BOOKLET TELLS OF TOURNAMENT PLANS

Bowlers of the Country to Receive Complimentary Literature Boosting Local Event.

By KIRK C. MILLER.

A unique piece of literature regarding the purposes of the Atlantic Coast Bowling Association and presenting in tangible form the proposals of the coming tournament to be held in Washington, starting on April 3, is today off the press, and in a few days every member of the association will be mailed one of these attractive booklets.

Sixteen pages of information relative to the completeness of the plans for the tournament give the facts regarding the "three-way" event to the bowlers in concrete form, and these are to be scattered broadcast throughout the bowling world for the express purpose of boosting Washington's tenpin-candlepin-duckpin tournament. It is giving credit where credit is due to mention that the booklets are complimentary to the bowlers from the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company, who, in the final analysis, are to be the greatest beneficiaries from all tournaments.

In the attractive pamphlet is the picture of one of Washington's most sincere tournament workers, H. B. Halley, who is assistant secretary of the tournament company.

The deft hand of Burton L. Mank is seen in the editing and general attractiveness of the edition.

"Pop" Halley declared himself winner of the royal tournament, which has covered a period of many weeks and which brought out one of the largest fields of competition that has characterized a recent tournament. In the finals he won from "Bernie" Bontz, in a series of five games by a total of 556 against 542. The games:

Halley	113	97	120	120	106	556
Bontz	85	109	98	146	108	542

A team of Alexandria duckpin bowlers will roll the Southwest Stars at Alexandria tomorrow night. The clubs will line-up as follows: Alexandria—Thornhill, Dunbar, Kraft, Robertson, Minor, Mumday, and Moore. Southwest—Fowler, Holtman, Knupp, Murphy, Allen, F. Baum, George.

One hundred hard working A. C. B. A. members have been secured by Joseph McCann from the Knights of Columbus League. These men have been put on on Chairman Ernest Dulin's membership committee, and as a league they will solicit further memberships to the active organization.

It is expected that the Knights can be very instrumental in securing members among their brothers in bowling and fraternal circles of Baltimore, who will engage in a series of duckpin matches soon. The energetic McCann also secured further application blanks from Dulin and promises another "club of 100" before many weeks. The new members are:

VIRGINIA PRIMED TO MEET C. U. TOSSERS

Charlottesville Basketball Team Improving Under Tutelage of "Pop" Lannigan.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Jan. 20.—When the Virginia basketball team meets the Catholic University quint here Saturday night a battle royal is expected. The Washingtonites always give Virginia a run for her money, and reports from the Capital City would indicate that it has a good team this year. Catholic University went to Annapolis the other night, and nearly beat Navy on its own floor, which is quite an accomplishment.

Virginia is improving under the care of "Pop" Lannigan, the well loved coach and trainer, but there is yet room for improvement. To date she has played three college teams, George Washington, West Virginia, and Richmond College, winning handily over the trio. Her work has also improved in each game. Against West Virginia, which had just defeated Washington and Lee, she registered 36 to the visitors' 21. In this contest Stocking and Stickley showed up in form, while Joe Bailey, the new forward who is taking Big Bill Nichols' place, showed signs of really being able to replace last year's priceless goal tosser.

If Catholic University does win from the Charlottesville team on January 22, it will be the first time in five years that it has taken Virginia on her home floor. Year before last she defeated Virginia in Washington, last year lost both places, and this season is thirsting for vengeance. She has a better chance of obtaining it than in the last few years. When the two old rivals get together there will be a final fight.

Peace Party Disclaims Non-Enlistment Pledge

Disclaimer of any responsibility for a "non-enlistment pledge," said to have been distributed at the recent mass meeting, is made by the District branch of the Woman's Peace party.

At a meeting of the District branch, at the New Willard, it was voted "to disclaim all knowledge of and responsibility for the non-enlistment pledge said to have been distributed at their recent mass meeting, and to seek the same publicity through the press for this disclaimer as was given the accusation against them."

"Speedy" Rush Boasts Record as an Athlete

Princeton Football Coach Had "Potato Stride" When He Entered Track Sports—Nevertheless, He Could Cover Century in Great Time.

By ARTHUR ROBINSON.

There are as many surprises in this sporting life as there are in the life of an attractive ballet dancer. Maurice McLoughlin, a tennis player who, it was generally thought, had no bad habits, took to golf. Two days after this was discovered and exposed, Phil Carter, a young golfer, but a boy who ought to know better, won a tennis prize. This was very encouraging to those who hoped that the boy would ultimately make a man of himself.

These were surprises of an astonishing nature, but they paled into insignificance when it was learned that Billy Johnson, the national tennis champion and the conqueror of McLoughlin, Williams and Behr, had been stricken down with golf. Those who regarded Johnson's affliction in a charitable way, and diagnosed it, attributed his breakdown to a youthful mind and an impaired physique. The latter, seemingly, is a requisite of all golfers.

And now it develops that there is some justification for John Harland Rush's nickname, "Speedy." This, to our mind, is the greatest surprise of them all, and staggering. We ourself are on speaking terms with the well-known Mr. Shaner, who is called "Skinny" because he is fat, and we also know of an unusually tall fellow who is called "Shorty." But Rush's nickname—that, as they say, takes the cake. He really was speedy when he went to school.

Grinnell College—you've probably never heard of the place and do not know where it is, and neither do we—was the school of his crime. He went in for sprinting in his first year, which was 1906, and four years later, at Chicago—in 1909, as you may have guessed—ran the "100" in 9 4-5 and the "220" in 21 4-5. Those were unusual performances in those days, but are, nevertheless, absolutely authentic. They are on the record.

When Rush entered Grinnell it was thought he was in no danger of ever becoming a star all-around athlete. He was long-legged, awkward, and, being a farmer boy, was possessed of what is technically known as the "potato stride." He walked and ran as if he were cutting across a potato patch, but after considerable coaching by Jack Watson conducted himself on the track somewhat like a human being.

He discharged his scholastic obligations so well that in appreciation of his thorough knowledge of the Greek and mathematical record books and the rest of the sporting guides one studies at college, Rush was pronounced the greatest all-around athlete in the history of Grinnell athletics. His ability in almost every other line of sport, however, must have had something to do with it. But of this we are not quite certain.

It has been said of the present Princeton coach that he never played football. If the indictment were properly presented, "Speedy"—let's call him that—would undoubtedly plead guilty, and you would accept his plea, unless you refused to concede that the game they play at Grinnell is football, or distantly related to it. But suppose we give him the worst of the doubt—suppose we say that he played at football and let it go at that.

Rush was only eighteen years old when he entered Grinnell, and he showed it by going out for the football team in his freshman year. And he made it, despite the fact that he weighed only 150 pounds. But as a football player it may always be said of him that he did mighty well as the 1915 Princeton coach, and equally well at the University School of Cleveland, where he developed Charley Barrett, of Cornell; Mal Scovill, of Yale, and Bob Hogsett, of Dartmouth.

He also made the baseball team, but there does not appear in the record any evidence of his ever forgetting to touch second base. Such things, however, never do creep into the box scores, not that Rush was ever implicated in such a scandal, but simply as a matter of fact. He was the Sam Crane of Grinnell baseball. As a batter he was a wonderful base runner and fielder. Never did he umpire.

"Speedy" went into other branches of athletics besides football, baseball and track. He coached the basketball team while an undergraduate, and was, according to one of his biographers, a whale with the rifle and shotgun and a shark at pool and billiards. These forms of athletics, especially the latter two, were not in the Grinnell curriculum. Nor did the professors teach these students after school. They don't have that sort in small towns.

But, as we have said, there are as many surprises in this sporting life as there are in the life of an attractive ballet dancer. "Speedy" Rush is one of them, but, so far as we know, not in the life of any ballet dancer. He isn't that good looking.

GIRL NOT MISSING NUN; FREED IN BALTIMORE

Proves She Is Not Fugitive from Convent, but Keeps Identity Secret.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 20.—After a private talk with Judge Dobler and the State's attorney, the young woman who was arrested here at the request of the Philadelphia police, was allowed to go free, her identity still a mystery.

This much she established to the satisfaction of the judge and district attorney. That she is not the novice whose name before she entered St. Joseph's Convent, of North Philadelphia, was Rose Haggerty, and that she is not even a Catholic. She persistently refused to disclose her real name, and Judge Dobler protected her in her right.

Detective Joseph C. Shay, of Philadelphia, who gave the description of the missing novice which tallied to the minutest to the girl who was arrested here, admitted she is not the missing novice.

Back Broken, Doctor Now Walks, Unsupported

PHILADELPHIA, July 20.—Dr. "Jim" Keath, the Jefferson Medical College student whose back was broken two years ago when he fell from a third-story window, is able to walk alone today. Surgeons and nurses congratulated him as he proceeded 100 feet along a corridor of Jefferson Hospital.

Just after the fall his life was despaired of by the surgeons, but his pluck, they say, carried him along. After a time he could sit up, and after that he was wheeled in a chair every day to and from the recitation room.

At his graduation last June he was carried to the platform to receive his diploma.

Has No Speaking Plans, Says Bryan, in Florida

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 20.—"I am enjoying the winter here," said W. J. Bryan today when asked concerning the plan proposed by certain pacifists to follow President Wilson's preparedness stump tour, with Bryan as their star attraction.

"I have no plans for speaking at present," was all he would add.

The Safest Investment
Are those that do not fluctuate during disturbed conditions of the money or stock markets. First deed of trust notes (first mortgages), well secured on real estate in the District of Columbia, constitute "gilt-edge" investments. They do not depend upon the financial responsibility of individuals or corporations for their stability, and are exempt from taxation as personal property. We can supply such investments in amounts from $500 upward. Send for booklet "Concerning Loans and Investments."
