We make a specialty of handling second-hand cars, and when we invest our money in them we examine them with the utmost precaution, as we would be the loser in the long run by making an enemy out of a buyer, but we have learned that a satisfied customer is the best reference.

Don't experiment; buy a high-grade slightly used car that has been tried out and found true at about half the price of a new one. We have this week to offer the finest line of 1910 cars that have ever been offered south of Philadelphia.
