MESSRS. JAS. S. COWAN & CO., WILMINGTON, N. C., have in store a tremendous stock of Saddlery, Harness, Trunks, Valises, Leather, House Furnishings of every kind, Saddler's and Harness maker's tools and findings, &c., and are daily manufacturing Saddles, harness, whips, collars, &c.—See their card.

We are requested by the delegates from Robeson county who attended the senatorial convention at Fair Bluff, on the 6th inst., to express their thanks to the citizens of Fair Bluff for the hospitable manner in which they were entertained by them during their visit.

Harness, Saddles, Trunks, Whips, Collars, &c., &c., at Norment's.

It is now almost absolutely certain that the Cincinnati platform, at least, will be indorsed at Baltimore, and either Greeley will be adopted as the candidate of the Democrats, or a new ticket will be put in the field with a view to a more thorough and complete consolidation of all the elements opposed to Grant. It is now evident that no search or intercourse will be tolerated.

DRESS GOODS—A new assortment at T. A. Norment's.

COLORED REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.—The colored republicans of Robeson will hold a convention in the Plain, to which all friends of the colored people are heartily invited.—R.

If you want a cheap hat, buy them from Norment.

Attention is invited to the new advertisement of Messrs. Williams & McPherson, Wholesale Grocers, Wilmington, N. C.

Mr. Franch McQueen desires to employ five good hands.—See his ad.

Two of the "BLADES" correspondents, supporters in this town, Willis Parnes and J. T. Pulford, were nominated on the ballot first, on Saturday last, and after the convention adjourned a prominent colored radical was heard to declare that though they had made no nomination for Senator the action of Dr. Norment would heal their ticket.

See card of Atlantic Fire Insurance Company of Cincinnati, of which Mr. A. W. Fuller is Agent in this town. The Atlantic is a first class company, and our citizens should be better than to leave their property with Mr. Fuller.

Hats for sale very cheap.—Call and price them.

T. A. NORMENT.

All of the fashionable styles of summer shoes at C. A. Trick's Live Boot and Shoe Store, Corner Front and Market streets, Wilmington, N. C.

Corn, Bacon, Flour, &c., &c., at Norment's.

Attention is directed to the card of Raleigh Female Seminary, in another column. Prof. Hobgood, the Principal, is one of the first scholars in the State, and the success of the Seminary under his management is the best guaranty of his capacity and fitness for the position he occupies. During the past session there were more than one hundred young ladies in attendance, and we learn there is good prospect of a large increase for the next session.—It is a first class school and we are glad to see it prospering.

Within the last two weeks the Wilmington N. C. Life Insurance Company has issued about twenty policies to citizens of this town and vicinity.

See new advertisements of F. W. Kerchner, Wilmington, N. C. Mr. Kerchner is well known to our people as one of the largest dealers and most liberal and accomodating merchants of the city.

NORTH CAROLINA DIRECTORY.—We are indebted to Rev. L. Branson, editor and proprietor of the North Carolina Directory, for a copy of that most valuable production, for 1872. Every professional and business man ought to possess a copy of it, as it is filled with useful information regarding the State that cannot be procured from any other source. The price is exceedingly low, at $2.

BLASTING POWDER.—We have received No. 2 of a campaign paper the publication of which has just been started at Raleigh, under the above title, by John Spelman, Esq., late associate editor of the "Sentinel."

"Blasting Powder" is published in the interest of the conservative party, and wears no gloves when it handles the radical corruptionists. The editorials are written in Spelman's best style, and are strong, incisive caustic and exhaustive—not to the infinitary alone, but to the whole radical system.

REF. Dr. R. M. Norment, of Robeson, is out as an independent candidate. Cause—disappointed ambition.—Goldsboro Messenger.

Dr. F. W. Potter has been appointed Quarantine Physician at Smithville, vice Dr. W. G. Curtis. The appointment was made by Gov. Caldwell.

WANTED.—A FIRST-CLASS BARBER to locate in this town. Splendid inducements offered. Apply at once, as it is a rare opportunity.

We were pleased to receive a call on yesterday from Mr. G. B. Townsend, of this county, who has just returned from Trinity College, where he graduated at the commencement on the 13th inst., with second distinction in a class of eleven young men.

The Latin Salutatory delivered by him on the occasion is spoken of as a scholarly and creditable production.

First Cotton Blossom Robeson! All the Apes!!!

Mr. Ed McQueen, of the firm of Messrs. Godwin & McQueen, of this town, laid on our table yesterday two perfectly developed cotton blooms plucked on Tuesday in a little plantation of H. G. Mitchell, Esq., near Fairville in this county. These blooms were taken from a field of forty acres, the whole of which is in full bloom. Hurrah for Robeson, INSANE.—C. S. Powell, Esq., a very intelligent and promising young man, of Columbus county, was on Saturday brought to the Lunatic Asylum for medical treatment.

Mr. Powell was a student at Wake Forest College, and the first indication of his failing mind was discovered by the Professors to be a College in Prayer. Doubtless the disorder to have been the result of hard study, his parents were advised to take him home and put him to manual labor, which was accordingly done. The experiment proved highly beneficial, and strong hopes of his recovery were entertained.

He attended the Baptist Convention at its session in this city in May last, and during a discussion in that body on the subject of Foreign Missions, Mr. Powell was seized with a fit of insanity and had to be removed from the church. Since that time he imagines himself specially called to the work of African missions, and insists upon being permitted to enter at once upon his calling.

He was admitted to the Asylum, where under the excellent treatment of Dr. Grissom it is to be hoped he will soon recover.—Ral. News.

School Examination at Bryan's Chapel, Brunswick County. Interesting Occasion.

Yesterday, I witnessed a most interesting scene. It was the closing exercises of an "old field" school, at Bryan's Chapel, Brunswick county. The occasion was truly one of the most interesting it was ever our good fortune to attend. To one who is wearied with the engrossing pursuits of life and the busy concerns of mankind, there is something so refreshing and delightful about these pleasing interludes to care and toil. Gloom and ennui, giving place to recollections of faded and forgotten pageantries of other days. And yesterday the occasion was so peculiarly impressive with such a power; everything was so natural and pleasant, so innocent and gay. There was no ostentatious display of pomp or wealth.—Thoughtful courtesey and whole-souled liberality were the presiding divinities. A cordial greeting and a good old-fashioned shake of the hand was extended to all. There was none of the sickening formality which is sometimes dignified with the name of politeness.—Everybody was agreeable, sociable, smiling and pleasant, and the day passed off without even a ripple to disturb the flowing tide of pleasure. The grounds of this splendid entertainment were delightful, affording a cool and pleasant scenery. The arrangement of things was novel and pleasing to an imagination susceptible to the impressions of things natural. Instead of gilded frames and splendid and costly hangings of extravagance still the walls of the little school room were artistically ornamented by the most pleasing variety of wild wood beauties. The little rostrum which stood like a growing balustrade in front of the building, and from which the juvenil orators delighted an admiring auditory, was the work of splendid taste. And the grounds were so white and shady, and the spirits of girls and boys ward so light, and there was something so cheering in those little peals of laughter that occasionally broke upon the passing air and floated away among the forest pines. And there was a long pine table extending along the shade of a grouped trees and burdened with a tempting display of all kinds of delicacies which imparted a regaling fragrance to the scene. As three in the evening the report was over, and then followed the merriest frolicsome of all the closing scenes of the school, the examination and spelling of the little boys and girls; and I must say, aside from any university attempt at announced cology, that the examination was in every way a most brilliant success and reflects much credit on the efforts of the accomplished teacher, Miss Ann McFadyen. At the close of the exercises Dr. A. H. Robbins was invited to address the school, which he did in a very elegant, appropriate and delightful manner.

[For the Robesonian.]

MR. EDITOR—I regret exceedingly that your files, strictures, improvement and "smallest for attack has rendered it necessary for me to resort to the columns of your paper to vindicate myself; nor would I do so now if the ROBESONIAN did not circulate outside of Robeson county.—But as you have kindly granted me a small space in the columns of your paper, I will, in as brief a manner as possible, endeavor to set myself right before the public, and answer certain charges which appeared in the editorial department of the ROBESONIAN of the 1st July, 1872, which every selfing and I have convinced with on "the subject—conservative, as it, that—pronounce false, slanderous, unpromoted and unscrupulous.

I stand precisely where I did two years ago, when I received such a flattering indorsement of my course by the people of Robeson county, while you were working your press at the lower end of the county, trying to keep Hills Point Rockers, which was consolidated, and to defeat Col. A. M. Waddell, our talented member of congress, but the whole county ticket, and there is not votes in the county in Robeson—a democratic or republican—but will tell you that it was my vote and influence at that campaign. I introduced the resolution which was, if I may be allowed to speak of it, a most honored one, with a seat in the Court of Academy, the moment I entered the Senate chamber, I would know no party, but would labor for the welfare and general prosperity of all, irrespective of race, color or previous condition.—I believe I have honestly and faithfully redeemed that pledge—for the truth of which I appeal to the journals of the Senate.

It is true, I expect the support of the larger portion of the republican party, and I expect it, too, without sacrificing a single principle of conscience, when my political course, which has been one of which in justice to all is conceded, is that of my opponent, who declared in a public speech a few years ago that the colored man ought not to have the right to vote, and that he did not want them to vote for him.—It is not true that I labored assiduously to secure my nomination by the Fair Bluff convention.—I challenge one to give the name of a single delegate that was appointed by the Lumberton convention, that I approached in my own behalf at all, and I never saw but one delegate from Columbus county, and him accidentally; I am for Sol. par for par. ... I was labouring spending my money in the interest of the conservative party and a friend, and I think I could say they as politically, thought and have remembered as they could. No, I saw that you say one or two others—and only one or two—were there I had to defeat my nomination, and I not conceded to have nothing to say. Numbers of my friends—and they are my friends yet—voluntarily offered to get passes, and go to Fair Bluff in my interest. I was urged by parties from both counties, to go to the convention and use my personal influence against certain combinations, but I was too independent for that. It was known that I would yield my claims to any good man they might nominate from Columbus; but I do say, with all modesty, that if the candidate was to be from Robeson county I was the choice, and they expected me to get it, or at least, my name would be before the convention, of over two-thirds of the conservative party of Robeson.

It is not true that there "is not in this town a single recognized, reliable conservative who supports the preposterous claims of this selfish and reckless disorganizer." I think I can claim at least half, and they are not backward in letting it be known. It is not true that I have "ignominiously deserted and betrayed" my party; as Nathan said unto David thou art the man who have not only betrayed me and the party, but Columbus county.

Now, Mr. Editor, I am done. I hope I will not be constrained to appear again in the columns of your paper; all I ask is justice and fair play.

"Some men are born great, and some have greatness thrust upon them."—I belong to neither of these classes. I have no piece of parchment to attest my claims to scholastic honors, or college catalogue to wait my name down to posterity.—No great amount of money, or great friends to hold me up; all I have ever accomplished has been by hard work. I beg my fellow citizens of the 15th Senatorial district to suspend their judgment until they can hear my opponent and myself. Respectfully,

R. M. NORMENT.

Letter from Texas—Its Advantages and Disadvantages.

DEAR ROBESONIAN.—According to promise I give my ideas in regard to the "Lone Star" State through your pages. Texas has always been held up by correspondents in the most glowing manner; and while they have over-told in the most laudable way the advantages arising from emigration—both to the emigrant and the State—I have never yet seen any disadvantages spoke of in depicting the Garden spot of the world." Texas, it is true, has some fair advantages over the old States, but they have some I know as fair and preeminent over Texas. The emigrant comes here from the old States expected from infancy in the school of adversity—that home which makes life pleasant—and if he be not fortunate enough to locate in a settlement of home people, I will assure him to be kept at a ... spiritual distance for a time, which would naturally discourage him, for the ties to ever so fair, will there are exceptions to this rule in Texas—and I am glad (Long Polly) is one—but as a common thing it is as I have stated. I write these things from what I myself have seen, coupled with what others have told me who have been in this State fifteen years, and have made right to know.

Lands here are finer, the best for cotton and corn, varying with the exception of Hyde county, N. C., in the world. The labor is ... the climate or some other influence over the human system makes farmers and all to become careless, and they grow rich slowly. I do not know of any who have got wealthy by farming in Texas.—Land-owners grow rich from the rise in price of land; others by stock raising, and as I said, few from actual labor. Stock raising however, is getting to be a poor business here. The fine muskito grass, which a few years ago covered the prairies, has almost entirely disappeared—choked out, I am told, by weeds and thistles.

Texas is flooded with professional men—or those who think to be—and this is not good ... Lawyers are often found upon with a much smaller ... Thus county (Washington) I suppose has off to settlement almost as many in the State, and for wealth in real and personal property. I don't think any state ... in Texas equal to—and I have been to no other only Austin and Galveston, and I have seen here beggars and what I call begging charity, than I ever did in the Old States to my life. The State, dear Robesonian, suits just the class of people; let those who have money, for they can invest and make the "Lone Star" in a short time, fully equal to any State in the Union. Let those who have a family and little money, stay in the old States, or at least within the parish bounds, if they can work.—But I know there are some who are "hard headed," I would say, stay where you think of it, of course, have you all and still money, bring here a family, and by industry and economy you will succeed. Texas will support twice the State with ... and still have ... and still have ...

POLITICS IN TEXAS

are democratic Democratic.—I mean the best part of the ... went the "Lone Star" State in 1860. Gov. Davis is a mulattoe, a desciple of W. W. Holden, and asserts all power, as did that old scoundrel. I think he must have been in correspondence with Holden, and has been advised how to act. Last week he demanded the keys of the Treasurer's office, at the same time declaring it vacant, and no reason assigned, more than that he (the Treasurer) was a Democrat—that he (Davis) "knew the woodbine twineth" next election—and I might say the chances are that he will travel that way before the election.—There is considerable excitement in regard to his action in the premises, all over the State. Honest Democracy will receive the Democratic vote nearly all into in Texas. If the Radicals in Congress ... do not put ... conditions. The action of this convention is looked forward to with a considerable interest here.

We are having "spring cars" in peas, cabbage, beets and potatoes, and just this moment a gentleman came to my ... and ... a turnip measuring 36 inches in diameter. But he was to ... the State of Alabama, and knows how ... can't figure his ... I will ... you and that turnip!

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

Cape Fear Academy, Maysville N. C. May 22, 1872.

The pupils of Cape Fear Academy, Bladen, N. C. being assembled in the Hall of the Institution, the following resolutions were presented and unanimously adopted.

Resolved 1. That we here this day heard with deep regret and unfeigned sorrow, that our friend and fellow pupil, John D. Tait, who, but a few days since, left us with a fair prospect of speedily recovered health and a restoration to our society, is now no more.

Resolved, 2. That while we are at a loss for language to express how deeply we lament his unexpected departure, yet we recognize the sovereign right of the great Ruler to dispose of his creatures as seemeth him good, and to his dispensations, though dark and inscrutable to us, we bow with meek submission.

Resolved 3. That in the decease of John D. Tait, our Institution has sustained a loss that is felt to be severe and heavy in no ordinary degree—that he was a model of gentlemanly, upright, amiable, christian deportment—that he possessed talents and application, which under God's blessing, would in time have raised him to eminence as a scholar and member of society—that, for better than this, he possessed a high-toned religious character, which might justly be the pride of his parents as well as the model of his schoolmates.

Resolved, 4. That we tender our heart-felt sympathies to his sorrowing parents and brothers and sisters, in this sad hour of affliction, assuring them of our consoling belief that our loss is an eternal gain.

PUPILS OF CAPE FEAR ACADEMY.

In this county, on the 14th inst. of cancer in the mouth, Mrs. Olive Tyner, relict of Wm. Tyner, dec'd, in the fifty seventh year of her age.

Sister Tyner had been a consistent member of the Regular Baptist church for about 30 years. She leaves four sons and two daughters to mourn the loss of a kind and affectionate mother. Sister Tyner leaves the evidence that, though her children and friends may mourn her loss, that their loss is her eternal gain.

"Dearest sister, thou has left us—
How thy loss we deeply feel—
But 'tis God who hath bereft us—
He can all our sorrows heal.

Yield, Reverer, please copy.

At the residence of his brother, Col. Nat McLean, near this town, on the 18th inst., Mr. Archibald McLean, in the 60th year of his age—He languished and suffered with christian resignation and patience on the bed of affliction for eleven long years—At last, he rests in peace.
