THE TIMES DID IT.

Washington, D. C., December 3, 1902.

To the Washington Times Co.:

Dear Sir: I feel under obligations to your admirable paper for having been instrumental in aiding me to recover the possession of a valuable gold locket with diamond setting, which I recently lost from my watch chain. This locket was not only intrinsically, but personally, valuable to me.

I was discouraged by friends from exerting any efforts to recover the same because of its value and the ease with which it could be converted into money. I, however, concluded to advertise for it three times in The Washington Times, which caused the return thereof. It was found by Mr. Charles Rollins, of 2307 7th Street N. W., who considerately restored it to me. Respectfully,

LOUIS P. SHOEMAKER.
