THE WEST VIRGINIA PRESBYTERY.

Second Day's Session.

FAIRMONT, October 16th.

Editors Intelligencer.

The Presbytery came together at 8 o'clock A. M., and was opened with prayer by Rev. J. C. Hauch.

The minutes of the previous day were read and approved.

The special committee on Sessional Records of Kanawha Church reported the taking of certain exceptions, &c., which were ordered to be recorded in the session book under review.

Reports were made and other business transacted until the hour of 9 o'clock, when the Presbytery took a recess and went in a body to visit the Fairmont State Normal School as by previous invitation. The Presbytery was introduced to the school by the accomplished Principal, Miss Dickey, and a pleasant half hour was spent in the opening exercises, brief addresses, &c., after which the Presbytery retired and returned to the Church and resumed business.

A committee on Supplies was appointed consisting of Revs. J. G. Hamner and S. Graham and Elder A. A. Simpson. The committee afterwards reported appointing supplies, &c., for the various vacant churches. Also, Moderators were appointed for services of the Churches which have become vacant since the last meeting of the Presbytery.

A call from the church of Fairmont for the pastoral services of Rev. A. A. Jimeson was presented, found to be in order, placed in Dr. J's hands and by him accepted. A committee to conduct his installment was appointed, consisting of Messrs. Fleming, Flanagan and Graham—Mr. Fleming to preach the sermon and Messrs. Flanagan and Graham to deliver the charges.

At 10:30 o'clock business was laid aside, the order of the day being the dedication of the house of worship lately erected by the Fairmont congregation. Their new edifice, though not above criticism, is naturally the pride of this people. Without, it is attractive in appearance, and is really an adornment to the town, while within it is a success in that most important of all requirements—its acoustic arrangements. The preacher whose voice will not sound well there, has a voice that will not sound well anywhere.

The sermon of dedication was preached by Rev. J. B. Dickey, of Morgantown. To those who have heard Mr. Dickey nothing need be said of the discourse. If for no other reason Morgantown can simply point to him and claim with right that she is "the Athens" of the State. The other parts of the service were conducted by Revs. Fleming, Moran, Duncan, Flanagan and Jimeson. These were selected as having all sustained a former or present relation to the church—the two first as her children whom she has reared and sent into the ministry, and the three last as her pastors, long tried and beloved. It was a glorious day to the people of this church and to their friends who rejoiced in their joy.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Rev. Lyman Whiting was appointed chairman of the standing Committee on Publication.

Mr. William O. Phillips, of French Creek a licentiate of the Presbytery of San Francisco, was received on a certificate of dismission from that body.

Dr. Whiting was appointed to prepare the narrative on the state of religion within the bounds of the Presbytery, to be presented at the next regular meeting.

The churches of Buckhannon and Weston presented calls for the pastoral services of Rev. George M. Fleming. These being found regular and in order, were placed in his hands and were by him accepted, whereupon arrangements were made for his installation. This was appointed to take place in the Weston church on the 17th of November at 7½ P. M. Rev. J. B. Dickey to preach the sermon, and Revs. J. H. Flanagan and Loyal Young, D. D., to deliver the charges to pastor and people. Also that the installation shall take place in Buckhannon on the second Sabbath in November at 10½ A. M.; the services to be conducted by Revs. Flanagan, Dickey and Whiting. It was further ordered that on the same day at 3 P. M., if the way be clear, Mr. W. O. Phillips be ordained as an evangelist in the gospel ministry.

The various standing committees presented their annual reports, which were adopted, after being in some cases amended as to their recommendations, &c.

The committee appointed to bring in a minute on the death of Rev. John W. Scott, D. D., L. L. D., presented the following through its chairman, Rev. J. H. Flanagan,

At the roll call of the Presbytery it is announced that death has claimed one of the members, and the wisest counsellor in Presbyterial matters is not here, for his work on earth is done. Rev. John W. Scott, D. D., L. L. D., died at Ridgway, Warren county, N. C., July 25th, 1879, in the seventy-second year of his age, of disease of the heart.

His collegiate education was obtained at Jefferson College, graduating in that institution in 1827.

His theological education was obtained at Princeton Seminary.

After a short pastorate at Poland, O., he entered upon the work of teaching, which proved to be his life work more than the active work of the ministry. In the several positions that he filled as teacher he won a high and estimable reputation as an instructor. At the Grove Academy, at Steubenville, O., and at Wheeling, Va., his efforts as a teacher were crowned with success. The success which crowned his efforts in these two places led the Synod of Wheeling in 1852 to select him to take charge of Washington College which had just been taken under the care of the Synod. He filled the important position of President of that institution until its union with Jefferson College in 1860.

Afterwards he was chosen to a professorship in the University of West Virginia, at Morgantown, which position he filled with great acceptance until his failing sight compelled him to resign. Dr. Scott has done a noble work in his day as a teacher. A rigid disciplinarian he had no patience with students who showed a spirit of idleness. He had the faculty of arousing every energy for the success in the young men under his care, and though at times they perhaps thought him a little severe, yet he was always successful in winning their affections and highest esteem. And in the long list of those who have gone out from under his care, there are many who now occupy high and honorable positions in the church and the world, who attribute to him the enkindling of that fire and zeal that inspired them to be men and to "quit themselves like men." Well versed in the laws and rules of church courts, we as a presbytery will miss his wise and prudent counsels.

He is gone—his mission on earth is ended—yet the influence of his life-work still lives. Many of those upon whose minds and hearts he stamped his impressions for good are still working in the great harvest field of the world, and the memory of that one who was always interested for their welfare and prosperity is held sacred. May his example of untiring industry for the elevation of humanity inspire us all with a determination to do well the work that is ours to do.

J. H. FLANAGAN,
J. B. DICKEY,
GEO. K. SCOTT,
Committee.

EVENING SESSION.

Half an hour was profitably spent in devotional exercises. After discussing the Sabbath question, Rev. Messrs. Dickey and Hamner were appointed to prepare and present to Presbytery a paper on the subject of Sabbath observance.

The fourth Sabbath in December was recommended to all our churches as a day for concerted fasting and prayer for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit, and the ministers were directed to make that the subject of their discourse from the pulpit on that day.

It was ordered that when Presbytery adjourn it be to meet at the call of the Moderator during the sessions of Synod in Wheeling. Also, that it hold an adjourned meeting in Buckhannon at 1 P. M. November 7th, to transact the business above referred to.

The spring meeting will be held in Kanawha church, Charleston, beginning at 7½ P. M., on the fourth Friday of May, 1880.

A motion to adjourn prevailing, the minutes were read and approved, and the closing prayer offered by the Moderator.

The Moundsville Rolling Mill Troubles.

MOUNDSVILLE, October 18, 1879.

Correspondence of the Intelligencer.

I am informed that a portion of the employes at the rolling mill took serious exceptions to some statements made in this correspondence a few days ago; the objectionable language used, as far as I can understand, was this: I said that the "gentleman who came here from Pittsburgh to organize a 'lodge' or 'branch,' informed the men that they were working entirely too low—were not getting pay enough." Now, I believe I did use language of that kind, and I also stated that that was the rumor. I have been asked to correct this, and say that the gentleman did not tell the men anything of the kind. Well, all right; I will say that they say he did not.

After this matter had been called to my attention I took the trouble to try to get at the bottom of the cause or causes which led to the stopping of the mill, and they were, as near as I can ascertain, as follows:

The first person approached upon the subject was a workman in the mill, and as I understand a prominent member of the Union. He said that a gentleman had came here from Pittsburgh and organized a lodge of the Amalgamated Iron and Steel Workers. On Monday they were advised that an advance of fifty cents per ton for boiling had been made in Pittsburgh. A meeting of the lodge was called for that evening, and it was determined that a demand should be made upon the managers of the mill here for a similar advance. A committee was appointed for the purpose of making the demand. The foreman at the works was served with a notice from the lodge, through this committee, that unless the advance was paid the boilers they would quit work on Wednesday. The foreman informed the men that he had notified the President of the mill company of the demand (this was on Wednesday), and that the President had informed him that it would be impossible to get a meeting of the Board of Managers until Friday, at which time the Board would decide whether or not the advance demanded would be paid. The foreman at the same time urging the men to continue at work until that time, assuring them them that the advance would be paid. Two of the three members of the committee were strongly in favor of continuing work, but the third gentleman opposed it so strongly that work was suspended.

Mr. Gallaher, President of the mill company, in answer to the question of what the prospects of the mill going on were, said, "I can't tell anything about it, from the fact that I don't know." The foreman in the mill informed me yesterday (Tuesday) that the boilers had demanded an advance of 50 cents on the ton, and I told him to tell them to work on until Friday, when the Board would meet, and that the matter would then be settled, but that they would be paid the 50 cents advance until that time at any rate, and added that the mill had been operated for some time past purely for the benefit of the employes, and that if they wanted to shut it down they might do so.
