STRIKE THREAT HAS AN ECHO IN DISTRICT COURT

Engine Drivers Ask That Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Be Compelled to Reinstate Them.

The district court was asked yesterday by John Roch and T. J. Ford, engine drivers employed on the Albuquerque division of the Santa Fe railway, to compel Rio Puerco division No. 468, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, to reinstate them. The men allege that they have been deprived of insurance rights through expulsion from the brotherhood.

The action is an echo of the threatened railway strike. Roch and Ford were expelled upon the charge that they had signed a petition to officers and members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen and Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen on the Santa Fe system, asking local organizations of these orders to poll their members to ascertain whether they favored the eight-hour day, suggesting that at a mass meeting of railway employes belonging to these orders, held in Albuquerque April 25, sentiment was strong that the demand for the eight-hour day, in its present form, was not acceptable to the men, further suggesting that, before a strike vote was taken the local organizations on the Santa Fe might withdraw from the movement, and further asking for immediate information as to the opinion of the several locals on these questions, to be taken by polling the members.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, in expelling Roch and Ford, held this to constitute a violation of rules.

BARON DE WARDENER OFFERS WAR MOVIES FROM FRENCH FRONT

The following article clipped from the New York Times, is of interest to Albuquerque people, as Baron Edouard de Wardener and wife, nee Rebecca Pearce, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John F. Pearce, visited this city several months ago.

"According to the Baron Edouard de Wardener, a French coal importer now in New York, the price of coal in France is double what it is here. This, of course, the baron says, is due to the war. The munition works and warships are using such quantities that the supply is burned as quickly as it is mined. The baron has mines in France, and they are being worked night and day, he says.

"Baron de Wardener is an American by birth, and inherited his title from his father, who for years was in business in Paris. He is stopping at the Waldorf-Astoria with the baroness, who was Miss Perky Pearce of New Mexico. During the battle of Mons the baron closed his offices, got automobiles from his friends, and, forming a squadron of them, helped to carry the wounded back to the hospitals.

"Asked about his visit to America at this time, the baron said:

"'I have come for the French government, being commissioned to negotiate with some reliable cinematograph company to handle the film taken by the operators at the front. France wants to present her side in this great struggle to the American people. The government will ask that 50 per cent of the net profits be sent to France to aid wounded soldiers, widows and orphans.'"

WALTHALL CREATES NEW ROLE IN THE MISLEADING LADY

Henry B. Walthall, who appears in the role of Jack Craigen, the modern caveman, in Essanay's five-act photoplay, "The Misleading Lady," the drama by Charles W. Goddard and Paul Dickey, which swept the country a short time ago, has successfully essayed and rendered a characterization wholly new to him.

The part of Craigen is a difficult one. As the play developes he changes closely from the conventional man, very thoughtful, slightly moody and extremely distrustful of women, into a polished brute, consumed by the flames of a desire which is the strongest for being repressed so long a time. Walthall, in the photoplay, has become identified with the characterization of a dignity tinged with thoughtfulness and often verging on melancholy. He is the poet of the screen and the portrayer of poetic emotions. Big things, elemental things, patriotism idealized love, sacrifice, ambition of the Macbeth type, those are the things which Henry Walthall has pictured in the past.

But in Craigen he has a normal, modern man, who has been pushed by his nature into the wilderness and the waste places. But the promptings of his nature and the emotions that it engenders are hidden beneath the conventional exterior.

Such is Mr. Walthall's versatility that he wins a distinct triumph in playing this part. He has shaded it so that one doesn't find it hard to believe that girl who thronged a man should be captured and held to that man who used cave-man methods to win her.

SIX-DAY BABY SHOW, HELD BY CHURCH, ENDS

Little Henrieta Mize, for Whom Greatest Number of Votes Is Cast by Attendance, Is Winner.

First honors in the Broadway Christian church's baby show, which closed last night, went to little Henrietta Mize. The contest began last Monday night and ran six nights.

Baby prize-winners were picked by the attendance. Tickets entitled the holders to vote for the form at the rate of ten for an adult's ticket and half as many for a child's ticket. The baby receiving the greatest number of votes for the six nights won the choice of prizes. Little Henrietta received the plurality.

The point system had nothing whatever to do with the awarding of prizes. There was no committee of physicians to measure the infants, weigh them or put them through whatever tests a committee of experts is supposed to employ. The babies' pictures were shown on the screen, the audience took its choice and voted.

Ten prizes were awarded. Henrietta, having received the greatest number of votes, was given first choice of the ten. She took a gold ring. The baby receiving the second greatest vote had second choice, and so on.

The Prize Winners.

The babies finished as follows:
First—Henrietta Mize.
Second—Francis Ware.
Third—Mary Martinez.
Fourth—Henry Dato.
Fifth—William Sievert.
Sixth—Antoinette Romero.
Seventh—G. Martinez.
Eighth—Mary Tillmah.
Ninth—F. Gutierrez.
Tenth—B. Pillow.

MILLING COMPANY BUYS $16,000 WORTH OF VALENCIA WHEAT

The Albuquerque Milling company, of which D. Hoch is proprietor, yesterday purchased from A. Kempenich, the general merchant and farmer of Peralta, Valencia county, $16,000 worth of extra fine valley wheat. The wheat is being delivered at the mills, the first consignment being received by Mr. Hoch yesterday afternoon.

It is understood that Mr. Hoch has in contemplation, at an early date, large and extensive additions to his mills. The brand that Mr. Hoch prides himself on is "Forty-eight Star," so called in honor of the fact that there are forty-eight stars in the flag of the United States.

FIRE IN EMPTY COAL BOX UNACCOUNTED FOR

An empty coal box standing behind the Crystal theater caught fire yesterday afternoon. The fire was burning inside the box when firemen from the central station arrived. Firemen extinguished the blaze in a few minutes, using small chemical tanks. Chief John W. Barnett could not learn what caused it.

HERZ ON SCREEN IN 'THE PURPLE LADY' AT THE LYRIC TODAY

Ralph Herz, the popular stage star, will make his debut in the silent drama here at the Lyric theater today only, in "The Purple Lady," a five-part Metro-Rolfe wonderplay. Irene Howley, the beautiful and vivacious little actress who has been seen in many elaborate Metro pictures is featured with Mr. Herz in this production.

"The Purple Lady" is a picturization of the play of the same name written by Sydney Rosenfeld. It was selected by Metro for Mr. Herz's debut because of the many possibilities it offered for screen production. Besides the humorous side of "The Purple Lady" there are many thrills in this feature, for there is a strong and absorbing mystery and a love story told in a new and novel manner. The scenes are laid in and around New York, including scores of interesting glimpses of Coney Island, on ships board in the harbor, and the interior of one of the most famous restaurants on Broadway. George Lessey produced "The Purple Lady."

Mr. Herz, in the part of Silas Gilsworthy, the reformer, which is the part he portrayed in the original stage production, repeats his former success with many added laughs. When he succumbs to the dazzling advance of Fifi Mellotte, the part played by Miss Howley, situations are developed which, for high dramatic interest and big laughs, have rarely been equalled on the screen.

WM. FARNUM WITH GLADYS BROCKWELL NOW AT THE PASTIME

William Farnum once more brings into play the marvelous strength and power of his frame in the newest of William Fox pictures, of the great northwest, "The End of the Trail." In this photoplay, Farnum acts Jules Le Clerq, a French Canadian, factor in a Hudson's Bay trading post.

Le Clerk has fallen in love with a woman (Gladys Brockwell) whose husband (Willard Louis) has seized her and carried her away to a lonely life in the forests. Overcome by his brutality, she leaves his house, and learns that her husband has been left as dead by a treacherous Indian guide. She marries Le Clerq.

But Devil Cabot is not dead. He has been revived and passed back to health by prospectors. In a wild moment, he shoots those who have wronged him, and makes his escape, and starts back to find his wife. He arrives at the trading post just after a baby has been born to Adrienne and Jules.

He enters their house, bends Jules, and seizes Adrienne. Off into the deep woods he goes again, taking with him his wife and her child.

For a few months, the poor girl lives with him, in utter terror lest he work some harm to herself or her baby. Then she sees her opportunity. She strikes Devil across the head with a heavy implement, and he falls to the floor in a heap. She thinks he is dead, and runs out into the snow. At the door, she meets Jules le Clerq, who has been searching frantically for her, ever since Cabot had taken her away.

Jules takes the frail woman in his arms, and carries her back to his house. But the excitement has been too much for her. She dies after the long trip, and leaves her little girl in Jule's care.

The first husband meets justice later at the hands of Le Clerq, when he accosts the daughter in a saloon. A struggle ensues between the factor and Cabot, and Le Clerq is victorious.

STRONG'S BOOK STORE

Its Book Department.

We are trying to make an efficient book and stationery store.

First of all, we try to carry a fair assortment of the latest books by the best authors. We could not carry them all and sometimes we may not have one from the author you may consider the "topnotcher," but we use our judgment and usually have the best sellers. However, our order department is efficiently handled and any book can be obtained in a few days at no extra charge for postage unless it is absolutely necessary to make the charge. Orders never fail to go out on the same day as given. Our most extensive department of books is that of the popular copyrights. These books are republished after the first advertised sale. They are not, as some think, books on which the copyrights have expired, but on the contrary are books that have been out two years or more. Or copyright is good for twenty-eight years, renewable for fourteen years. So many new books are being published these days that publishers cannot afford to pass away on old books as they did years ago, and certain firms in New York either lease the plates of, buy the sheets of the books after they have been published two years and offer them to the public for 50 cents or more per copy. We carry about 500 titles of these books and they are the very best titles from the best authors now writing.

Then we carry a creditable line of the standard pads. These are gotten up for your library—books that are well-bound and printed on good paper. They satisfy.

In laying in our stock of books for boys and girls we are forced to handle two grades. Many of the boys and girls keep up so well with their reading that they want the newest books. The new books by the best authors will cost from 50 cents to $1.50. We have a fair assortment of these. Then we have a cheap line that we sell for 25 cents, three for $1. These consist of books for the most part that are not copyrighted, and you are simply paying the manufacturers the cost of the book.

Our line of children's books this year is exceptionally good. We have linen and rag books for the babies, also paper picture books, story books from 15 cents to $1.50 for children from 6 to 10. Our assortment of these is good and varied, sufficient to cater to almost any taste or pocketbook.

We always have carried a much larger assortment of Bibles and Testaments than the trade justifies. The facts are—we have it—and it is printed on India paper or regular Bible paper whichever you want, and any style of binding you want. Though Bibles have advanced in price the last year our prices have not advanced and will not advance on anything we have in stock.

"The Misleading Lady"

In Five Acts

Adapted by H. S. Sheldon From the Great Stage Success of Charles W. Goddard and Paul Dickey

Scratch the veneer of civilization and you have the naked, savage soul of man. This is the theme of "The Misleading Lady"—the story of primitive passions of cave man methods introduced into modern society. A girl leads a man to lose his love for her before gesting friends. He kidnaps her, takes her to a mountain lodge, chains her to the floor. He dominates over her, browbeats her. She hates him, but is awed by his overpowering mastery. His reckless daring, his brute force win her admiration. One day, goaded by his deliberate taunts, she fells him with a blow. The woman instinct is aroused; the mothering love for the helpless comes to play. The man child is hers to care for and a great love is born.
