DREAMS.

Pressed in the downy pillows lay
A maiden's lovely face.
Her shining tresses tossed about
In such a wilching grace.
Looking as though a sea of smiles
Her just had tumbled in,
Throwing their laughing curves around
Her dainty mouth and chin.

Will some magician with his art,
Some nymph from fairy land,
Tell me what happy dream invites
Her smile so gentle, bland?
When seemingly the all sweet comes,
Can you pluck the scent of flowers,
Or count the unseam a golden strands
That loop the noonday hours?

So I am wondering still how dreams,
Such simple things, are made,
And if some fairy's lost his way
And through the brain has strayed,
Changing the dark spots with his wand
To jewels' sparkling gleams—
O, if dreams were but realities,
And realities were dreams!

JANE ALMA.

SOUTH CAROLINA'S NEW SENATOR.

Mr. Irby's Character—Record—Something About His Private Character.

New York Tribune.

The first product of the union of the Democratic party and the Farmers' Alliance that has challenged National attention is the newly chosen Senator from South Carolina. Apart from the political conditions that have produced him and the political sentiment he has been brought forward to express, he is, upon other accounts, an interesting person. His name is Irby, and he enjoys the title of "Colonel." Until within a dozen months he was known in South Carolina only from his record in the courts. It seems that he was "born a gentleman," which, in some parts of America, as frequently abroad, is understood to give a man the right to be a blackguard without incurring the perils and responsibilities usually attached to blackguardly pursuits. This view of a gentleman's privileges seems to be entertained by Colonel Irby, and certainly he has made a bold effort to live up to it. He touched the extreme point to which even the "finest gentleman" could safely go. One step more and South Carolina's courts would have sent him to prison before South Carolina's Legislature had the chance to send him to the Senate.

It is mentioned, indeed, that the Colonel has recently reformed and joined the church, but the class of comments with which this statement is always accompanied leaves it impossible to say how it is regarded by his partisans—whether reprovingly or regretfully. It cannot be quite made out whether he has been elected because he has reformed or in spite of that fact and because his friends are confident that he will fall from grace. It is accounted proof of his chivalrous sense of honor, for instance, that he challenged a fellow-student at college to a duel, and although the story is told by some authorities with the circumstance included that he stipulated with his second to draw the bullets just before the meeting it is evidently counted on in South Carolina as valuable for votes. The performance at Laurens, his native town, when he got nobly drunk and stood with a gun in a public square defying the constables to come and arrest him is admiringly described in a way that brings his courage to the front. It is well known that the Farmers' Alliance are sternly opposed to lawyers, and the Colonel, having been admitted to the bar, comes within the general proscription, but in order to show that he can be depended upon to favor direct and speedy processes, and to sweep away legal quibbles and subterfuges, an incident in his career is cited when he and his brother set upon the town Justice and slashed him with knives for venturing to differ with them on a point of law in which they happened to be interested.

So that, although the new Alliance Senator has reformed and now attends church regularly, it is not unfair to consider his past deeds, since it is in their light his own partisans construe his character and point out his virtues. They illustrate his high-mindedness by the fact that, having disputed with a tradesman, he did not personally chastise so inferior a person, but compelled a negro to do it, holding a pair of pistols the while at their respective heads. The colonel's crowning glory was achieved about twelve years ago, when, with some boon companions, he got into a drunken street brawl, the issue of which was a dead man. The gallant Colonel fled the State and was outlawed. A price was offered for his recovery, but presently he returned and stood trial with others for his life. Two bullets had entered the murdered man's body, and the Colonel's pistol had but one empty chamber. Only one of the shots was necessarily fatal, and the question was, which shot did Irby fire? The jury gave him the benefit of the doubt, but, of course, it was logically consequent that the other man's shot had killed, and so the other man was convicted. Mr. Irby is a United States Senator, therefore, and not a convict, because his aim was poor.

The incidents we have mentioned appear to be the only remarkable features of Colonel Irby's life, so far as it has been revealed by the South Carolina papers. The public is left to infer that it is these events which the Farmers' Alliance and the Democratic party of South Carolina have combined to honor and to hold up for the emulation of their young men. It is true that the Colonel has served a term in the Legislature, and that he managed Captain Tillman's campaign last fall, but so rich a reward can scarcely have been conferred for so small a service. We shall watch the career of the new Senator with great interest, but we hope that if the Alliance is going to join with the Democracy in the evolution of other heroes, it will select these as to whose representative character there shall be less room for controversy. The public is anxious to understand the Alliance's aims and purposes, and if Colonel Irby's election illustrates them, we cannot see how they differ essentially from Tammany Hall's.

Why He Failed.

New York Sun.

"Talking of snow," said the man with a tan-colored goatee, "you ought to see it snow in the Winnipeg country. We don't know what snow is down here."

"Lots of it up there, eh?" asked the man with the eyeglasses?"

"Lots doesn't express it. Why, gentlemen, two winters ago snow fell where I was to the depth of nine feet before Christmas, and on the 17 of January it was fourteen feet deep around my factory."

"So you had a factory?"

"Yes, sir."

"What sort?"

"A snow-shovel factory."

"Gosh! You located in the right place to strike it rich! How many thousand did you sell?"

"Never sold even one single shovel, sir."

"You didn't? What was the matter?"

"Why, the people up there have nothing to do but wait for snow to go off, and that happened to be an early season, and a thaw came on about the middle of May! Yes, sir, I lost six months' time and $2,000 up there."

Has the Courage of His Convictions.

Cleveland Leader.

Bold and bluff Ben, Butterworth is pressing his bill to tax to death option dealing in grain and provisions just as vigorously as if he had not been appointed to a place of power and responsibility in the management of the Columbian exposition at Chicago. He is not in the least afraid of the wrath of the Chicago Board of Trade gamblers, who hate his bill and denounce him as a crank because he wishes to stop a very ruinous form of speculation. Such a man can ill be spared from public life, and Butterworth will be much missed in the House of Representatives.

As a matter of course there was no delay at the custom house, and no question of imposing a duty upon the preparation. The first tests with the lymph will be made under Dr. Jacobi's direction at Mt. Sinai hospital, which will be a center of interest for medical men and victims of tuberculosis for some time to come.

They Beat the Devil.

Mt. Vernon Republican.

The latest excursion made by the devil against the church militant was his plan for creating dissension among the Methodists by denying women the right of representation in the deliberations of that body; but the devil, as well as a number of "Holy Willies," counted without their host, and the women are triumphantly vindicated. The church generally would make slow progress against the tide of sin were it not for the example and zeal of our Christian women.

Remarkable Rescue.

Mrs. Michael Curtain, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement that she caught cold, which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her she was a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption; she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefitted from first dose. She continued its use and after taking ten bottles, found herself sound and well, now does her own housework and is as well as she ever was. FINANCE AND TRADE.

The Features of the Money and Stock Markets.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Money on call easy, ranging from 1 to 3 per cent, last loan 2 per cent, closed offered at 3 per cent. Prime mercantile paper 5@6 per cent. Sterling exchange active and firm at $4 84@$4 85. Sales 1,800 shares.

The stock market to-day showed no change in its tone from those of the previous few days, being dull and narrow, but without firmness or strength. The final changes of the day, while somewhat irregular and generally fractional, amounts only, are in most cases in the direction of higher figures. The announcement that the caucus of the Republican Senators in Washington had agreed on conservative financial measures added materially to the feeling of confidence this morning, and bankers here certainly thought these measures be passed a great deal of gold that has been withheld from the market will be returned to it.

Opening prices were made at declines of from ⅛ to ¾ per cent. The market after the first sales, with some buying, began to advance. Rock Island was hurt by rumors that the next dividend would be paid in Lackawanna stock instead of cash, but after some time that was altogether withdrawn and all the improvement was lost. The close was dull but firm at close to the best figures. Final changes are of small note, principally fractional advances.

Breadstuff and Provisions.

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—The price of May wheat in the first hunch of transactions was at from $1 00⅛ to $1 00⅝, but the opinion of the majority regarding the place to be the greater of Keene & Leiter was soon manifested in an advance to $1 01⅛@1 01¼, which finishes at $1 00⅞, the trading of the next twenty minutes took place. By 10 o'clock fresh ground had been broken and $1 01⅞ was paid for a few lots. The cause which caused the land was mixed in character, and was capable of supplying ammunition to reach of the contending parties, with the preponderance, however, in favor of the bulls. That which appeared to strike the speculators most forcibly was the clear increase of wheat and the heavy clearances of flour from the port of New York. Reports of damage to winter wheat from dry weather and freezing were likewise in the ascendency from so wide an area as to create a feeling of uneasiness among the shorts.

The corn market was nervous and unsettled at the opening, and there was a good attendance in the trading pit. Prices closed at about the lowest point of the day.
