CAMPBELL & M'DERMOT,
EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.

FRIDAY MORNING, SEPT. 29.

UNION TICKET.

State Senate.

GEN. I. H. DUVAL.

House of Delegates,

COL. WM. B. CURTIS.
JACOB HORNBROOK.
JOSEPH BELL.

Border State Bonds are on the rise. Missouris quote at 77½—Virginias at 65—Tennessees at 83. There is a proposition to sell the public works of Virginia, worth about fifteen millions, it is said, and thus reduce the debt from forty to twenty-five millions.

We regret to state that a telegraphic dispatch was received last night announcing the death of Rev. James Wilson, once pastor of the Fourth street M. E. Church in this city. He died yesterday at Youngstown, Ohio, and his funeral will take place on Sunday next. Mr. Wilson was a most genial christian gentleman, and he had many warm friends and admirers here, not only among his own people but the public generally. He had been for many years an invalid, having lost his health by the aguish fevers of the west.

That rattle-brain, harem-scarem fellow, George Francis Train, rejoices exceedingly over the exposure as to the game attempted to be played by the leaders of the New York Democracy, in their late convention. Train, himself, is a Democrat, full of pro-slavery, apparently, and yet parodoxically against the institution. He is an enigma, and we are just as much at a loss now to tell whether he had any sense, as we were all along during the war.—In reply to a letter received from a "Young Men's Democratic Association," he lays down his platform as follows:

No repudiation; no negro suffrage; no more pro-slavery talk; no State sovereignty, but plenty of State rights; no Monroe doctrine; no trimming for votes; no more conventions; no more illegal arrests, star chamber courts or military usurpation, or judicial murder; no sending large fleets abroad or keeping standing armies at home; no suspension of habeas corpus, or suppression of newspapers; no remunities against the South, but protection everywhere to American industry, factories, founderies, cotton mills, ship commerce, agriculture, build Pacific Railroad, and never speak the English (but the American) language, or use the word mother land (meaning England.) Let us wear American clothes, and give high wages to our laboring men. We have toiled long enough for England's aristocracy and England's paupers. Be plaintiff—we have already been defendant too long—be plaintiff on this side as well as that.

We want no war with France about Mexico, nor with England about Canada. The way to fight England is to manufacture our own cotton. These rough ideas may be worthy of your thought. Sincerely,

GEORGE FRANCIS TRAIN.

Here endeth the first lesson.

Train says that his independent course during the rebellion, in steering his individual canoe, generally against public opinion, for the benefit of the nation, often led people to suppose that he was hankering after public office. Yet he says that he will give any man $10,000 who will show that he ever sought an office, high or low, big or little, for himself or for any friend. He claims to be a model patriot. To show that he is one he affixes to the letter from which we have quoted above, a copy of one he wrote to the President last May, reading as follows:

Because I defended the Government, while abroad, as well as at home, without appearing at Washington for position or power, I have been misunderstood. My disease is, country on the brain; American language, American clothes, American ideas, American manufactures, American law and American individuality. You are our first national President—our continental ocean to ocean chief. No salt water despotism manacles your thought, no Puritan bigotry binds your brain; no oligarchic labor system contracts your ideas.

Men are scarce. There are only a few high mountains in the world; while political and military chiefs by the hecatomb are piled up along the roadside, I have kept my individuality. My hopes of the great, imperial, continental republic are upon you, and when I can be of service, in any part of the world, command me, desiring no compensation and courting no publicity, sincerely,

GEO. FRANCIS TRAIN.

America is great, and Andrew Johnson is her prophet!

Three cheers for the President of the United States. Sincerely,

GEO. FRANCIS TRAIN.

The New York Democrats can't swallow the ticket and platform lately adopted at Albany. To vote for two or three soldiers and endorse the President is more than some of them can stand. It is too sudden a change to make all at once. A meeting of the dissenters, who call themselves "State rights men," was held at New York, a day or two ago. Some thirty-five assembly districts were represented, and one Thomas Lawrence presided. They adopted resolutions denouncing the Democratic nominations and platform as absolving them from obligations to support the party ticket, proclaiming themselves for the Constitution as it is and the Union as it was, and affirming all executive proclamations and decrees affecting the rights of the States unconstitutional, null and void, etc. The nomination of a State ticket is left to the decision of a committee.

In discussing the Fenian question the English papers console themselves with the idea that only the lower classes of the Irish are concerned in Fenianism and that it won't be much of a job to put down the movement. They say it must be put down at all hazards, and that the British government will soon show what its policy is to be. The Fenians may be put down, but it will take something more than English bluster to do it. They number fully half a million men in this country and Europe, and a good many of them have seen military service. If they strike in earnest, it will take hard fighting to repel them.

Some few of the collectors of customs and internal revenue, recently appointed in the South take the prescribed oath that they have never given aid or comfort to the rebellion, but the large majority who are unable to do so, file their bonds, and enter upon the discharge of their duties, trusting to Congress to remove the disability, and provide for the payment of their salaries.

The amount of the 10-40 loan authorized by Congress was $200,000,000. Of this $174,000,000 was issued when operations in connection with the loan were discontinued. It is now thought probable that Secretary McCulloch will soon place the remaining $27,000,000 on the market.

John W. Garrett, President of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, made a very interesting speech on the occasion of the late Odd Fellows' gathering in Baltimore, a copy of which we received on Tuesday. Speaking of Thomas Wildey, the father and founder of American Odd Fellowship, Mr. Garrett said:

As the father and founder of American Odd Fellowship, he is to be appreciated as a friend of mankind. He presented an example of unselfish devotion to the interests of the poor and the helpless, and of anxiety for the progress of education, humanity and benevolence among the masses, continuously through his long and useful life. And we find springing from his efforts a society which has, since the year 1819, gathered within its folds nearly half a million of members, with a revenue during that period of more than twenty millions of dollars—a large portion of which has been dispensed for the relief of the sick, the burial of the dead, and the education of the orphan. We find that these funds have relieved more than five hundred thousand persons, and more than thirty-seven thousand widowed families. It has been well said that these facts are eloquent of the virtues and usefulness of the earnest and faithful man, who, in early life, and from an humble sphere, planted the seeds which have resulted in so rich a fruition.

In the course of his speech, Mr. Garrett had occasion to allude to the late President Lincoln, and in doing so, related the following occurrence:

By his request, I accompanied President Lincoln, immediately after the battle of Antietam, to the scene of that sanguinary conflict after passing over the Baltimore and Ohio road from Washington to Harper's Ferry. I continued with him, by his desire, during the memorable period he spent with the officers and soldiers of the Federal army, and among the hospitals and the wounded upon that bloody field. As in accord with the spirit of your fraternity, I will mention a scene which occurred in one of those hospitals, which bedewed many eyes. The President examined, kindly and tenderly, into the condition and care of the Federal wounded. He also passed through the hospitals where were placed the Confederate wounded. Many of these hospitals, in view of the large number of the wounded, were improvised from the barns upon and in the vicinity of the field of battle. Passing through one of these, the middle space of an extensive Switzer barn, where a large number of Confederate wounded lay, the President stopped about the centre of of the apartment, opposite a youth of striking appearance, probably 18 or 20 years of age. He lay looking very feeble and paled. He held three straws in his hand, and was feebly moving them to keep the insects from his face. The President asked "if he had received all necessary attention." He replied that "he had—that his right leg had been amputated." The President responded, "I trust you will get well." The youth—great tears rolling from his eyes—said, "No, I am sinking, I shall die." The President leaned tenderly over him, and said, "Will you shake hands with me?" I remarked, "this is President Lincoln." He attempted to raise his hand, and gave it to the President. The President asked him, "where are you from?" "From Georgia." Again the President expressed the hope, still holding his hand, that he would recover. "No," said the youth, "I shall never see my mother again—I shall die." The President still held his hand, and fervently ejaculated, while he wept, and his tears mingled with those of the sufferer, "may God bless you, and restore you to your mother and your home."

The Democratic party, at this time certainly presents a most humiliating spectacle. A year ago, it declared the war a failure, and urged the people to elect a President, pledged to call a convention of all the States, or to adopt other peaceable measures, to put down the rebellion. A year ago, it denounced Andrew Johnson as the most unfit man in the country, except Abraham Lincoln, for any great office. Now, with no change on the part of Johnson, except that he wields the immense patronage of the government, these same Democrats profess high admiration of him, and announce their determination to support his administration, a determination which, however strongly expressed, it is unnecessary to say is contingent upon their receiving a share, and no small share, of this patronage. In accordance with their new declarations, they nominate for the popular suffrage, men who won their claims to popular favor in the war which the Democrats denounced as a failure, and which they opposed as a wrong. But in this the Democrats sacrifice nothing but their principles, and these have been bought and sold so often, that their price, in the political market, is as well understood as that of any species of merchandise.

Assuming the sincerity of these men, a violent assumption, but assume it for the sake of the argument, the Union men will welcome their support of the President, but will still think it best to elect to the places of power men whose conversion is not so recent, and who do not think, and have not thought, that the war was a failure, or that McClellan would make a better President than Lincoln. If the Democrats can stand this test, and give to the President the support that they promise, without reference to this patronage, they will soon be in that condition of grace which will enable them to support also the friends of the President; and then, as there will be no longer a necessity for a Democratic party, that organization can be safely broken up. Until that happy period arrives, we judge that the men who elected the President will not join the men who opposed him.

The Private Sentiments and Intentions of the late President as Regarded the Negro.

An extract from a private letter of the late President Lincoln to General Wadsworth, of New York, who fell in the battle of the Wilderness, is published, from which it appears that he was strongly inclined to proclaim general amnesty and to bestow the suffrage upon intelligent freedmen and such as had done military service. Mr. Lincoln wrote:

"You desire to know, in the event of our complete success in the field, the same being followed by loyal and cheerful submission on the part of the south, if universal amnesty should not be accompanied with universal suffrage. Since you know my private inclinations as to what terms should be granted to the south in the contingency mentioned, I will here add that if our success should thus be realized, followed by such desired results, I can't see, if universal amnesty is granted, how, under the circumstances, I can avoid exacting in return universal suffrage, or at least suffrage on the basis of intelligence and military service. How to better the condition of the colored race has long been a study which has attracted my serious attention; hence I think I am clear and decided as to what course I shall pursue in the premises, regarding it a religious duty as the nation's guardian of these people, who have so heroically vindicated their manhood on the battle-field, where, in assisting to save the life of the republic, they have demonstrated in blood their right to the ballot, which is but the human protection of the flag they have so fearlessly defended."

It is said that L. Pope Walker, Jeff. Davis' first Secretary of War, the same wretch who ordered Beauregard to "open fire on Fort Sumter," has had the impudence to appear in Washington, and ask the President for a pardon. He ought to think himself lucky that he is not caught and hanged. "He is still waiting," says a Washington dispatch; "let him wait; the first shall be last."

All Sorts of Odds and Ends, Gathered from Our Exchanges.

Peter Cooper has written a letter in which he says, that with our present dependence on the use of paper money, he believes "it will be found impossible to secure the true interest and honor of our country without a protective tariff on every article that can be manufactured out of raw material, found in as great perfection in our own as in other parts of the world."

The demand for laborers at St. Paul Minn., greatly exceeds the supply. Two railroad companies advertise for 500 men each.

Robberies are very frequent at Niagara Falls this year. Men are knocked down in broad daylight and their pockets rifled. Walking or riding there is little security of property, for the hackmen are no better than highwaymen.

An Albany soldier left his wife, went to Philadelphia, courted a girl, and would have married her if the wife hadn't appeared there just then. The wife paid the hotel bills of her husband and his girl, and then paid his fare back to Albany. She's a wife worth having. Some women wouldn't have been so amiable.

Since the 1st inst., nineteen new national banks have been started, mostly at the South. There are now 1,567 national banks with a capital of $398,015,723. The whole amount of national bank currency thus far issued is $186,681,720, $3,278,850 of which was issued last week. Over $6,000,000 in certificates of indebtedness was redeemed last week, and $2,690,105 of mutilated currency was destroyed.

An Italian wants the United States government or United States capitalists to pay the bills for shipping a company of silk and grape growers and wine manufacturers to New York or New Jersey, where sufficient grounds could be secured for 1,000,000 grape vines and 10,000 mulberry trees. The projector estimates that in three years after planting, a very large profit would accrue, and the fifth year would produce $800,000,000.

A letter from St. Paul, Minnesota, 15th inst., says the harvest is ended, and the granaries are overflowing with the golden grain. Taking the State through, the crop of wheat is larger than ever known before, the average yield being at least 25 bushels to the acre, and by many claimed to be 50.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad charges so much for carrying coal that the immense coal fields of Western Virginia remain undeveloped. The coal of these mines is excellent for gas coal, but we hope to import gas coal from Nova Scotia instead.—Mass. paper.

Commercial Enterprise.—The St. Louis Democrat says that a merchant left that city on Tuesday, commissioned by half a dozen firms to visit the markets of Great Britain, make purchases of bicarbonate of soda, sal-soda, soda ash, caustic soda, Scotch pig iron and Liverpool salt, and charter a vessel to bring the same to New Orleans. Arrangements have been made for one of the steamers of the Atlantic and Mississippi Steamship Line to receive the load of the vessel without its discharge upon the wharf of New Orleans. It is estimated that the cost of freight from Liverpool to St. Louis, will not be greater than the cost from New York to St. Louis.

Excess of Stock in Texas.—A Texas letter-writer says: Any man in this State who does not own four hundred head of cattle, and seventy or one hundred horses and mules, is worse than worthless. Beef sells here at five cents per pound, horses and mules from $15 to $30 for round lots, and are within two hundred and fifty miles of a good market. As far as the eye can reach in every direction, and as far as you may go, the country is alive with stock. The whole market of the United States might be supplied here, and there would not be any apparent decrease.

The New York Saturday Press learns on good authority that a new Irish society is about to be organized in that city, having the same object in view as the Fenians. It is to be called the "Independent order of Hod Fellows." Every member is expected to be a brick. The insignia of the order, it is said, will be similar to the Masons.

A funny law suit is on the tapis in Washington. Rev. Dr. Nedal and his congregation are annoyed every Sunday by the barking of five dogs in the yard near by. The woman who had the animals in charge will not remove them, as she says they belong to a member of Congress. The lawyers now propose to bark pro and con on the subject.

A new issue of fifty cent currency will soon be made, the present issue having been too extensively counterfeited. The head of Treasurer Spinner will take the place of the figure of Justice.

Queen Vic has bought some spinning wheels and placed them in her palaces and castles.

Oberlin, (O.,) college has nearly 800 students, many of them returned and disabled soldiers.

In Sacramento recently a woman procured the release of her husband from jail, and that night ran off with another fellow. Her object in procuring her husband's release was to leave somebody with the children.

The striking operatives at Utica have gone to work, and will work eleven hours as before. They made nothing by their strike, but lost several weeks labor and work.

The returned rebels in Tennessee declare that slavery shall be re-established in that State—and others declare that it is not abolished. The free blacks becoming alarmed at these declarations, refuse to work for their late employers, and many are preparing to leave the State.

The old story of Esau and his birthright has been repeated in Virginia. A rebel officer sold the original secession ordinance of that State, to Sergeant A. S. Twitchell, 7th Maine Battery, for a lunch of bread and butter.

Bishop Johns in his address to the Virginia Episcopal Convention at Richmond, last week, alluded to the question of renewing the former ecclesiastical relations of the Diocese of the State with her northern sisters, submitting the same to the judgment of the Council, but urging the reunion of the church on the grounds of forgiveness and christian duty, and arguing the benefits to the church and the impropriety of keeping up in the church the feuds which we have ignored as civilians. Some things, he averred, could not be forgotten, but they must be forgiven. "Some things" are not likely to be forgotten, O most reverend Bishop, while the grass grows rank over the remains of noble patriots slain on Virginia soil in the struggle to maintain government and law against the wicked machinations of such traitors as you and your associates.

The London Times thinks that the commander of the rebel pirate Shenandoah is a naughty, wicked pirate, and don't blame us at all for being disgusted with his conduct. The Times even wants the British Government to go to work and help catch the Shenandoah. The collapse of the rebel cotton loan, which promised to be such a rich investment, seems to have soured the Times against the rebels. It is unkind in it to go to abusing its late friends and associates.

The Chicago Republican is responsible for this paragraph:

An inveterate punster happened to get into one of the banks, the other day, just as the worthy cashier was running up, with his accustomed celerity and correctness, a very long column of figures. The waggish visitor saw the sum completed, and then remarked to the official, with a very grave face, "B——, I understand they think of sending you to the world's fair, as a specimen of the American adder."

Meeting in Cameron, Marshall County.

Cameron, W. Va., Sept. 27, 1865.

Editors Intelligencer:

Pursuant to notice, a meeting of the citizens of Cameron township, Marshall county, W. Va., was held in Cameron, at the public house of Daniel Buzzard. The meeting was organized by calling Wm. Democratic Planks.—In 1863, the Cincinnati Enquirer, one of the leading Democratic papers of the State, laid down the following Planks for the Democratic party to stand on:

1st. That the Democracy can never come into power as a war party.

2d. That the war is utterly opposed to the continuance of Republican institutions.

3d. That the Republicans are entitled to all the glory and all the discredit of the war.

4th. That the Democracy believes in Mr. Vallandigham's views respecting the war.

BOOTS AND SHOES.
JOHN H. ROBINSON,
158 Main street, east side, a few doors north of Union street,
Sign of the Big Black Boot,
now offers to the citizens of Wheeling, the largest and best assortment of goods in his line, suitable for fall and winter wear. He has just returned from the east, making his own selection from the most reliable houses in Philadelphia, New York and Boston. Having bought his goods entirely for cash, from first hands, it enables him to sell at the very lowest prices. Persons visiting this city will do well to give him a call, as he is determined not to be out-done by any other establishment. Quick sales and small profits is the motto. Don't fail to call at 158 Main street, John Bishop's old stand. sep18
