J. H. KOOGLER, Editor

The age of chivalry may be over, but the age of barbarism is still here. Kentucky by no means enjoys a monopoly of the latter article, but Breathitt County, in that commonwealth, affords a shining example of what ought not to be permitted in in a Christian country in the last quarter of the nineteenth century, Making due allowances for exaggeration, it appears that a condition very nearly approaching anarchy exists now and has existed for years past in that county. Every election produces violence. And violence by no means ends when the election is over. The factions fight it out. They will not consider themselves bound by the action at the polls. What has a majority to do with the matter? They are not satisfied, hence they fight. There is no constitutional morality in Breathitt. The majority does not rule, but the rifle does. Can Kentucky afford this luxury? We do not think she can. If we mistake not, her Governor was assisting at a "swell" wedding while these at atrocities were going on. If he is afraid to act, perhaps the people of Kentucky may find some one that can act. A Governor in the presence of domestic violence be prepared to act promptly. He ought to get as near the scene of of violence as possible, so as to deal intelligently with the matter. There is no need of shooting, at least until other methods have been tried and failed but is every need of being prepared to suppress mob rule at a every hazard. Breathitt County has no good name to lose. But the people of Kentucky have. Her people are great sticklers for local self-government. Let us see now whether local self-government means the rule of the mob and the rifle. If it does there will be some hesitancy in accepting its blessings in others quarters.—The Daily Graphic.

Selling Votes.

The Tucson Star talks, hard, because Stevens, it's favorite, will probably be left out in the cold: We have in our possession letters and telegrams from responsible parties in three different towns in this Territory which go to show that Mr. Stevens was offered at a stated price one hundred votes at one place, one hundred and fifty in another, and one hundred and thirty-five in Tucson all certificate votes, the papers held by men who had them for sale by the hundreds. He indignatly refused to pay money, answering by telegram that if he could not be elected by the honest vote of the people, he did not desire the election. From responsible citizens of this city, we learn that seventy-five of the Tucson vote above referred to cast their ballots for Mr. Campbell. Prices were fixed and refused by Stevens or his friends. Had he desired to purchase votes, he could have increased his vote in Tucson one hundred and in other places to a much greater number where votes were offered him.—Arizona Silver Belt.

Lucky Pueblo.

The result of the sale of the stock in the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe road which was ordered by the recent election in Pueblo, is that the railroad officials have about $100,000 in bonds which they want to trade for stock, giving dollar for dollar. It is not every bond voting community that is treated so liberally. Pueblo county wanted a railroad and voted bonds to secure it. No one who voted for those bonds expected but that they would run their course and be redeemed as a matter of course. Now the stock obtained in lieu of the bonds is sold, the bonds being given back to the county in payment and the railroad is built and running. It is too often the case that when the road bed is finished the bonds are taken at a low figure in exchange for stock at a high figure. When the company wants to buy its stock bonds are suddenly advanced in value, and stock depressed. But in this case it is a clear gain to Pueblo. Lucky Pueblo.

The Standard Silver Dollars.

Washington, December 18—The House Committe on Banking and Currency to-day heard Representative Burchard, of Illinois, in advocacy of his bill to prohibit any discrimination by national banks against standard dollars. Representative Chittenden of the committee, made an argument in reply, and General Ewing submitted a substitute for the Burchard and all other pending bills relative to the silver dollars. It is a new measure embracing the propositions, viz: First—That any national bank which discriminates against the standard silver dollar shall be placed in liquidation and have its circulation notes withdrawn by the government. Second—To make United States notes and silver dollars interchange able at the treasury. Third—To provide for the exchange at the mints of standard silver dollars for the trade dollars, and the recoinage of the latter into standard dollars, with a prohibition against the further coinage of trade dollars of the present weight and fineness. The committee, without action, adjourned until after the holiday recess.

It is peculiarly appropriate that Morrison, the representative of an Illinois district which counts no crop so certain as fever and ague, should move against the duty on quinine. The late Mr. Powers of Philadelphia, who died a few weeks ago, made a fortune of ten millions by the monopoly conferred by the duty on that drug and it is high time we had a chance free at physic. If the French can manufacture quinine cheaper than our chemists, let us give them the business and stop shaking to make American millionaires.—St Louis Republican.

Winter Bonnets.

The most fashionable winter bonnets revieve very old styles—shapes worn at least a century ago. They are high and quaint and very, narrow across the back, which has no cape, but is finished with a straight band. The brim is small and worn close to the head, or there is none at all, only a straight band, which is covered by a band of feathers or flowers or leaves, and fits the head like a seal-skin cap. The crown stands high, and the trimming is massed in front

A pretty costume bonnet, is of dark blue satin, with an interior ruching of red and a red satin bow upon the front. With this is worn a costume of dark blue velvet, with a red satin vest and one graceful cordon of long red satin loops in the drapery at the back.

The flaring hats are less popular than last year. Young ladies prefer the English walking hats and the small bonnets, which are so dainty and distingue. There are some bright, piquant, faces, however, to which the large hats are decidely becoming—the irregular faces, with low brows, bright eyes, curling hair and greater breadth than length of feature.

A stylish addition to these hats this season consists of the black sweeping plumes, gracefully arranged upon the interior of the broad brim, which is thrown back from the face. Black ostrich feathers always becoming, and the sombre character of these hats in all black is well relieved by the inexpressible softnes which these drooping plumes impart to the face.

A very handsome reception bonnet is of the white mastic or pale putty-colored satin. The trimming is narrow satin ribbon, of the mastic shade, with gold on the reversed side and a profusion of marabout feathers tipped with gold. Across the front is a scarf of pale Spanish blonde, exquisitely embroidered with fine gold threads. This can be fastened at the sides or under the chin, or in any way to suit the wearer's pleasure and convenience.

The Child's Bath

There is one important point which is the question of the day with mother and nurse, and that the is morning, bath. Let the room be well warmed before child is taken out of bed, and let those who think a cold bath an absolute necessity remember that, on a summer morning, their children enjoy it; and if they keep the temperature of the water the same all the year round, that is, about 55 or 60 degrees, they may obtain all the benefit possible. Let them think how unreasonable it is to take water not much above the freezing, point and attack the nervous system, already depressed, by a shock which is followed by a reaction which requires the whole morning to recover from. We have no hesitation in recommending a warm bath, early in the day, followed by a simple douche of cold water, as far preferable to the cold bath, or a warm bath a night, for the sake of cleanliness, and none at all in the morning. It may be taken as a rule that, in the case of children, sudden changes of temperature are dangerous, and that 58 degress to 60 degrees may be taken as the safe average temperature in which they should be constantly kept.—British Medical Journal.

The following El Moro items are from the Trinidad News: Since the D. & R. G. road went into the hands of the A. T. & S. F. there a perceptible falling off in travel towards Denver. No more tickets sold for the east by the way of Denver.

Two thousand sheep that had been lately shorn near El Moro, have died during this cold spell. The winds were badly tempered to the shorn lamb this time.

Gen. F. Sigle has started on a lecturing tour. He will lecture in New York, Ohio, Indiana, Iowa and Illinois during the winter, and has prepared six lectures, three of which he will deliver in English as well as in German. The subjects of these latter are: "The Second Battle of Bull Run, Its Character and Results;" "Germany Since the First French Revolution, Its Struggle and Transformation;" "The German-American Element, with Particular Reference to the ends of the Turnvereins."

Conkling not a Candidate.

New York, December 18.—It is asserted very positively by some of Conkling's friends as a result of personal conferences invited here and at Washington, that he will not under any circumstances consent to be a presidential candidate. The Tribune says it has been the Senator's earnest desire to disassociate himself in the public mind from all ideas of a presidential candidacy, and his friends have as earnestly opposed it.

Signs of Trouble.

St. Louis, Dec. 20.—advices from Texas says official intelligence has been received at Austin from the El Paso district that armed bands of desperadoes have arrived there from New Mexico; that the Mexicans show signs of making trouble; and that the Judge of the District fears that court cannot be held.

The above is an associate press dispatch We don't know of any armed bands of New Mexicans invading Texas. The boot is rather on the other boot.

Because Miss Mary A. Staples, of Norwich, Conn., persisted in marrying in his proverty her lover, Edward F. Chase, her father, the late James Staples, one of the richest farmers in the state, refused to see them and when he died left a will providing that while she lived with her husband she should inherit none of his property. She got a divorce got the property, married her husband again and is now living with him in contentment and comfort.

Jews in Congress.

Mr. Edwin Einstein, Congressman-elect from the Seventh District, is the second Israelite who has been elected in Congress from this city, the first having been Emanuel B. Hart, who served from 1851 to 1853. The Jewish Times says that Major Noah was once a member from this city, but neither in Luman's Congressional Record nor in Moore's Congressional Directory, just published, does his name appear. Philadelphia sent Henry M. Phillips from 1857 to 1861. Boston sent Leopold Morse in 1877; and has just reelected him. Judah P. Benjamin was United States Senator, from Louisiana from 1853 until 1861. These, we believe, are the only Jews who have served in Congress.—Inter Ocean.

Making artificial flowers is quite an art in Paris, and many ladies are now learning to turn it into a profession, which is certain to prove remunerative to those who are skilful. It is a pretty, cleanly, amusing occupation, demanding no special vocation and no great outlay for tools, etc.; and already teachers in the art advertise courses of lessons. Never were artificial flowers more in demand than in the present day—dinner as well as ball dresses being trimmed lavishly with them. It has become a custom at large dinners to place a small bouquet on the serviette of every lady guest; the style of the bouquet is known as "Jardiniere," because it is of mixed flowers, but always seasonable ones.

Postmaster-Gen. Key is importuned by an old lady of California, whose name is Key also, to "please send his pedigree by return mail." The old lady gives all the family names of the Keys back to the revolution, and says that the postmaster-general, with others, may justly claim the ownership of the city of Brooklyn, N. Y., and property valued at $200,000,000.

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.'s SELECT LIST OF LOCAL NEWSPAPERS.

Many persons suppose this list to be composed of cheap, low priced newspapers. The fact is quite otherwise. The Catalogue states exactly what the papers are. When the name of a paper is printed in FULL FACE TYPE, it is in every instance the BEST paper in the place. When printed in CAPITALS it is the ONLY paper in the place. When printed in Roman letters it is neither the best nor the only paper, but usually a very good one, notwithstanding. The list gives the population of every town and the circulation of every paper. IT IS NOT A CO-OPERATIVE LIST. IT IS NOT A CHEAP LIST. At the end of the Catalogue for each State the important towns which are not covered by the list are enumerated. IT IS AT LOWEST RATE. The rates charged for advertising are barely one-fifth the publishers' schedule. The price for one inch four weeks in the entire list is $635. The regular rates of the papers for the same space and time are $3,136 35. The list includes 970 newspapers, of which 163 are issued DAILY and 807 WEEKLY. They are located in 825 different cities and towns, of which 22 are State Capitals, 328 places of over 5,000 population, and 444 County Seats. LIST SENT ON APPLICATION. Address GEO. P.
