YOU KNOW

The best evidence of a physician's success is the testimony of his patients. The increasing demands for our professional services prove that I have dealt fairly and fairly with those who have consulted me. I never use a patient's name without permission, though I have cured many hundred certificates from those whom I have cured after they had been pronounced incurable. A thorough medical education, with more than hospital experience and familiarity with therapeutic agents, a close observance of temperamental peculiarities and strict attention to hygienic management, insures success, if cure is possible, and I fearlessly give the patient my opinion.

WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY & LIVER CURE

The Leading scientists of to-day agree that most diseases are caused by disordered Kidneys or Liver. If, therefore, the Kidneys and Liver are kept in perfect order, perfect health will be the result. This truth has only been known a short time and for years people suffered great agony without being able to find relief. The discovery of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure marks a new era in the treatment of these troubles. Made from a simple tropical leaf of rare value, it contains just the elements necessary to nourish and invigorate both of these great organs, and safely restore and keep them in order. It is a POSITIVE Remedy for all the diseases that cause pains in the lower part of the body, for Torpid Liver, Headache, Jaundice, Dizziness, Dyspepsia, Fever, Ague, Malarial Fever, and all diseases of the Kidneys, Liver and Urinary Organs.

It is an excellent and safe remedy for females during Pregnancy. It will control Menstruation and is invaluable for Leucorrhœa or Falling of the Womb.

As a Blood Purifier it is unequaled, for it cures the organs that make the blood.

IF YOU feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have frequent headache, mouth tastes badly, poor appetite and tongue coated, you are suffering from torpid liver, or "biliousness," and nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently as to take Simmons Liver Regulator or Medicine.

The cheapest, purest and best family medicine in the world.

An effectual specific for all diseases of the Liver, Stomach and Spleen.

Regulate the Liver and prevent CHILLS AND FEVER, MALARIOUS FEVERS, BOWEL COMPLAINTS, RESTLESSNESS, JAUNDICE AND NAUSEA.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

BAD BREATH.

Nothing is so unpleasant, nothing so common as bad breath, and in nearly every case it comes from the stomach, and can be so easily corrected if you will take Simmons Liver Regulator. Do not neglect so sure a remedy for this repulsive disorder. It will also improve your appetite, complexion and general health.

PILES.

How many suffer torture day after day, making life a burden and robbing existence of all pleasure, owing to the secret suffering from Piles. Yet relief is ready to the hand of almost any one who will use systematically the remedy that has permanently cured thousands. Simmons Liver Regulator, is no drastic violent purge, but a gentle assistance to nature.

CONSTIPATION

Should not be regarded as a trifling ailment—its fatal natural demands the utmost regularity of the bowels, and any deviation from this demand paves the way often to serious danger. It is quite as necessary to remove impure accumulations from the bowels as it is to eat or sleep, and no health can be expected where a costive habit of body prevails.

SICK HEADACHE.

This distressing affliction occurs most frequently. The disturbance of the stomach, arising from the imperfectly digested contents causes severe pain in the head, accompanied with disagreeable nausea, and this constitutes what is popularly known as sick headache.

CAUTION.—Buy no powders or prepared Simmons Liver Regulator unless in our engraved wrapper, with trade mark, stamp and signature unbroken. None other is genuine.

THE METHODIST COUNCIL.

The American and European Delegates Contrasted—A Compliment to Dr. A. C. George, Formerly of Wheeling.

LONDON, September 11.—The great event of the past week in London has been the Ecumenical Council of Methodists. The meetings have been held in the City Road chapel, which is the Mecca of the denomination, and whose caaba is the graves of John Wesley, his wife, and his brother Charles, and Adam Clarke. The cosmopolitan character of the assembly is remarkable, and for the multiplicity of tongues spoken, is little short of a Pentecostal gathering, like that at Jerusalem. The proceedings thus far have been animated and usually harmonious, although there have been occasional clashes between the go-ahead aggressiveness of the American and the obstinacy and conservatism of the British representatives. The Americans seem to take the lead in every radical movement. They are wide-awake, ready debaters, full of vim, push, and suggestions. In point of oratory, all the honors rest with the brethren from the New World. The American delegates have a way of saying what they have to say without hesitation, with clear enunciation and distinctness of ideas. As a rule the American speakers in this body have a large vein of humor, and rarely make a speech, regardless of the subject, without having the audience roaring with laughter at intervals. Rev. Dr. A. C. George, who is one of the Secretaries of the Council, attracts much attention by his fine appearance, clear and elegant articulation, and promptness in any emergency. In all respects Bishop Simpson is the most noticeable man in the congress. Tall, stately, dignified, venerable, alert, he is conspicuous in appearance, weighty and commanding in debate. Bishop McTyeire, of Nashville, is another dignatary who has taken a first-class position. Somewhat rough in voice, but earnest, forcible, and humorous, his mind is full of historical facts and illustrations. Another very prominent figure is Bishop Warren, of Atlanta, who has shown himself to be one of the most accomplished and scholarly, as well as finished, representatives present.

Some dozen colored delegates, mainly from the South, have done themselves and the conference no discredit thus far. Bishop Wood, of Fayetteville, N. C., held the audience intensely interested while he spoke of the condition of Methodism among the blacks of his episcopate. Mr. Prince, a colored delegate from the South, made a very creditable speech on the power of Methodism to elevate the South and the negroes. Soon after Dr. Marshall, of Vicksburg, made an address on the same subject, during the course of which he expressed warm fellowship for his colored co-laborers, and then reached over and shook warmly the hand of Mr. Prince. The scene was quite dramatic, business being suspended by applause lasting two or three minutes. The Africans rank as operators next below the whites. The American representatives are considerably above the average of the others.

As a rule the American delegates are much younger than the others, and have also the appearance of being more men of the world. The other delegates are more like Church-of-England clergymen in the matter of dress, appearance, action, looks and sentiment. The American delegates seem to have a tendency to drag the others forward, and the others appear to have a disposition to adopt largely the modes of thinking, etc., in vogue among preachers of the established church. The American divines have been waking up their brethren of other lands by a series of electrical shocks applied from batteries of eloquence, progression and speedy movement. The eastern section present carefully-prepared essays, while the Western men depend on off-hand efforts, which seem to carry everything before them like torrents.

The conference are having a stirring time, as they sum up the millions which compose their denomination and the vast extent of the country which they cover. They are being feted on the very ground where their name was once a reproach, and where their founder was mobbed. At the social gatherings which have been had, Rev. Dr. O. H. Tiffany, formerly of Chicago, Gen. Fiske, of Payne, Ohio, and Bishop McTyeire, of Nashville, have shown themselves ready speakers.

The contrast between the English and the American members of the council, and among the Americans, the contrast between those from the eastern and those from the western states, suggest the influence that its surroundings have exerted on the Methodist church, while the Methodist church has been exerting no inconsiderable influence on its surroundings. The slow, cautious, and, at least in appearance, the unready English Wesleyan, resembling in his general get up the clergyman of the Church of England, and in many instances using in divine worship the liturgy of the establishment, would not be welcome in many American Methodist pulpits. The scholarly, essay-reading Methodist doctor of the Eastern States is much less acceptable to Western Methodist congregations than the pastors to whom they are accustomed—men who look with little favor, and sometimes with open contempt, on "polish," who look with suspicion on the matter where an excess of attention is paid to the matter; men whose style in the pulpit is much like that of the politician on the stump. The Americans, on the other hand, and especially the Western ones, are not easily produced on English soil; they do not flourish in the English atmosphere; nor, if transplanted from America, would they be very acceptable here. They exist in England, and they are utilized as lay preachers and as evangelists, but they are not selected as representative men to be delegates in ecumenical councils. Yet the off-hand readiness, the enthusiasm, the disregard for forms and ceremonies and conventionalities that have been, and still are, largely the characteristics of the Methodist preacher, were exported to America from England. Evidently there has been a great change, in forms at least, in English Methodism. When Methodist preachers were socially outcasts they cared nothing for society. As they became admitted to society, as in this country, or as society grows up around them, as in the United States, the Methodist preachers begin to take a little interest in their their dress, their education, their manners, their language. The Methodist preachers who are dined by lord mayors and entertained in episcopal palaces belonging to the establishment are not in their outward appearance like those who were sent out by John Wesley to plant the seeds of spirituality in the souls of formalists, and the difference is in part the cause, but in a greater degree the result, of such receptions. The effect of this contact with the social world on the Methodist system will be watched with interest by the students of religious and social evolutions. That spiritual communism which is the Methodist ideal can be maintained with difficulty; if at all, in societies whose members differ radically in wealth, taste, occupation and social status. Those frank confessions of error for which the class-meeting exists are almost impossible to secure when the class-meeting consists of forty or fifty individuals not intimately acquainted with each other, and widely sundered in business and society. The large Methodist Church of London, New York, or Chicago, is not, and apparently can not be made, the spiritual family which John Wesley and the pioneers of American Methodism had little difficulty in organizing out of small numbers of neighbors of about the same grade of intelligence and wealth, or rather the lack of them. There are some indications of even deeper changes than those of dress and language. As the Methodist theology is formulated, accusations of being too Calvinistic are made against some of the most eminent founders of the church, and it remains to be seen if the Methodists are so different from all other Christians that they can be brought into intimate contact with society, and with the great currents of thought in theology and philosophy, without experiencing changes of substance as well as surface.

TEMPERANCE is attracting much attention, showing itself in local option laws, societies, crusades and restrictions upon liquor production; but with all these efforts the consumption is enormous, and, undoubtedly, the reason is because there is nothing strenuously advocated to relieve and destroy the craving for stimulants. But, if the disease was treated rationally, by arousing the torpid Liver with Simmon's Liver Regulator, the dispirited drunkard would find his cravings soon dissipated, and with cleared head and active Liver, he would not want liquor.

A COUGH, Cold or Sore Throat should be stopped. Neglect frequently results in an incurable lung disease or consumption. Brown's Bronchial Troches do not disorder the stomach like cough syrups and balsams, but act directly on the inflamed parts, allaying irritation, give relief in Asthma, Bronchitis, Coughs, Catarrh and Throat Troubles which Singers and Public Speakers are subject to. For thirty years Brown's Bronchial Troches have been recommended by physicians, and always give perfect satisfaction. Having been tested by wide and constant use for nearly an entire generation, they have attained well-merited rank among the few staple remedies of the age. Sold at 25 cents a box everywhere. TTHSAW

Rescued from Death.

William J. Coughlin, of Somerville, Mass., says: In the fall of 1876 I was taken with bleeding of the lungs, followed by a severe cough. I lost my appetite and flesh, and was confined to my bed. In 1877 I was admitted to the Hospital. The doctors said I had a hole in my lungs as big as a half dollar. At one time a report went around that I was dead. I gave up hope, but a friend told me of Dr. William Hall's Balsam for the Lungs. I got a bottle, when to my surprise, I commenced to feel better, and to-day I feel better than for three years past.
