ONE HUNDRED LIVES LOST

A Terrible Holocaust Occurred in New York City Yesterday

At least 100 people were killed and 350 injured in the series of explosions and great fire which followed at Warren and Greenwich streets in New York City yesterday afternoon. After the explosion occurred, fire swept two entire blocks. One hundred girls were penned in a chemical establishment and only thirty of them escaped alive.

New York, October 30.—Shortly after noon yesterday a series of chemical explosions occurred in the drug and chemical establishment of the Tarrant Company, at Warren and Greenwich streets.

Fire resulted from the explosions and swept two blocks.

The city was shaken by the force of the explosions for blocks around. The Tarrant building was wrecked and then the wreckage burned.

The loss to property is estimated at $1.500,000.

The Irving bank, near the drug house, was wrecked. City Hall Park was strewn with debris, scattered by the explosion.

The masonry of the Tarrant building was scattered in every direction. Heavy girders were hurled over high buildings and fell in City Hall Park.

A portion of the elevated railroad was wrecked, and about fifty men and women, in panic, either jumped or were thrown to the street below.

One hundred girls were employed in the drug house. Only thirty of these escaped alive, and scarcely one of these uninjured.

A fire company was buried in the debris and eighteen men killed.

The estimated loss of life is 100, while the number of injured is at least 350. Many of these will die.

BANK ROBBER BAGGED

The Man Who Stole $700,000 Arrested in Boston

Boston, October 30.—After a search of a week Cornelius L. Alvord, Jr., former note teller of the First National Bank of New York City, who is a defaulter to the bank in the sum of $700,000, was arrested here yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Alvord was found by the police in a small back room in a third rate boarding house.

Alvord broke down completely when taken into custody. He wept like a child.

"I am guilty," he sobbed, "but I haven't a cent of the money. Most of it I threw away in gambling and stock speculation. All the property I have was bought with stolen funds. I'll give it all over to the bank willingly."
