TWO MEN I KNOW.

I know a duke well—let him pass—
I may not call his grace an ass;
Though if I did I'd do no wrong,
save to the asses and my song.

The duke is neither wise nor good;
He gambles, drinks, scorns womanhood,
And at the age of twenty-four
Was worn and battered as three-score

I know a waiter in Pall Mall,
Who works and waits and reasons well;
Is gentle, courteous and refined,
And has a magnet in his mind.

What is it makes his graceless grace
So like a jockey out of place?
What makes the waiter—tell who can—
So very fine a gentleman?

Perhaps their mothers! God is great!
Perhaps 'tis accident—or fate!
Perhaps because—hol I not my pen!—
We can breed horses, but not men!

Dr. LeMoyne's Remarks After the Cremation.

The last speaker was Dr. LeMoyne himself, who commenced by giving the result of the experiment, stating that the body of the deceased had been reduced to ashes in about two hours and a half—much sooner than was expected. It was rather a remarkable fact, and a pleasant one to remember, that the evergreen which was put into the furnace with the body had remained visible up to the last. He had only a few remarks to make touching the subject before them, and would simply be a gleaner to gather up one or two points not dwelt upon by the other speakers.

In all discussions there must be some recognized general principal to set out with as a basis for argument. In this case there was a law of nature so plain and palpable that no one could fail to see it, and that all men, whether atheists, pantheists or christians were compelled to recognize; and that was that ample provision was made in nature for the speedy removal of dead animal matter. In proof of this he cited the fact that birds of prey and insects were provided to act the part of scavengers by devouring dead bodies with utmost speed after life became extinct. This to him was conclusive evidence that God meant the prompt removal of all dead animal matter either by resolving it into its original elements or in the way already mentioned. This great truth stood out everywhere, and men could only disregard it at their peril. In reply to the argument that cremation was anti-Christian and revolting, he said God himself held the burning of flesh acceptable in his sight, as was seen in the sacrifices he had instituted. It was by God's command that Isaac was to be cremated. In view of this it was sacrilege to call the practice wicked. Christians profess to be horrified at it as unscriptural, but why didn't they follow the example set in the case of the Savior who was embalmed? He had no particular objection to embalming, except that it would soon fill the world with mummies. Inhumationists by putting their dead into the ground to undergo the slow and revolting process of putrefaction and send forth the germs of disease were warring against God. Decomposition always produced an offensive odor which has to be taken as a warning that it should be avoided. This could be done by reducing the body to ashes in the manner proposed—a process that was speedy and entirely free from injury to the public health. He would only say a word on one other point, and that was the economical aspect of the case. An immense outlay was incurred for burying grounds, costly monuments, &c., which was only a useless and dead investment, and only served to foster the vanity of the living. He had made a calculation as to the amount expended by Washington county in this way, and estimated it at about two millions of dollars. Taking the whole country over he was convinced the sum thus needlessly laid out would far more than pay the national debt. The venerable Doctor's remarks were listented to with profound attention, and at times were heartily applauded.

Plans and Specifications of a Bride.

The following advertisement, taken from the files of a London (Canada) paper, is copied gratuitously: "Wife—A Bride Wanted.—A preacher, 30 years of age, who has traveled six years in the Lord's vineyard with an eye single to His glory—well recommended for his faithfulness and truth—desires to marry a good lady who has talent and ability to assist the cause, a gift to sing, able to weigh an argument, and some skill in presenting it by talking and writing, and worth $2,000. None need apply without reciprocating frankness and sincerity, and giving sufficient guarantee of the above qualities; photograph, age etc., stating whether settled or unsettled in religious belief. But doctrinal ideas nor perfection will not be the test, though candor, amiability, and opportunities, influences, and circumstances of past life will be considered. Also, it will be necessary to give some reason of the hope that is within, and show willingness hereafter to unite whole soul in the work of righteousness, without resignation to the will of God, show a seeking to walk according to His Word, and a true desire to know what God requires. Any who would fill the bill please address," &c., &c. Even so would the Reverend Chadband have advertised for a wife.

Watch the Children's Feet.

The following advice from the New York Evening Post is very important. Let every mother remember it:

"Life long discomfort and sudden death often come to children through the inattention or carelessness of the parents. A child should never be allowed to go to sleep with cold feet; the thing to be last attended to is to see that the feet are dry and warm. Neglect of this has often led to a dangerous attack of croup, diphtheria, or a fatal sore throat. Always on coming from school, on entering the house from a visit or errand in rainy, muddy or thawy weather, the child should remove its shoes, and the mother should herself ascertain whether the stockings are the least damp. If they are, they should be taken off, the feet held before the fire and rubbed with the hands till perfectly dry, and another pair of stockings and another pair of shoes put on. The reserve shoes and stockings should be kept where they are good and dry, so as to be ready for use on a minute's notice."

How $100,000 Might have been Pocketed.

WASHINGTON, December 7th.—Private telegrams received here state that Judge Levisee of Shreveport, Louisiana, a Republican elector, was offered one hundred thousand dollars in cash if he would vote for Tilden, or even cast a ballot for Grant, or some one else, so as to have the Electoral College a tie. Judge Levisee is a native of Louisiana, and was a Union man during the war. The fact that he suffered so much during the rebellion was the burden of an appeal to him, that by voting for Tilden or some one else besides Hayes, he might save another war. Statements of a similar character are made in regard to the South Carolina electors, and the Republican National Committee intend to have this matter investigated, and the facts presented to the country in a shape that cannot be gainsaid. The Committee will attempt to show how far the fight for reform was carried.

PHILLIP BRAILLY,
UNDERTAKER,
No. 1140 MAIN ST., HORNBROOK'S BLOCK.
Makes a specialty of his PATENT METALLIC CORNERS for Caskets. The advantage derived from this patent is that they allow an expansion of the wood in the Casket, but prevent it from falling apart, so that in case of a removal the Casket will be found entire, instead of in pieces, as it soon would be without the use of the "Corners." Orders for funerals promptly attended to. au5
