MRS. BAUGH AND A GUN

She Has Slaughtered Nine Thousand Squirrls Up to Date.

A SIX-YEAR-OLD MURDERER

Happy and Contented on Jackson Island, Alaska—A Man With Two Wooden Legs—Princess Angeline of Seattle

A Sprague, Wash., special to the Spokane Spokesman says: The board of county commissioners offered the following rewards for squirrel scalps: Those killed and reported to the county auditor during February, 15 cents each; March, 4 cents; April, 3 cents; May, 2 cents; June, 1 cent.

A large number of squirrels have been killed up to date. The most successful "killer" in Lincoln county to date is Mrs. W. C. Baugh, who resides with her father and mother six miles northwest of Sprague. She has slaughtered 9,000 of these crop-damaging animals, and has done it all with a 22-caliber, repeating Winchester. Mrs. Baugh quietly seats herself upon the ground with her trusty rifle in hand, and as soon as a squirrel pops its head out of its hole, its name is "Dennis." Mrs. Baugh is still at work slaughtering them.

A Roseburg, Ore., special says: Arthur Wright, a 6-year-old boy, was brought down from Riddles last night and lodged in the county jail, charged with murdering Chester Pogue. The boys quarreled on the way home from school, separating at Cow creek bridge. Wright dared Pogue back to the bridge. The latter returned and a fight ensued, in which Wright stabbed Pogue several times in the abdomen with a large pocket knife, from the effects of which he soon after died.

A Tacoma special to the Post-Intelligencer says: Miss Jould, of Buchanan, W. Va., arrived here to-day, en route for Jackson island, on the Alaskan coast. Miss Jould's sister, Mrs. McCloud, and her husband and a Miss MacFarlane constitute the white population of the island and have been there 10 years. Sixty children attend school conducted by the McClouds and Miss MacFarlane, and they are taught everything from their letters to algebra. Semi-annually a steamer touches at Jackson Island, and, together with the canoe express that goes to Fort Wrangell monthly for necessary supplies, constitute the sources of communication with civilization. Miss Jould will assist the missionaries on Jackson island. Her sister has two children, and letters show her to be happy and contented.

J. C. Young of Albany, Ore., has two wooden legs. A fool friend, who could think of no other way to be funny tried to throw a knife into one of his legs. He succeeded, but it struck above the knee where the leg was flesh and blood. Mr. Young is now nursing an ugly and painful wound. The fool friend isn't in jail, but he ought to be.

Princess Angeline of Seattle has turned prophetess. She says the world will come to an end in June, and that the important intelligence was communicated to her by the spirit of the great Wah Kee Wee Kum, who was long ago a powerful and influential medicine man of her tribe.

Great Falls Tribune: James Kennedy of this city, who was appointed by U. S. Customs Collector Jere Sullivan as patrolman on our northern border, has left for the scene of his future labors. Mr. Kennedy will make it uncomfortably warm for would-be smugglers who attempt to cross the line with contraband goods to either side. They will have to do some expert dodging to escape the keen eyes of the watchful Jim.

A little daughter of Charles Davis, of Wilbur, Wash., while running around alone, fell in a badger hole, and it took two hour's hunting to find her, and it was only by accident she was found at all, as nothing but her little hat, which was tied to her head, was to be seen above the surface. Her mouth and eyes were nearly filled with dirt and she had cried until she was too weak to cry more.

Smuggler's Cove, on Lummi island, Wash., is becoming a favorite resort for pleasure seekers, and scarcely a day passes but the historic cabin, which is hidden in the grotto, is occupied by a party from some of the towns and cities on the Sound. Smugglers have long since given it up, as it began to be notorious and too many visitors found shelter within the rocky walls of the beautiful cave.

The Methodist Ministeral association of the Columbia river conference has adjourned after a session of four days at Colfax. Twenty-five ministers were present, and quite a tilt arose over a difference of opinion as to the state of future punishment. Three or four favored abolishing hell, though the majority held firmly to the old idea of blazing brimstone. The place of next meeting will probably be Walla Walla.—Oregonian.

Mrs. R. Bancock of Centralia, who was shot by her husband Sunday night, is still living, though quite weak. She is suffering from two wounds. In one the ball entered under the left shoulder blade and came out just below the left breast. In the other the ball entered under the kidneys and ranged downward and has not yet been found. She has a strong constitution and her physicians think she will recover.

Henry Hender has been sent to the Medical Lake asylum from Pomeroy, Wash. He read dime novels and it unsettled his brain.

E. C. Bronson, a Tacoma shoe salesman, has accidentally learned that an indictment has just been found against him in Waupaca, Wis., for a murder committed eight years ago, and he has left for that place to answer the charge.

Rev. Isaac A. Flint, one of the pioneers of Yakima valley, and the founder and first minister of the Christian church of Yakima City, Wash., died March 28, aged 76 years. He was born in Chenango county, N. Y., and crossed the plains to California in 1845. The next year he journeyed to Oregon, but returned to California in 1847 and engaged in mining for a couple of years; then again moving to Oregon, he settled in Polk county, remaining until 1852, when he went to Wisconsin. Recrossing the plains the following year he settled on lands in the Umpqua valley, in Southern Oregon, where he lived for several years, moving from there to the Willamette valley, and thence to Yakima in 1868.

Captain Packard, a well-known sea captain, was found dead in a cabin 10 miles from Vancouver, Thursday.

Charles Anderson, a woodman, was killed at Richmond Beach, Wash., Tuesday, by a falling tree.

The 4-year-old son of Andrew Simons was burned to death in a log heap at Tacoma, Thursday.
