The Daily News.

THURSDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 21, 1867.

A REFUTATION OF BASE SLANDERS.

We publish the subjoined article from the New York News, in vindication of the Hon. BENJAMIN WOOD, against the base calumnies which have lately appeared in the New York World and Tribune against that gentleman, and also as it more clearly explains the position of one of the South's staunchest and most co[illegible]cous friends in the North. Many of our readers will doubtless have heard the story that, during the war, Mr. W. received for his services to the Confederacy a check from Canada for $25,000. This article will explain the whole matter:

The annexed article, which we publish entire, is from the Tribune of Wednesday last. It contains an extract from a letter in the World of February 2, furnished under the date of Washington, January 31. As the libellous matter in this letter has been sanctioned by the World's publication of it, and without any rebuke to the correspondent on the part of the editor, it is very evident that the malicious intention of the inventor of the falsehood has been willingly seconded by Mr. Manton Marble. The comments of the Tribune are not less unfair, and the misrepresentations and slander, in respect to the matter whic it drags forward, equally reprehensible.

We refer at once to the Tribune's article, and shall then proceed to notice the libels of both journals in all essential points:

SECRET POLITICAL HISTORY.

The World has a letter, dated Washington, which says:

"I was much gratified with your review of Mr. Greeley's article attacking the Democratic party. If Mr. Greeley did not know that it was a base slander, there might be some excuse for it. I regret you did not carry the review further, and disclaim for the Democratic party any responsibility for the course of the New York News during the Presidential campaign. Doubtless, Mr. Greeley knows how much was paid by the Loyal League or the Republican State Committee, weekly, toward the support of that sheet; if he does not know the fact, he is more ignorant of the movements of his party than I take him to be; perhaps he refused to be informed, for the same reason his friend T. W. declined to read Gov. Young's letter promising to pardon the anti-renters if he were elected; and that was that he might deny it in his paper.

"I am credibly informed, by one who was in the ring, that a large sum was paid for this purpose; and certainly the course of the paper is good evidence of its truth.

"History will yet do justice to the leading Democrats who were made to bear the odium of the course of the News, the Woods, Vallandigham, Gen. Singleton, and others of the same kidney. Facts are already leaking out that these men were in secret alliance with the Administration, and worked at the Chicago Convention to render the resolutions as odius to the true Union men as possible, so as to work the defeat of McClellan.

"The sooner the Democratic party spurn these men from their ranks, and break off any affiliations with Seward, Stanton, Weed & Co., the sooner will they rally to their standard the honest and true men of the country. I am clear in my opinion that Seward's Buffalo speech, and the half-way endorsement of Hoffman by Mr. Weed, were two of the most prominet causes of his defeat. The Democratic element of the Republican party could not reconcile themselves to a seeming association with them. For poor Raymond nobody cares," &c., &c., &c.

Comments by the Tribune.

We assure the writer of the above, the World, The World, the Democratic party, and mankind in general, that we do not know "how much was paid by the Loyal League, or by the Republican State Committee, weekly," or otherwise, toward the support of the Hon. Ben. Wood's Daily News "during the Presidential campaign," or at any other time. If any one does know, we will thank him to out with it. We did hear of a check or draft for $25,000 in gold which Mr. Wood received in 1864 from the Hon. Jacob Thompson (rebel) in Canada; but we never heard that the Republicans supplied Jake with the funds. Still, there are so many dark holes and corners in political management—so many wheels within wheels—where of we know nothing, and are rather proud of our ignorance, that all this might be, and we in blissful ignorance of the whole matter. We will thank any one who does know to tell the public all about it.

But we do not see how anything that can be said will help the Democratic party, since it is impeached for its own acts, not Wood's. The Daily News was well known to be, from first to last, an organ of deadly hostility to the war for the Union, and an unqualified champion and mouth-piece of the Southern Confederacy. It violently opposed volunteering as well as drafting to fill the ranks of the Union armies, and in every way did its utmost to insure the triumph of secession. Yet, in full view of all this, its editor and proprietor, Benj. Wood, was in the middle of that war nominated, supported and elected, on the same ticket with Gov. Seymour, to represent the lower part of our city in Congress, of which he was already a member, and where he was steadily voting and acting precisely as though he had been sent thither by Jefferson Davis as his attorney. The Tammany branch of the Democracy talked of sustaining the war; yet Wood was their nominee, and owed to them his election. And, since the war was over, they have chosen him to the State Senate, wherein he now sits.

Now, then, supposing all the above farrago about the Loyal League, Seward, Stanton, T. W., Raymond, etc., etc., were true, how would it benefit the Democratic party? It seems to us like trying to help one who has been proved a knave by proving him a fool as well. Do let us hear how it bears on the main question!

During the late lamentable and devastating war, we stood pledged as an American citizen to do our duty to our country, and we maintained, at hazard to our property, liberty and life, that peace measures ought to have prevailed from the first, and that with them the Government might have ended the disastrous strife that has filled the land with mourning and desolation. Although we were not on the side of the powerful and victorious, we were, as we then believed, and as we now believe, on the side of principle and justice; and we would not to-day exchange our own position on that question if we could wear the laurels of General Grant or General Sherman. Throughout the contest we pursued a milorm course according to our conscience, and no influences that honor would not sanction ever moved our judgment or directed our actions. Affiliations or alliances with those inimical to our political views we did not entertain, because, as is well known, we stood almost alone—certainly with not a predominating party to sustain us—from the beginning to the close of the war. Yet, in this statement of the World, what extent of malicious falsehood has not been indulged in! What mendacity do we find underneath the whole of it! We are charged with receiving, weekly, from the Loyal League, or the Republican State Committee, money for the support of the Daily News. What does Mr. Manton Marble mean by this? Why, he simply means to disseminate, and with the design of injuring us, a base and unqualified lie—one that he knew was such when he placed it before the public. And who is he who has done this? He is the editor of the World, who, some few years since, came to us, in the most deplorable plight, asking us to aid him, at a time when he could not pay his employees, and who then received our aid to such an extent that he has been able to keep the World on its axis to the present time. This is the way in which he displays gratitude for a service that saved him from ruin, and enables him to be one of the proprietors of the World. It is difficult to believe, but it is not the less true, that this Mr. Marble is capable of thus publishing falsehoods, knowing them to be such; for, had he not approved and sanctioned this publication to our detriment, he would have hastened, as an honorable man would do, to make reparation for the wrong he has perpetrated. The correspondent whom he endorses, if he is the man we believe him to be, is a felon who has served out a term in the State Prison; and we hereby pledge ourselves to give five thousand dollars to one of the charitable institutions of this city if Mr. Manton Marble, or his co-libeller in Washington, will prove that we have ever received, for the support of The Daily News, a single dollar from the Republican party, the Democratic party, the Loyal League, or any other political association. We will do this cheerfully to stimulate a good result from a quarter whence it is least to be expected, and because, if these and like slanders be permitted to remain uncontradicted, they may connect our name, in years to come, with apparently real transactions, though now they seem to us so imaginary that we sometimes marvel at the ingenuity of base minds in contriving such malicious inventions. More than this. If Mr. Manton Marble wish us to be more explicit as to the aid we gave him to enable him to possess an engine wherewith to do us an injury by his publication of falsehoods, we are ready to supply it, and to show how it happens that he has been able to keep the World in existence. The story is not without interest, and he shall have the full benefit of it, together with all the credit due to the political honesty he has displayed since he undertook to manage the World. We will not say that the charge against us made by the World is too preposterous to be entertained by rational minds. People are ready to believe anything, and even those who are incredulous by nature insensibly absorb the venom of slander and contribute to circulate it, regardless of the feelings of others. Hence, we afford Mr. Marble full scope to make good his falsehoods, or, failing in that, to brand himself everywhere as a willing falsifier and liar, as indifferent to his own reputation as to that of others. However, we now dismiss the World and its libelling editor, to give our attention to the Tribune, which is to be blamed for repeating a story that it has always had the most easy means to learn was unworthy of credence.

The Tribune has not learned anything repecting payments of money to us from the Loyal League or the Republican State Committee to support the Daily News "during the Presidential campaign," or at any other time; but it has "heard of a check or draft for $25,000 in gold that Mr. Wood received in 1864 from Canada, etc. Now, with respect to this calumnious report, we may say, that we had supposed it had been so completely annihilated that not even the Tribune would attempt to bring it forward for any purpose whatsoever. We have been under a delusion. Many editors seem to delight in doing anything that truly honorable men would scorn as repulsive and loathsome, and hence the public seem to regard a large proportion of them as liars by profession. In reference to the draft received in 1864 from Canada we have some testimony to offer; and we wish to place the matter on record, and to brand as a falsehood the statement that it was received for our own use. The story was coined, like others, by political enemies, to inure to their own personal advantage. When the question about this Canada draft was first brought forward by the Government witnesses on the assassination trials, we telegraphed as follows to the Secretary of War, to show our readiness, under oath, to state all we knew with respect to the business. The telegram was in these words:

NEW YORK DAILY NEWS OFFICE, June 17, 1865.

To Edwin M. Stanton, Secretary of War, Washington:

If necessary to the interests of justice I will proceed to Washington cheerfully. Please answer.

BENJAMIN WOOD.

No reply having been sent to us, and it having been reported that Mr. Stanton would have nothing further to do with the military commission, we determined, if possible, to vindicate ourselves from the slanders industriously propagated by political writers. Accordingly, the annexed letter was sent, as directed, on the day of its date:

OFFICE N. Y. DAILY NEWS, NEW YORK, June 19, 1865.

Maj. Gen. David Hunter, President Military Commission at Washington:

SIR: In the course of testimony before the court over which you preside, my name has been mentioned, and remains upon the record of the court in connection with evidence of certain business transactions that, unexplained, seem to place me in a false position before the public.

I claim, therefore, a thorough investigation of the subject before your court, and respectfully request my formal and immediate examination, under oath, touching any point wherein my integrity and subordination to the laws may have been questioned.

Respectfully, your obedient servant,

B. WOOD.

Nothing resulted from this application. It appeared quite evident that the propriety and right of our course in the matter pertaining to the money were well understood at Washington—that it was known that the whole business was strictly of a private character, and such as any gentleman might engage in, either during the war or since. It was not the pleasure, however, of political enemies to have the truth known; and therefore was it that the slanders were kept before the public mind, without explanation or refutation, when the Government had the testimony in the case close at hand.

Happily for ourselves, however, there were those who watched the currency of these slaandere and falsehoods with a determination to stamp them with their true character whenever the opportunity should be favorable for so doing. Among our friends was one whose name is so well known to the American people, whose character is so exalted, and whose word is so far the synonym for truth itself, that his testimony will not be doubted. The Hon. Clement C. Clay, of Alabama, wrote to us last May. In referring to the calumnies heaped upon us by the Tribune and by another journal of this city, with which we were then engaged in a "newspaper war" (and which we are ready to renew at any time, if provoked to it by injustice and malevolence), that very highly distinguished gentleman said:

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., May 7, 1866.

I was repeatedly catechised during my imprisonment about your business in Canada, and what you received from me; especially whether you got from me $25,000. I uniformly answered, that so far from receiving a cent from me, you refused even what I thought was justly due you for your sacrifices to the cause of constitutional liberty, and that y[illegible] never uttered a sentiment or a word that any truly loyal citizen of the United States would condemn; and I added that I would vindicate you, if I lived, from all the foul abuse of your libellers," etc., etc.

CLEMENT C. CLAY.

We shall now dismiss this subject, not, however, with any hope that either Mr. Manton Marble or the Tribune will do us justice by a spontaneous free act.

We have thus refuted the base slander circulated to annoy and injure us, that it may not be said hereafter, with any evidence of truth at least, that we permitted the falsehoods to go uncontradicted. As to the political position to which we have been raised by the generous suffrages of our fellow-citizens, we say, with great satisfaction, that we have endeavored to be worthy of obtaining and retaining it. If any evidence were wanting that the views which we have entertained, and the course which we have pursued, have found favor with the people, it can be discerned in the results of the various elections which have placed us in places of trust, while powerful political organizations, backed by every species of malevolent falsehood, have failed to carry their candidates against us. The very arguments used and the slanders circulated to prove that we are not of the true Democratic faith are annihilated in their effects by our position as a representative of the popular will, not only during the war but even at the present time.

New Orleans Market.

NEW ORLEANS, February 15.—COTTON—The market opened this morning with a limited inquiry, and has continued dull and inactive throughout the day. The assortment on sale was ample to meet the demand; notwithstanding several factors refused to uncover their tables, but the majority of buyers manifested little desire to operate, in anticipation of increased weakness, and consequently the business transacted has been unusually light, comprising, at the close, barely 2500 bales, mostly intended for the completion of unexecuted orders. Eleven brokers participated in the business. Prices indicated further weakness, but the only alteration we make in our quotations is to drop our outside figures, and in accordance therewith we now quote as follows: Ordinary 28½a—c; Good Ordinary 29½a—; Low Middling 30½a—, and Middling 31½a—, adding the market closed with a tendency to greater ease. The sales for the past three days comprise 12,700 bales, making an aggregate for the week of 33,300 bales, against 30,200 last week. The receipts proper for the past week (excluding the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas, which are included in their respective statements) embrace 19,433 bales, against 26,030 last week, showing a decrease of 6597 bales. The week's exports comprise 22,543 bales, 6770 of which were coastwise, and 19,773 to foreign ports.
