MEDICAL.

DR. J. E. SMITH,

NO. 1117 CHAPLINE STREET,

The best evidence of a physician's success is the testimony of his patients. The increasing demands for my professional services prove that I have dealt honestly and fairly with those who have consulted me. I refer no one, a patient's name without permission, though I have many hundred certificates from those whom I have cured after they had been pronounced incurable. A thorough medical education, coupled with many years hospital experience and familiarity with the potent agents, a close observance of their therapeutic peculiarities and strict attention to professional business insures success. If cure is impossible, I frankly give the patient my opinion, positively, and I honestly give the patient my opinion.

A GOOD WORD FOR MAHONE.

What He Has Done and What He is Trying to Do.

From Col. Eastman's Rockford (Ill.) Gazette.

Putting sentimental highfalutin nonsense to one side, the object of political parties is success. The means by which success is attained should of course be honorable; but every factor in the political problem that does not contribute to the result aimed at is to be unhesitatingly rejected. The only justification a party can have of its pretensions to govern, is that it commands the suffrages of the majority; when it no longer does that, in a State or in the Nation, it is time to cast about for new ideas, to reorganize on a wider basis, or abandon the field in despair.

We have never been able to approve of Mahoneism as a political creed without strong mental reservations. But that it has much to justify it, in the circumstances of the times, as growing out of the exigencies and losses of the war, even Mr. Blaine acknowledges in an interview with a reporter of the Chicago Tribune. He confessed, too, that the Cabinet, of which he was the chief, was evenly divided as to the policy of sustaining Mahone. In any view that embraces the fortunes of the Republican party and the welfare of the country the appearance of Mahone and his successful organization was most timely, and may rightly be regarded as providential.

The Republicans elected Gen. Garfield to the Presidency, and made it possible for Mr. Blaine to be Secretary of State. But the Republican party had not control of the Senate, a branch of the Government which, if it is not in unison with the Executive, renders it impotent and ridiculous. Mr. Mahone, having been elected to the Senate as the nominee of an independent movement, was in a position to come to the aid of the Executive, and give the organization of the Senate to the Republicans. Mr. Blaine may be very sincere now, but the people have not forgotten that President Garfield welcomed Mr. Mahone very heartily, and that he fared as well in the disposition of the Federal offices in Virginia under the Administration of President Garfield as he has under his successor.

The morning after Senator Mahone had declared himself on the side of the National Administration—who has forgotten the fragrant episode?—President Garfield directed that a bouquet of flowers, picked in the White House conservatory, be sent to the Senate Chamber and placed with his card on Mr. Mahone's desk. Was this reciprocal action the result of a bargain? This will never be known, nor will anybody much care whether it was or not. The important thing is that Mr. Mahone has been as useful to the Republican party as any man in the United States; that he is true to the National Administration; and that, a most encouraging circumstance, he continues to be sustained by a handsome majority of the people of Virginia.

Mr. Blaine has at this late day declared against Mr. Mahone and his party. He thinks it necessary to his plans to clothe with flesh the straight-out Republican organization in Virginia. In this the Republicans will not agree with him. Mr. Mahone has richly earned a place in the party, and if he chooses for the general good to stand on his own platform in his own State, while cordially helping the Republican party in the country, that is his right. Republicans will want something more of Virginia in 1884 than to send to the National Convention a set of delegates without constituencies. Her twelve Electoral votes will be wanted, and with wise management on the part of the Administration, and a becoming demeanor on the part of Mr. Blaine, these votes will be secured.

STOCKS—The whole course of prices and speculation at the Stock Exchange turned to day on the money market. The day opened with a clique of stock jobbers who yesterday run up the rates for money in apparent control. They started the rate for call loans on stocks at 10 per cent per annum, ran it up to 20 per cent and made a few loans among themselves at 1-16 of 1 per cent per diem, plus 6 per cent per annum. During this time stocks and bonds declined. Mercantile paper was unsaleable and very unsettled, and an apprehensive feeling prevailed. About noon Secretary Folger visited the Sub-Treasury. He was then waited on by representative business men who told him about the situation. He promptly sent the following order to Mr. New, who is acting Secretary during his absence.

"NEW YORK, September 26, 1882.

Hon. John C. New, Acting Secretary of the Treasury, Washington, D. C.:

The rate of mercantile paper is such that the Government should at once release money from the Treasury. The Assistant Treasurer here anticipates the payment of any called bonds, with rebate of interest, at the rate of $5,000,000 per week until otherwise directed, beginning Wednesday the 27th inst., the bonds to be paid at his office here. I will send a letter also. [Signed] CHAS. J. FOLGER,
Secretary of the Treasury."

This order became known little after one o'clock and the whole situation changed immediately. Rates for money took a plunge down, leading off for call loans on stocks at 1 percent per annum, although no more was loaned below 6 per cent, except for effect. Mercantile paper which had been unsaleable was favorably affected, and in a comprehensive word, the whole tone changed from apprehension and distrust to confidence.

Preventative of Malarial Diseases.

Opinion of Eminent Dr. H. R. Walton, of Annapolis, M. D.—"Colden's Liquid Beef tonic is par excellence, superior to cod liver oil or anything I have ever used in wasted or impaired constitutions, and extremely beneficial as a preventative of malarial diseases." Take no other. Of druggists.

Wheeling Wholesale Market.

(INTELLIGENCER OFFICE.)
WHEELING, Tuesday, September 26.

The market in some departments this morning is very dull, and in others, prices have advanced. The big fire in Philadelphia sent sugars up, and grain is away down. A large number of changes are found below:

Grain.—The market is declining very fast, and lower prices than those given below may be looked for. Wheat dropped 2¾c yesterday morning between 10 and 11 o'clock. In the afternoon it was quoted at 95c, and very dull. In fact the grain trade generally was dull. Rye, No. 1, small lots 67½c. No State corn or oats can be procured. Western high mixed corn was yesterday quoted at 92½@95c. Oats, dealers paid 37½@38c for car lots

Flour—The demand continues fair without further change in prices. The quotations this morning are: New flour $5 50@6 00. The regular brands are quoted as follows: Choice amber, $6 75@7 25; medium amber, $6 00@5 25; Wisconsin, $6 75@7 00; Minnesota extra, $7 75@8 00; fancy St. Louis, $8 00@8 50; fancy patents, $8 25@8 75; corn meal, per bushel, 90c; oatmeal, fancy per barrel, $5 75@6 00; common, $5 25; rye flour, per barrel, $5 50@5 75.

Meats.—Market has been steady, and a fair trade has been done. Prospects are that prices will continue strong.
