and with whom he has been in correspondence. The mistaken identities furnish excellent opportunities for fun and merriment. The situations and climaxes are irresistibly funny, and the combined efforts of a clever company of farceurs to amuse and create a vast deal of laughter is crowned with success. The music is bright and up to date, the costumes artistic, and the singing and dancing specialties uncommonly good.
