Attaining Stardom by Motor Fashion---Not Rule in Filmdom

Mary Pickford Can Drive Her Own Car, and Charlie Chaplin Can Also.

BUT CHAPLIN CAN'T STOP

Hence Comedian Is One Star, At Least, Who Doesn't Run an Automobile.

There is a popular impression among the general run of motion picture patrons that the first requirement for screen success is ability as a chauffeur.

Except when they are shown in scenes in photoplays—or in the photoplay department of The Times—most of the photgrapha of picture stars that are scattered about the country show them in their automobiles or getting out of automobiles or getting into them.

One young actress, who has made good as an actress, by the way, first claimed fame as a picture star by making a transcontinental trip in an automobile. This is the Paramount star, Anita King.

Mary Pickford's favorite picture—just as Mary Pickford and not as a character in one of her plays—shows her entering her pretty little car. Dustin Farnum's friends in the East have received notice that the actor is returning from the Pacific coast—in his motor car!

Recently the press agent of the Vitagraph Company sent out a circular-letter wanting to know if it would not be desirable to print a series of "intimate" photographs of Vitagraph stars, all driving their own motor cars!

But It Don't Always Work.

Gertrude McCoy's last bid to fame as a Mutual star—according to her press agent—was not her newest photoplay, but the fact that she experienced three blowouts in the same evening and incidentally held up traffic on a bridge for half an hour with one of them. Miss McCoy was on the draw of the bridge when the pesky tires went wrong.

All of this would indicate that ability to drive a motor—for all these stars drive their own cars, had something to do with success in pictures. For the benefit of those who have hesitated about going into motion pictures because they cannot drive a car, the statement is made that this is not so.

Charlie Chaplin doesn't drive a motor car!

Furthermore, Charlie Chaplin won't drive a motor car. He says it isn't because he doesn't know how. He knows all about driving. In fact he insists he knows more about driving than anybody he has ever seen. But he doesn't know a thing about stopping a car!

Once in the early youth of his picture fame—which was a year or so ago—Chaplin started to drive a car. He completed the process of driving, but when it became imperative for him to stop, he couldn't. The road on which he was driving had a cave-in or something of the sort. But Chaplin couldn't stop. And he came very near being killed.

And so nowadays when Chaplin is seen in a motor he will be found on the rear seat. Somebody else will be doing the driving! Also it proves that being a chauffeur doesn't necessarily make one a picture star.

Wanted—A Mathematician.

The technical forces at the Morosco photoplay studio want the services of a mathematician—a high brow and a mighty juggler of figures, who can pour forth great gobs of numbers and never miscalculate his calculations. The reason:

Lenore Ulrich has appropriated the best dressing room on the grounds. The room measures sixteen by sixteen, and Miss Ulrich has eleven trunks that cover a total area of 300 square feet. Up to the present time none of the studio mathematicians have been able to find a hiding place for a few of the surplus trunks.

During the filming of one of the scenes of "A Million for Mary," first of the five-act Kolb & Dill American-Mutual comedy dramas, it fell to the lot of Kolb to stage a fight with a supposed "tough." When the smoke of battle cleared, Kolb required the services of a physician to stitch up his scalp, the result of being struck by a heavy bar that some one threw, and which Kolb was unfortunate to stop with his head.

Evelyn Brent, who was last seen on the Metro program in "The Spell of the Yukon," with Edmund Breese, is a member of the famous "Polar Bears," who swim in the ocean near Coney Island during the winter months.

When Lionel Barrymore was given a large Colt's revolver to be used in a scene in "The Quitter," Director Charles Horan asked if he knew how to use it.

"Do I know how to use it" Barrymore said. "I surely ought to. My nephew's grandfather invented and made the first one." He was referring to Ethel Barrymore's son, who is a grandson of Colt, the firearms inventor and manufacturer.

NEW SERIAL BEGINS IN THE ALL-STORY

First Installment of "Hypnotized" Appears in Magazine.

The first installment of "Hypnotized" appears in this week's All-Story Magazine. This three-part serial is as remarkable as anything George Allan England has ever done.

"Nemesis Books a Passage" is the title of this week's complete novelette. David A. Wasson, the author, knows the sea at every angle, and tells some extraordinary things that happen on a dingy old steam packet plying between Bayhaven, Me., and Colfax, Nova Scotia.

The two striking characters of "The Red Gods Who Talked," published March 11, appear again in "How Fear Died at Kimbedi," by Achmed Abdullah.

"Kid Euclid's Debut," by Barckley Northcote, is an amusing story.

A devoted follower of Don Quixote comes to light in "An Idyll of Greece," by Adam B. Brown.

"The Yellow Streak," by J. E. M., is a story of peril laid in a deadly American desert.

The Emperor of Japan three times decorated him, thus receiving the highest honor ever accorded a foreigner not in the service of the country.

WAR DEPARTMENT CALLS FOR NURSES

Two Hundred and Seventy-six Women Needed on Border to Guard Against Epidemics.

To guard against epidemics in the mobilizatiton camps along the Mexican border the War Department has issued a call for army nurses to serve in base hospitals established along the international boundary.

At the outset 276 nurses are desired. The War Department favors graduate nurses. For this service the United States Government will pay $50 a month, plus all expenses, so long as nurses remain on American soil. If they go into Mexico, it is provided they shall be paid $70 a month. Head nurses will be paid $10 additional.

Arrangements for sending nurses to the border are being made by the army nurse corps, which has offices in the War Department. Brig. Gen. William C. Gorgas, surgeon general of the army, is the officer in charge of the work.

In addition to the base hospitals established by the War Department on the Mexican border, the American Red Cross has established similar bases in various parts of the country. These are for emergency purposes, however, and will not be utilized unless there is need for them in future wars.

Regardless of the outcome of the Mexican negotiations, however, the War Department feels there is immediate need of nursing facilities on the Mexican border since approximately 100,000 American soldiers are stationed there. Every precaution will be taken to prevent the outbreak of disease such as cost hundreds of lives in mobilization camps during the Spanish-American war.

Jos. Chamberlain's Widow to Marry

Former Miss Endicott, of Massachusetts, Engaged to English Preacher.

LONDON, July 13.—The engagement is announced of Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain, widow of the British statesman, and the Rev. William Hartley Carnegie, rector of St. Margaret and canon of Westminster. Before her marriage Mrs. Chamberlain was Miss Mary Endicott, of Massachusetts, daughter of the late William C. Endicott, Secretary of War in President Cleveland's Cabinet.

Mrs. Chamberlain has been a widow since July, 1914. Although much younger than her husband, who was seventy-eight, she was considered an ideal helpmate, and at the time of his death it was reported in London newspapers that the King might confer a title on her.

Mrs. Chamberlain arrived in New York on May 12 of this year after a continuous absence from the United States of more than seventeen years. She said at that time:

"You cannot imagine what effect it had on me just to see the panoramic view of the harbor. Even the water is changed. It is New York, though, and every wharf sign shouts its welcome to a native, no matter how belated his or her return."

Doctor Says Nuxated Iron Will Increase Strength of Delicate People 200% in Ten Days

In Many Instances—Persons have suffered untold agony for years doctoring for nervous weakness, stomach, liver, or kidney disease or some other ailment when their real trouble was lack of iron in the blood.—How to tell.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—In a recent discourse Dr. E. Sauer, a well known Specialist who has studied widely both in this country and Europe said: If you were to make an actual blood test on all people who are ill you would probably be greatly astonished at the exceedingly large number who lack iron and who are ill for no other reason than the lack of iron. The moment iron is supplied all the their multitude of dangerous symptoms disappear. Without iron the blood at once loses the power to change food into living tissue and therefore nothing you eat does you any good; you don't get the strength out of it. Your food merely passes through your system like corn through a mill with the rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind. As a result of this continuous blood and nerve starvation, people become generally weakened, nervous and all run down and frequently develop all sorts of conditions. One is too thin; another is burdened with unhealthy fat; some are so weak they can hardly walk; some think they have dyspepsia, kidney or liver trouble; some can't sleep at night, others are sleepy and tired all day; some fussy and irritable; some skinny and bloodless, but all lack physical power and endurance. In such cases, it is worse than foolishness to take stimulating medicines, or narcotic drugs, which only whip up your fagging vital powers for the moment, maybe at the expense of your life later on. No matter what any one tells you, if you are not strong and well you owe it to yourself to make the following test. See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous run down people who were ailing all the time double, and even triple their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of their symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form, and this, after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. You can talk as you please about all the wonders wrought by new remedies, but when you come down to hard facts there is nothing like good old iron to put color in your cheeks and good sound, healthy flesh on your bones. It is also a great nerve and stomach strengthener and the best blood builder in the world. The only trouble was that the old forms of inorganic iron like tincture of iron, iron acetate, etc., often ruined people's teeth, upset their stomachs and were not assimilated and for these reasons they frequently did more harm than good. But with the discovery of the newer forms of organic iron all this has been overcome. Nuxated Iron for example, is pleasant to take, does not injure the teeth and is almost immediately beneficial.

NOTE—The manufacturers of Nuxated Iron have such unbounded confidence in its potency that they authorize the announcement that they will forfeit $100.00 to any Charitable Institution if they cannot take any man or woman under sixty who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. Also they will refund your money in any case in which Nuxated Iron does not at least double your strength in ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by Jas. O'Donnell Drug Store, People's Drug Store, and all other druggists.—Advt.

THE arrival of the Hindu Swami boded ill for Simon Dill and his schemes, though the latter did not suspect it. Oh, but he was a shrewd, tight-fisted, grasping old hypocrite, was Dill! On the widow, the orphan and the impoverished, he had no mercy, but to Nellie Blaisdell, his pretty young stenographer, he appeared in the role of a benefactor, bestowing the munificent sum of six dollars per week upon her in return for her untiring services.

These are the interesting characters which greet you in the first installment of this absorbing story—Dill, a cross between a Pecksniff and an Uriah Heep; Nell, the trustful young girl, and the Hindu mystic. It's called
