BROTHER OF LOCAL MAN AUTHOR OF NEW SOUTHWESTERN STORY

The book stores are displaying copies of "The Man From Yesterday," by Will Robinson, a brother of Theodore H. E. Robinson, of this city, superintendent of Indian irrigation work in New Mexico, Arizona and Colorado.

The book is a story of the southwest.

Mr. Robinson, the author of "The Man From Yesterday," knows the country and the people of the southwest. He came at an early day—seventeen years ago—and has lived and worked in the southwest land ever since. Being a close observer of country, people and motives he has written a story true to type, true to nature and true to atmosphere that will take a grip on the reader because of its truth and reality.

In spite of the backward look suggested by the title, "The Man From Yesterday," is, most emphatically, a novel of today. The scene is laid in the big American southwest, and instead of filling in his canvas with models of the familiar picture postcard cowboy, the conventional desperado and the like, Mr. Robinson has portrayed actual people who inhabit the little cities of this newly developed portion of the country—a little where men made big by the vast necessities of their environment, have turned deserts into fruitful fields, and covered the old haunts of the coyote and the rattler with blocks and so forth, practically.

The hero of the story, Rodney McKane, intends to go to the province of the Canadian Northwest to take up the business of a prominent man of affairs in the commonwealth, through the influence of his powerful patron, suddenly finds himself marooned in the other end of the state, and at the very beginning of his career confronted by the fact that the interests of his employer and those of the city are directly at variance. It is the conflicting interests thus forced upon him that make the story, and little—little there develop situations which grow in intensity of interest until a climax is reached in two startling chapters which for dramatic power, so far as I know, have rarely been surpassed in contemporary fiction.

"The Man From Yesterday" is the work of the literatur and it is full of clear vision and wholesome lessons that are the greatest contributions to the cause of local or his embracing. It plays the game squarely in the end.

Not only does the strength of the story hold the reader from the very start, but the reader feels the presence of forceful action in the development of character, as shown by the same great hand that produced the strongest of permanent work.

The book illustrations which the book contains are well in keeping with the high standard of the novel.

THE ROSARY STRONGEST SELIG RED SEAL FILM RELEASED UP TO DATE

Of the five Selig Red Seal plays released so far, the Rosary, the only one not yet presented in Albuquerque, is far the strongest.

Taken from the book of Edward E. Rose, it follows the remarkable plot of a strong story with great fidelity. Nothing is put in overwhelming the novel into the film rather much has been added for the settings and the acting force is a wonderful with the exceptions which are essential a piece of this sort and which it is as said Cecil DeMille, the director, could.

The cast includes a number of old screen stars of them old favorites with new film fans. Kathlyn Williams plays the lead with Wheeler Oakman, Howard Shaw, Charles Clary and others as well known in her support. Frank Connelly directed the making of the scenarios that tell the story.

This remarkable film will be seen at the Crystal theater Tuesday and Wednesday.

PRIZES OFFERED FOR SPECIMENS OF FARM STUFF

Exhibit Committee Named by County Commissioners Will Give Premiums for Best Samples of Produce.

Handsome prizes are to be given county farmers exclusively and others for the best samples of farm stuff, garden products, fruits, etc., that are offered for display in the county's exhibit at the state fair, according to an announcement sent out yesterday by the committee in charge of the Bernalillo county display.

The announcement, which also records that the commission has secured cold storage space for perishable fruits to keep them until the fair, is as follows:

"Albuquerque, N. M., Sept. 11, 1915.

"The county commissioners of Bernalillo county have appropriated $200 for the purpose of making a first-class exhibit at the state fair showing the resources of this county, and we desire your cooperation in making this a success.

Special Cash Prizes.

"The committee in charge has set aside part of this fund to be given as special cash prizes for items exhibited. They have secured cold storage space in which any items can be cared for free of charge, and would like to hear from you at once if you have anything choice which you want to save for the fair.

"They also wish to secure fine specimens of apples, plums, peaches, pears and other fruits so that to be able to furnish our aid at the fair but to be kept as a permanent exhibit of the resources of our county. Can you aid us in this and send us something for this purpose?

"This is a great opportunity to advertise our valley and by showing what is being raised here build up a market for your crops.

"There will be no charge of expense to you either for storage of fruit at the fair. Let us know what you have and we will see that proper care is taken of your exhibit.

"For any information you may wish in regard to this matter call at 204 West Gold avenue or telephone 787 and ask for Mr. Brazell.

Kinkead of Las Vegas is one of the other New Mexicans on the interstate committee.

POLICEMAN FINDS BIG REVOLVER ON MAN WHO 'CUSSES' ANOTHER

Patrolman Pablo Lucero yesterday afternoon heard a man named Harris cuss an epithet to another Indian passer by. He found when he searched Harris that he was carrying a .45-caliber revolver. He said he had borrowed the gun to kill a dog. Harris was charged with using "fighting." He was released under bond to appear before Police Judge George T. Craig this morning.

GOVERNOR M'DONALD IS HERE ON WAY TO DEMING

Governor Ole M. McDonald was here several hours last night arriving on Santa Fe train No. 1 from Santa Fe and departing on train No. 10. The governor expects to return to town this morning. He and Mrs. McDonald, president of the state Red Cross association, will leave that morning with a California friend for Gallup on the way to Farmington to attend the San Juan county fair. On their way back they will stop at Shiprock on the Navajo reservation, for the Navajo fair.

PAVED ROAD TO UNIVERSITY IS WITHIN REACH

If Property Owners Will Do Their Share, County Highway Board Will Ask Expenditure of Money by State.

A paved road to the city rally may be something more than a dream even in the immediate future. If plans proposed to the county road board last night are carried out. Commissioner Jesus S. Barela, of this board, last night declared that if the property owners along the street would do their share the road commission would ask the state highway commission to expend a portion of Bernalillo county's share of the bond issue money in paving from the city limits to the University.

It is understood that the proposition will be considered by the board. Though no intimation of what its action might be has been allowed to escape Mr. Barela, however, was optimistic upon the chance of getting the necessary portion of the bond funds expended as outlined.

Up to the People.

"It is REAL up to the people," he said. "They are the ones who will benefit and they are the ones to say whether they want the road or not. If the property owners along the street, from the city limits to the reservoir, will agree to pay an a portion of the cost of paving that section of the road, the county road board will recommend the expenditure of enough of the county's share of the road bond money by the state to finish the work."

Mr. Barela said he had talked with several property owners in the section affected and they had seemed favorable to the plan.

To Aid Sandoval.

Another project was proposed by Mr. Barela in regard to the road in Jemez. He suggested that the road board would, if it seemed satisfactory to the people, and the commissioners agreed, expend a portion of the money raised from the bond fund on the road to Jemez in Sandoval county.

"Sandoval will receive only about $5,000 from the state road bond issue," he said, "not enough to do very much with. The road to Jemez means as much to Albuquerque as it does to any other community. Sandoval county never will be able to complete it, at least not while we are able to use it, and I believe that we can finish it locally. It is up to the people to say what they want of this. If they wish, we can go ahead. As the state road bond money must be expended in the county, however, the funds we spend will have to be drawn from our road levy and turned over to the state highway commission for expenditure."

CHARGED WITH GIVING PUEBLO INDIAN A DRINK; 'GROWLER' PRODUCED

Lucero said that he had bought the beer for himself.

PANZY RECEIVES LIFE TERM FOR KILLING 'WITCH'

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE TO MORNING JOURNAL.)

Santa Fe, Sept. 12.—Before he left for his home in Oklahoma, Federal Judge John H. Cotteral, who has been presiding at the recent term of the United States district court here, yesterday sentenced Tomasito Panzy to life imprisonment. The charge against Panzy was murder, based upon his shooting an Indian woman whom said to have been under the influence of liquor.

Panzy killed this woman, he said, because she was a witch and had bewitched his wife and daughter. He is said to have committed several other crimes in the same period of insanity, including the fatal shooting of one companion and the wounding of another, and the kidnaping of a 12-year-old Indian girl, whom he kept in the woods with him for two weeks before he surrendered to the authorities.

Panzy's belief that the woman he killed was a witch was sincere, his counsel, J. H. Crist, told the court before sentence was passed, and he thought he was doing a rightful act when he killed her. The same statement, practically, was made to the court as the Indian agent of the Jicarilla Apaches of whom Panzy is one. Each suggested a ten-year term in prison as an adequate punishment for Panzy's action under an erroneous impression.
