A "Reply" Which Misses Fire—Supplemental Assessment.

The Register of yesterday morning contains an alleged reply by Senator Byrne to the speech of Senator Morris, concerning the matters which have obstructed legislation during the session of the late lamented body of Solons, and makes a great parade of the same. By reading the two addresses it becomes apparent that Senator Byrne and the Register have made a ludicrous mistake.

The effort of Senator Byrne does not reply, in any particular, to the address of Senator Morris, published in the INTELLIGENCER of Thursday, which dealt exclusively with matters which have obstructed legislation. In fact, the speech of the Senator from Kanawha was not made on the proposition which, in re-writing it, he seems to think it was. It was made in reply to Senator Morris; but on an entirely different proposition from the Mason tax exemption idea proposed by Senator Byrne. He fired it off in connection with an amendment offered by Senator Dawson, to Senate Bill number twenty-six, which amendment was to the effect that the Auditor be prevented from issuing instructions to assessors, concerning any statute of the State, unless the same had been decided unconstitutional by the Supreme Court.

The Senator from Kanawha took the ground that this was a thrust at the Governor; that to adopt the amendment would be a thrust at the Chief Executive of the State. To this the Senator from Ritchie replied that he favored reproving the Governor in this way, because the Governor was wrong in doing what he did in the tax exemption matter. The Governor had assumed, in addition to his functions as an executive officer, not only judicial but legislative power. The statute provided for exempting certain articles. The Governor decided this statute unconstitutional and then proceeded to enact a statute. No law was in existence, even if the exemption statute was unconstitutional, providing for listing the articles exempted. No such law has ever been exacted in this State, and none such will be soon.

The Governor took the decision of the Supreme Court in the celebrated Chesapeake & Ohio railroad case as a pretext for his course. That case, however, is pending in the Supreme Court of the United States, and while the Governor's instructions reach the farmer, the great corporation may forever escape. Senator Morris quoted from Cooley on Constitutional Limitations to the effect that it is a principle of Anglo-Saxon liberty that only those should pay the tax who vote it, and that an assessor must show statutory authority for all he does. Taxes wrung from the people without statutory authority became public plunder. The people of West Virginia have never, through their representatives, authorized the taxes drawn from them through the course of the Governor and Auditor in the matter under discussion.

Considering the peculiar way in which the Senator from Kanawha apologizes for the Governor, his remarks are not even a reply to the argument of Senator Morris as indicated in the foregoing, saying nothing about that to which they were not intenedd as an answer.

THE WHISPERING GALLERY.

Were you ever in at the death of a law-making body? I have seen them die, great and small, and they die hard. The hall is filled with phantoms—ghosts of lost time, of wasted opportunities, of bills entombed in committee rooms, of claims, grievances and assorted petitions—a clamorous company of wraiths. Here are members intent on driving through the public business to the last moment; others log-rolling to get through their private bills, to get in a spoke here and another there, to tickle this interest and trap that; and still others, the jolly mad "remnant" who have abandoned all hope of recognition for their measures, who are willing to let the public business run the gauntlet of chance, and give themselves up to the milder employment of having a time of it.

I have seen "grave and reverend seigniors," in the last hours of a high legislative body, disport themselves with the reckless gaiety of school boys—singing songs, dancing jigs, delivering mock orations, flinging about the hall, and sometimes with most excellent aim, ponderous volumes that would have made a junk-dealer's mouth water. I have seen a dignified statesman from a Southern State hit in the back with a page who had been hurled gently across two rows of desks. The page took a silver dollar and said it was a good joke. I recall a last night in the National House of Representatives. The floor was strewn with scraps of paper, o s, newspapers, cigar stumps and, it may almost be said, members of Congress. The Solons played leap-frog, turned hand springs, jumped over the desks, hooted howled and raised Cain generally. This would be undignified in West Virginia, but then our legislators don't handle such appropriations as they do in Washington.

★

THE WHISPERER cannot keep from the public the awful fact that there were gentlemen who fain would have extended the session of the Legislature. Some of the arguments used to break down the objections of the obstinate where highly ornate. Here is one reproduced from the original:

"Well, old fellow, what do you say today about extension—changed you mind?"

"N-o-o-o, 'bout the same. Think we'd better wind her up."

"Well, now, look a-here. There are some good bills that ought to go through, and we ought to have time to put them through. Now, there are those bills of yours, if—"

"They are good bills—that's true, but they have been just as good all through the session and yet I couldn't get any show for them. No use of talking bills to me."

"Take this view of it, then. There's work that ought to be done. If we stay here we get four dollars a day to do it—can you and I do that well at home in winter weather—come now?"

"See here—I haven't got my bulldog here, but if you'll come down where I live I'll sick him on you. You must take me for a ——"

But the four dollar fiend was gone.

★

Persons who are learning to skate on rollers should also learn how to fall gracefully. I have noticed that more people fall awkwardly than there is any excuse for. If you know you are going to fall don't sprutter and dash around and try to grab everything you see. When you do this you not only make a spectacle of yourself but you bring others down with you. I would especially advise fat men to let themselves go when they feel they are going to fall. Don't knock down half a dozen others and then sit on them. It isn't generous, and it certainly is not polite.

★

I see my old friend "Fritz" Emmet has succumbed to his old enemy. The public has been very patient with Joseph's freaks, but I think the limit of endurance has been reached. This is not the first time he has served Wheeling theatre goers shabbily. Some years ago he looked too long and earnestly on the wine, and although he went through with his performance, it was indifferently done. It is said that on the afternoon of the night of his last performance he got away with forty-five glasses of whisky between 2 o'clock and the hour of his appearance on the stage. I feel sorry for Joe, for out of his cups he is a clever and agreeable gentleman.

★

Joe Emmet's little spree recalls to my mind the famous debauch of James A. Herne, of "Hearts of Oak" fame. Herne tackled brandy and lots of it. He was able to keep his feet, however, but he would have his joke. One member of his company was confined to his room by a slight indisposition. Herne went to an undertaking establishment and had them send a man to the sick man's chamber to measure him for a coffin. Besides, Herne ordered a silver coffin-plat etc be engraved. It was a joke on the sick man, but the fun cost Herne about $50.

★

Has Anybody Told You—

That the Panhandle annexation scheme made the sparks fly?

That it struck the iron while it was hot?

That by all the signs "the plot thickens"?

That in a purely social way we are all sorry to lose the gentlemen of the Legislature?

That we shall write over the door—"Gone but not forgotten"?

That Brother James M. Mason departs "a sadder and a wiser man"?

That one should never "bite off more'n he kin chaw"?

That among society people there is a disposition to give the Governor's inaugural ball the great American go-by?

That this is sad?

THE WHISPERER.

Fencing as an Exercise for Girls.

Paris Correspondence London Times.

Lovers of fencing had a treat on Friday night. Herr Hartt, of Vienna, accompanied by eight female pupils, gave a performance at the Figaro office, in the presence of two hundred persons, selected from the best judges of fencing. Herr Hartt teaches gymnastics and fencing at the Vienna Conservatorium, and his object was to show the advantage of fencing as an exercise for girls. He objects to gymnastics as too violent, horsemanship as too expensive and insufficiently strengthening, swimming and skating as limited to part of the year, and dancing as enervating, whereas fencing is not exhausting or ungraceful. It promotes the circulation, invigorates the weakly, and is inexpensive.

His pupils are very simply and cheaply dressed in a red or blue woollen shirt, a jacket to match, with light sleeves, and a white leather stomacher strapped at the back. They parry with great coolness and attack with much spirit and precision. A bracelet, offered by the Figaro, was won, after a brilliant encounter between the two sisters Branche, by Leopoldine, and each of the party was presented with a handsome foil wreathed with natural flowers. They belong to respectable families and have come here by their parents' consent, and under the charge of Mme. Branche, not for profit, but to help their master in showing the advantages of fencing as part of female education. The performance excited great interest.

Two Heroes.

Portland (Or.) News.

There are some interesting side points relative to Funk's poor, starving babies, who wandered away in the hills of Mehama Sunday morning, which was previously published in the News. They were not found till Monday noon. A Shepherd dog which was a household favorite followed and guarded them during the long, dark hours when the rain came unceasingly down. No doubt the faithful creature protected them from the many wild animals in the deep woods. But the heroic act of the older child, which the wires failed to correctly record, remains to be added. He took his own little coat from his shivering body and put it on his weaker brother, saving him from freezing, while he endured, in a cotton shirt, hours after hours, the keen blasts of that mountain storm. Think of this from a child but six years old, and let any who can say he is not as much of a hero as any of the full-grown Spartans of old of whom the classics so eloquently tell.

Going to Try It.

Philadelphia Call.

Chicago actress—Oh, Mr. Bootman, I just heard the sweetest thing about Miss De Stella, the New York actress. She wears in one play a pair of slippers made of hair from her own head. Could you make a pair like that?

Mr. Bootman (fashionable shoemaker)—I never tried it but I believe I can do it.

"I am so glad. I have the combings at my room. Make them in any style you choose. Remember I give you carte blanche."

"Oh, any kind of a cart will do. Send one load around this morning to commence on."

Saves Plumbers' Bills.

Chicago Herald.

"I've got the daisiest hired girl I ever had in the house," remarked a passenger on a Madison street car.

"Good housekeeper, good tempered, reliable?"

"Fair to middling housekeeper, but her temper is awful, awful!"

"What are her merits, then?"

"Why, when she gets to jawing the stableman, or the grocer's boy, or the baker, the conversation actually gets so hot that it thaws out the water-pipes."

Good News for Some Poor Fellow.

Trenton Siftings.

Several school girls were discussing their future vocations. One of them was going to be an artiste, another a poetess, etc. "And what are you going to be?" one of them asked of a little girl who had not said anything. "I've made up my mind that I'll be a rich widow when I grow up," was the demure reply.

Too Much Game for the Boys.

Lewisburg (Pa.) News.

One day last week Hyman Wilson, a boy about 10 or 12 years old, son of Alexander Wilson, Esq., of Rockridge Furnace, was playing with two or three other boys in the neighborhood and they concluded to go hunting. They took a dog and strolled out into the woods in the direction of Laurel Run. The dog took a trail and followed it to a hole under a big cliff. The boys, supposing a rabbit or a fox had taken refuge there, got some poles and underbrush to punch him out, when, to their surprise, out came three large bears. The boys, having no means of capturing such large game and so much of it, ran as quickly as they could to Mr. Wilson's house, about a mile and a half distant, and got Mr. Harry Wilson to take a gun and go with them to the spot. Arriving there they found the faithful dog with one of the bears still at bay. A well-aimed shot killed the bear, and as Bruin rolled over in the leaves the boys raised a yell and declared they had lots of fun.

How to Make a Locomotive Nuisance.

Syracuse Herald.

A facetious master mechanic has the following posted in his office for the benefit of "raxy" engineers who are always tooting their whistles: "Performance of the locomotive whistles: Nineteen whistles to let the conductors and the inhabitants for ten miles around knew that the train is going to start. Twenty-nine whistles and two squeals, that it has started. Thirty-two whistles down brakes, thirty-seven whistles 'up-brakes.' Forty whistles and two snorts, a back up." The instructions add, in case of doubt: "Whistle like —— at street crossings. Whistle considerable again. Always whistle before dinner. Require the fireman to keep the whistle valve open during dinner. After dinner whistle and squirt water, then back up. Then go ahead with a whistle, a spurt, and a ring."

MANY of the bitters and quack nostrums of the day are also advertised for consumption on the plan that the only thing that the "stuff" wont cure is the avaricious, ignoble greed of the proprietor. Don't be deceived. The best remedy for strengthening the lungs, soothing all irritation, and stopping the cough, is Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. It has cured many cases where physicians had given up hope. D&W
