WHEELING, W. VA., DECEMBER 18, 1886

Republican Primaries.

The Republican voters of the city of Wheeling will meet in their several wards at the usual places of meeting on Thursday, December 23, 1886, between the hours of 3 and 8 o'clock p. m., to select candidates for the office of City Sergeant, Clerk, Wharfmaster, and members of City Council, to be voted for at the general election to be held on the fourth Thursday in January, 1887.

The Republican candidate for Mayor will be nominated by a convention composed of three delegates from each ward, to be chosen by said Primary Election. This Convention will meet at New City Building, on Wednesday, December 29, at 3 o'clock, p. m.

The Mayor's Convention will also select a new City Executive Committee.

The Judges of the Primary Election are instructed to see that none but Republicans, or such persons as pledge themselves to the support of the ticket, be allowed to vote.

Returns of the election will be made to the committee at the City Clerk's office, on the night of election.

The committee feel that they cannot too strongly urge upon their fellow-Republicans the wisdom of taking an active part in these primary movements, through which the Republican party selects the men for whom it will ask the public support. The party cannot better show its vitality than by displaying its deep interest in the election of its candidates for public service.

By order of the City Executive Committee.

JOHN FREW, Chairman.

Wheeling, W. Va., December 11, 1886.

Over-Exercise.

Better to hunt in fields for health unbought
Than fee the doctor for a nauseous draught.
The wise for cure on exercise depend;
God never made his work for man to mend.

Moderate and well regulated exercise is justly recognized as the most potent means we possess for retaining vigorous health. But if over-exercise be indulged in it will just as surely bring bad results and produce a physical wreck, if it does not cause sudden death.

From the time of Adam man's greatest pride has been the possession of physical strength, and his highest ambition has been to excel in games and sports that call for bodily power and endurance. At the same time his highest happiness has always existed in rest, and relief from physical labor, fatigue and pain.

The nations that are most noted in the world's history for military prowess, chivalric sports, and personal exhibitions of strength and bravery, are the nations that have gradually declined and fallen. While, on the other hand, the people, the Jews for example, who have held aloof from such habits, are the best preserved in health, have shown records of the longest lives, and can claim the highest rate of vitality.

These facts bear on their face the plain lesson that physical strain brings physical wreck. Not a day passes that does not prove the truth of this statement. It is as true in these modern times when the stroke oar of a university crew falls fainting over the side of the victorious boat, as it was in ancient days when the athlete was led home from the Roman games wearing the olive crown—a broken man.

The value of exercise and scientific training of the physical man in connection with mental training, is so much appreciated that nowadays every good college has a well-equipped gymnasium, and a few of the larger institutions boast a professor of gymnastics. Thus the physical education goes, very properly, hand in hand with the mental education. This is right, for the sound mind can dwell only in the sound body. But from intemperate exercise come bad results, and there are occasionally sent out into the world from college physical wrecks from over-exercise, as well as mental wrecks from over-study.

The organ that most feels the strain of over-exercise is the heart. Supplying the blood not only for its own nutrition but for the nourishment of every muscle of the body, it becomes over-grown from undue exercise, and when its power is too severely taxed by some supreme effort it declares itself bankrupt, and leaves its owner an invalid for life, if it does not succumb entirely and beat its last flickering pulsation on the spot.

Almost every one of Wilkie Collins' entertaining novels has some instructive medical truth interwoven with its skillful plot. No one is better told than this liability of a broken heart from physical strain in the ending of Geoffrey Delamayn's last and greatest foot race, in the story of "Man and wife."

To quote from a recent editorial in a leading medical journal: Athletic contests are to be encouraged. They cultivate all the manly qualities, and tend to produce a sound mind as well as a sound body. To attain this worthy result, however, there is need for intelligent medical direction, and without this there is every probability that they may prove most baneful in their immediate and remote consequences.

BREAKFAST BUDGET.

Five hundred thousand alligators are killed yearly for their skins.

The 1,600 convicts in Sing Sing prison eat twenty-one barrels of flour daily.

Forty-one books written by members of the Yale faculty have been published within the last six years.

The sweetest and best flavored pork in the world is produced on the island of Madeira. The hogs there subsist mainly on fruits, nuts, grass and roots.

Dogs ran a fine deer into the yard of Ed. Cole, on Big River, Missouri. One of Ed.'s dogs caught it, and while he held it Mrs. Cole killed it with an ax.

Native raisins from California are said to be successfully competing with the Spanish product, to which the former is preferred in many parts of this country.

A Brooklyn woman who broke one of her legs by falling down a flight of stairs has just recovered $1,500 damages from the owner of the house in which the accident occurred.

Omaha preachers are struggling with the question whether hell is larger than heaven or not. It is pleasant to note that the question is generally decided in the negative.

At a Baptist church festival in New Haven the other evening Mrs. Nancy Gorham, who was 91 years old that day, sang a song of her childhood in a most agreeable and vivacious manner.

The most heavily endowed educational institutions in the United States are: Girard College, $10,000,000; Columbia, $5,000,000; Johns Hopkins, $4,000,000; Harvard, $3,000,000; Princeton, $3,500,000; Lehigh, $1,800,000; Cornell, $1,400,000.

According to Professor J. Norman Lockyer, the English astronomer, the total number of stars of which some knowledge can be gained with the optical aid now available is from 40,000,000 to 50,000,000. Only about 6,000 are visible to the naked eye.

PREPARATION.

The damsel now doth don her sweetest smiles,
And from her face affection radiates,
Unto her suitor prettily she prates,
Exerting all her sorceries and wiles.

She would not anger him for anything,
For Christmas is rapidly drawing nigh,
And, as the chill December days go by,
She keeps her eye upon a diamond ring.

But other jewels are to her not barred;
She's never known a shining gem to spurn,
She purchases, his kindness to return,
A gaudy, inexpensive Christmas card.

REMEMBER That the presence of Generals Beauregard and Early, who are in charge of the drawings, is a guarantee of absolute fairness and integrity, that the chances are all equal, and that no one can possibly divine what number will draw a Prize. All parties heretofore advertising to guarantee Prizes in this Lottery, or holding out any other impossible inducements, are swindlers, and only aim to deceive and defraud the unwary.

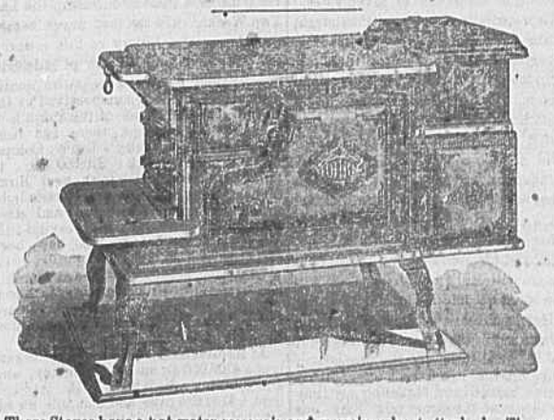
Extension Stoves.

EXTENSION STOVES.



These Stoves have a hot-water reservoir and warming closet attached. The water is heated in an incased porcelain-lined tank, which is far superior to a tea-kettle, as it has greater capacity and occupies no room on the stove. The hot closet warms dishes and is free from dust. These stoves are handsome; are GUARANTEED in every respect, and we sell them at prices no higher than are usually paid for stoves without the extension.

Every Family Without a Hot-Water Boiler Should Have One.

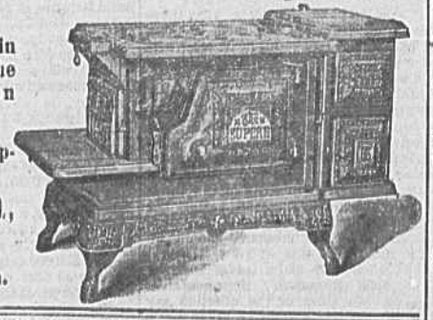
Ask to see the OHIO when you want a Really Handsome Stove at a low price; and the SUPERB, when a sumptuous and elegant article is desired.



No other firm in the city makes the Modern Extension Stove.
