DAILY GAZETTE.

O. P. JOHNSON, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

WILMINGTON, Del., June 30, 1873.

THE DAILY GAZETTE is published every afternoon, except Sunday) at 416 Market street, and served by carriers to subscribers in all parts of Wilmington and the surrounding towns and villages, for six cents a week, payable weekly. Yearly subscribers $3 in advance.

The DELAWARE GAZETTE, established 1784, is the largest and most flourishing weekly in the State, and has a larger circulation than any other on the Peninsular. Published every Friday morning at $2 a year, in advance.

The Louisiana Unification Party.

Gen. Beauregard's "unification" scheme is not relished by either political party in New Orleans over much. The Radical leaders charge that it is a Democratic dodge to get into power, and oust the negroes and Scallawags. The Commercial Advertiser says the "Unifiers" promise "a broad sentiment of nationality, which shall embrace the whole country and uphold the flag of the Union." They promise the removal of all prejudices, the equal distribution of offices, the unification of the people, and the recognition of the claims of brotherhood. Surely nothing could be of larger omen than this. But it is a compact which it will be exceedingly difficult to carry out in its entirety.

And then the Commercial goes on to note the pertinent fact that the true valuation of Louisiana real and personal estate was $823,000,000, by the census of 1871. Of this the negroes own $40,000,000, or one-eighth. The county in which New Orleans is is credited with a valuation of $185,000,000, and of this the negroes own $14,000,000, or one-thirteenth.

Again, in its next issue, the Commercial gives colder comfort thus:

The Beauregard manifesto substantially tenders the blacks of Louisiana "social equality." That is the one thing the signers have not the power to confer. Political and civil equality is already guaranteed—beyond this it is impossible to go. Human nature has ordinances that are omnipotent in the premises, and that they forbid the fulfillment of the promise here held forth, none know better than those who propose to violate them.

This is looking the question fair in the face. The object of the negroes, scallawags and carpet-baggers, is not more to obtain "social equality" than a larger share of the accredited valuation. They have the majority, and are only waiting to see the way open to reach the largest sum named above. They are using it now greatly to their own benefit by assessing heavy taxes for the benefit of the negroes and Radical politicians. But that does not satisfy the rapacity of the leaders, and they wish to absorb the principal by the issue of City and State bonds, which they will sell and use the proceeds for their own advantage, and leave the bonds to be paid by the whites at their leisure.

Beauregard no doubt recognizes fully the position in which the whites are placed by the acts of Grant and his brother-in-law Cessey, and hopes to save something by "selling out" to the negroes. But the Scallawags have the inside track, and will no doubt, with the aid of the Washington schemers, head him off.

The New Orleans, Herald sets forth the objections to the movement. It says:

The unification movement, as represented by the committee of self-constituted, though very respectable representatives of the two races, encounters three difficulties, which as faithful chroniclers, we feel bound to notice. They are:

First—That the citizens who are required to make serious sacrifices in order to carry out the principels avowded by the combination, were no parties thereto, and were not represented in the consultation.

They are hotel-keeps, the owners of packets, the proprietors of saloons and boarding-houses, of theatres, of foundries, etc. These citizens represent that, to surrender their right of selecting their customers and of discriminating on such grounds as they may think, or as popular prejudice demands, would involve them in a very great loss, and that, whilst they submit to and acquiesce in the provisions of the constitution and law, they are unable to bear the burden of loss and damage which will result to them from yielding to the extreme demands of the Unifiers.

The Delaware Unifies are greatly elated with the new movement, and would be glad to follow in the same line.

The New City Hospital.

The movement in the City Council to establish a City Hospital, is no doubt made with the very best intentions. But it is difficult to see the need of an institution, just at present, such as the Council propose to start and run at the expense of the tax payers. It would certainly dwindle down to a mere city alms house, and we fear finally become more objectionable than our county institution on the hill. What it would cost to keep up a hospital we cannot tell. But it seems to us we have not the need for one just now, and if one is erected, patients will have to be imported from other cities, or the house would be shut up for want of inmates. To be sure the paid keepers and officials such an institution would require might be interested in finding objects of charity, in order to keep their salaries going.

The Salary Grab in Ohio.

The Democrats of Allen county, Ohio, in a convention, recently held, passed resolutions denouncing political corruption and distinctly named the Democratic member of Congress from the district, condemning him for voting for and accepting the extra salary, instructing him to vote for the repeal of the measure in the next Congress, and demanding of him a return of the money to the treasury, or a resignation of his seat.

A correspondent of the New York Tribune writing from Boston, says Ben. Butler will receive the Radical nomination for Governor of Massachusetts.

CRUSHED TO DEATH BY A FALLING TREE.—Yesterday morning about half-past seven o'clock, several workmen were employed digging away an embankment on Chase street, between St. Paul and North streets, for the purpose of grading Chase street, when they perceived a tree, near the root of which they were working, about to topple over. The men started to run, and all escaped but Patrick McCann, who was struck in the back as he ran by the falling tree and crushed to death instantly. The deceased was about forty years old, and in the employment of W. M. Kelly, by whose direction the body was removed to the late residence of the deceased. Dr. Walker, the coroner, inquired into the circumstances, and being satisfied from the account of the other workmen that the death was accidental, declined holding an inquest.—Baltimore Sun of Saturday.

The only occasion which we remember in which a coroner in this city, declined holding an inquest, was recently, when that functionary was too drunk to do so, and in attempting to force his useless services upon the county fell prostrate, some say, over the corpse and cut his own head severely.

The McCullough Rolling Mill, at North East, after laying idle one week for repairs, have resumed operations.

Sanitary Measures.

The New York Board of Health have issued, in the form of a circular addressed to hotel-keepers masters of vessels, &c., directions for the prevention of the spread of cholera. The chief recommendations are that a disinfectant be used for diarrhœal discharge, consisting of ten pounds of copperas dissolved in ten gallons of water, and add a half-pint of common carbolic acid. This should be poured into vessels receiving excrement. An ounce of carbolic acid in a gallon of water, to wash frequently seats and floors of water-closets. Patients suffering from diarrhœa should avoid unripe fruit and white vegetables, and remain in a recumbent position. The clothing, sheets, &c., of cholera patients should be immediately boiled, or if this is not practicable, throw them into a tub of water in which have been deposited eight ounces of sulphate of zinc and two ounces of carbolic acid to every four gallons of water. Frequent whitewashing is recommended with pure, fresh lime. Ventilate thoroughly cellars, garrets, closets, sleeping rooms, &c., and observe the utmost cleanliness in basements, areas, and grounds about the house.—Personal health requires pure drinking water, fresh air, substantial food, needed rest, and bathing of the body.

THAT BLOODLESS DUEL.—The duel which occurred in Canada a few days ago between H. W. Gray, of the firm of Gray & Avery, stock brokers, and John A. Hecksher, son of an extensive coal dealer in New York, both described as society men, and the latter, in addition, as a "lady's man," is causing considerable excitement in that city. The affair is said to have grown out of domestic infelicity in the family of Gray. Both retiring from the field unwounded, another meeting is represented as advisable.
