The Associated Press this week announced the death at Waterloo, Iowa, of Herbert M. Whitney, formerly a well known Great Falls man, who was at one time a member of the Great Falls base ball team. His death was the result of an injury received on the diamond. He was hit in the head by a pitched ball, causing concussion of the brain. Mr. Whitney was well known in Lewistown, where he played in several games. He was one of the best men ever seen behind the bat in this state, and was exceedingly popular. His demise is deeply regretted by the Lewistown fans, who greatly admired him, not only for his ability as a player, but for his fine character. Mr. Whitney married at Great Falls, but his wife died at the hospital there not long after the marriage.
