INTERESTING SOCIAL EVENTS

MISS BURKE, OF PRICE STREET, HONORED.

Tendered a Birthday Party by a Number of Her Friends—Anniversary of the Birth of Miss Leah Hughes Was Observed at Her Home on North Hyde Park Avenue—Fair Is to Be Held by the Columbia Chemical and Hose Company—Other News Notes.

Miss Mary Burke, of Price street, was tendered a birthday party last evening by a number of her friends. It was a most enjoyable event. The usual diversions were merrily indulged in. A cake walk, which evoked much laughter, was participated in by Miss Nellie Duddy and Thomas Burke and Miss Julia Malia and Frank Sheeds. A flashlight picture of the merry crowd was taken. At a late hour dainty viands were served.

Those present were: The Misses Elizabeth Malia, Mary Burke, Julia Malia, Mary Duddy, Mary Shields, Margaret Malia, and Messrs. John Duddy, Thomas Burke, Frank Shields, John Flynn, John and Edward Burke.

The home of Miss Leah Hughes, of 332 North Hyde Park avenue, was the scene of much pleasure last evening when a number of her intimate friends assembled and gave her a surprise party, in honor of the anniversary of her birthday. The evening was passed in a manner thoroughly enjoyed by all. Dancing and games were indulged, after which Mrs. Hughes served a delicious repast. Miss Leah received several handsome presents.

Among those in attendance were: Mr. and Mrs. John Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leese, Mr. and Mrs. William Hughes, Mrs. E. Burnell, and the Misses Ray Morgans, Jennie Hughes, Jessie Watkins, Ada Newnam, Sara Morgans, Bertha Wade, Sarah Lewis, Elsie Hughes, Ray Thomas, May Hughes, Lizzie Lewis, Sarah Evans, Lillian Watkins, Edith Jones, Mabel Evans, Ada Watkins, Dora Raymond, Bertha Thomas, Annie Watkins and Lillian Hughes, and Messrs. Edward James, John Hughes, George Thomas, Ezra Morgans, Willard Evans, James Thomas, Charles Welsh, James Whyte, Edward Wade, John Morgans, Will Raymond and David Hughes.

Free Trip to Buffalo.

The Electric City Wheelmen met in regular monthly session last evening and dealt with considerable business pertaining to the social and financial welfare of the club. The treasury needs replenishing, and the members have set about to accomplish the task in a rather unique manner. They will chance off at their home at a future date a free passage to the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo, entitling the holder to a visit of ten days, with all expenses paid, the sum expended each day not to exceed $4. If the person holding the lucky ticket does not desire to avail himself of this opportunity, he will receive the sum of $50.

J. W. Bunnell, caterer and treasurer of the club, resigned, prior to his departure from the city. Thomas Stevens has been engaged as club steward. The vacancy in the treasurership will be filled at the next meeting. Five new members were accepted last evening.

At the conclusion of the business session a smoker was held.

To Hold a Fair.

Those well known fire fighters, the Columbia Chemical and Hose company, are contemplating holding a fair and festival for a period of two weeks in the near future. The ways and means committee have reported favorably upon the idea and the matter will be definitely settled on Monday evening, when the members will meet in regular monthly session at their hose house. There are many matters to come before the company, of considerable importance to every member, all of whom should make it a point to attend.

The members of the Columbias are all active, young and genial good fellows and should they attempt such an affair would make a decided success of it. It is one of the largest and most competent companies in the department and the residents of this side feel proud of it.

Their response to fire alarms are always prompt, and the public appreciation should be shown by a liberal patronage at their fair.

CATHOLIC HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

Paper on the Church and the Languages by Prof. M. H. Jordan.

At last night's meeting of the Catholic Historical Society and Newman Magazine club a very interesting and able paper on "The Church and the Languages" was read by Prof. M. H. Jordan, of the High school. The Catholic church, he contended, had always fostered the old languages, the Greek and Latin, and it is in a large part due to this fostering care, he said, that they were still preserved in all their original beauty.

Miss Eva Barrett read a carefully prepared paper on "Christianity and Women," in which she spoke of the contrast between the condition of woman in the pagan nations before the birth of Christ and her position today in the civilized world. This remarkable change, she said, was almost wholly due to the refining influences of the Christian religion.

Miss Isabelle Clarke rendered several contralto solos in a pleasing manner, and a most delightful social hour was enjoyed by the members.

MATCH WAS POSTPONED.

Wilkes-Barre Bowlers Failed to Appear at the Elk Alleys.

Local bowling enthusiastes, who looked forward with considerable gusto to last night's scheduled bowling match on the Elk alleys between the home team and the West End Wheelmen, of Wilkes-Barre, were doomed to disappointment, as the Luzernites failed to appear.

This is the second match which they have postponed and comment is rife among the leaguers regarding the cause for this. Last Thursday the Elks were to have played on the Wilkes-Barre alleys, but the wheelmen sent up word that their team was in no condition to play.

It is unfortunate that the league season must be thus prolonged. The Wilkes-Barre men have bowled fewer games than any team in the league, and it will be necessary to roll off the postponed games on other than scheduled nights.

OBITUARY.

James B. Nicholson.

James B. Nicholson, secretary of the Grand lodge of Pennsylvania, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, died at Philadelphia, Monday. He was 81 years old. Mr. Nicholson was one of the most prominent Odd Fellows in the country. For nearly a half-century his life was devoted to the interests of the order, and he was well known by many of the Odd Fellows of this city.

Mr. Nicholson was also a leading figure in the Masonic order. He was a well known speaker and a writer. Lectures, in 1896, he published an extensive manual for beekkeepers entitled "Art as Beekkeeping." This book was well received.

While delivering a speech on "Odd Fellowship," at Bayonne, in 1897, Mr. Nicholson was stricken with paralysis. For a time his family believed that on account of his advanced age he would not recover from this illness. In a short time, however, he was again able to take his work in the order.

The aged secretary was apparently in good health until a week ago, when he became very ill at his office in Odd Fellows' temple. A consultation of physicians was held and it was announced that he partook had developed Bright's disease. He died shortly before 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Nicholson was of distinguished parentage. He was born in St. Louis, January 28, 1820. His father, John Nicholson, a botanist, made the first herbarium for the Pennsylvania committee of ways and later created under contract for the Continental congress. In 1848 Mr. Nicholson removed to Philadelphia, where Nicholson established the firm of Parson & Nicholson, lace makers.

About thirty years ago Mr. Nicholson was an active worker in the Democratic party, running for office in Philadelphia. Twice he was a candidate for congress on the Democratic ticket in the old Fourth congressional district, against the late Judge Kelley. He was defeated in both contests. For nineteen years he was identified with Chosen Friends' lodge, No. 189, Independent order of Odd Fellows, and late in life was elected grand master of the order in Pennsylvania. Ten years later he was elected grand sire. Since then he was a resident of the grand lodge. Mr. Nicholson is survived by three sons, Colonel John P. Nicholson, Howard B., and Clarence G. Nicholson.

Timothy Garvey.

Timothy Garvey passed away at the home of his daughter, Mrs. F. J. Mangan, 502 Jackson street, last night, at 8.30 o'clock. He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. F. J. Mangan, and two sons, Thomas P. and William, all of this city. Funeral announcement later.

Funerals.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Hart will be held this morning at 9 o'clock. Services will be conducted at St. Patrick's church. Interment in the Cathedral cemetery.

Services over the remains of the late Edward Hogan, sr., will be conducted this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence, on South Main avenue. Burial in Washburn street cemetery.

CONDENSED BEER.

Beverage in Form of a Jelly Distributed to British Troops.

From The New York Sun.

A curious experiment was made during the campaign in South Africa with apparently successful results. Tommy Atkins loves his beer and would severely feel the deprivation if he could not get it. Some ingenious person in England conceived the idea of condensing beer and making a jelly of it. In this form a considerable quantity was sent to South Africa and distributed among the British troops.

All they had to do when they wished to wet their whistles was to add a sufficient quantity of water to a portion of jelly which dissolved and turned the liquid into very palatable beer. In fact, Tommy declared that he could not detect the slightest difference between this beer and that found in the top rooms he is accustomed to patronize. Perhaps something must be allowed for Tommy's imagination; but at any rate the British soldier is perfectly certain that condensed beer is a great deal better than no beer at all. It has, however, one little drawback. It costs more than ordinary beer and if it is not served to Mr. Atkins as a part of his rations it is likely to deplete his slender income.

MONARCHY IS CHEAPEST.

Our Government More Expensive Than That of Great Britain.

Queen Victoria's civil list was fixed in 1837 at £385,000; the whole of the royal grants amount to £464,000, and the salary of the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, paid as it is, in Irish currency, does not much exceed £18,500 a year, says a London correspondent. If, therefore, we deduct from this the actual value of the Crown lands and the smaller hereditary revenue of £28,000 a year, we find that the whole cost of the sovereign is less than £387,000 a year as against the civil list of the Emperor of Austria, which amounts to £750,000 a year, and the Czar of Russia, who costs his devoted subjects £2,000,000 annually.

If we compare the cost of our government with that of France, which pays its deputies, its senators and its president no less than £800,000 annually, or with that of the United States, which pays its president, its senators and its representatives £900,000 a year, we are forced to the conclusion that a monarchy is cheaper than a republic. Beyond this, it has been calculated that the American presidential election dislocates business every four years to such an extent as to cause a national loss of something like £1,000,000. Our country is, as matters stand, the most economically administered in the whole civilized world.
