LOCAL MATTERS.

THIS is Good Friday.

WILL you please observe our advertising boom?

A PHOTOGRAPHER would do a good business here now.

THE Champion Plow, the best in the market, at J. R. Warren & Son's.

LAUREL COUNTY Smoking Tobacco, at 40 cents per pound, at B. Mattingly & Son's.

LOGO PRIMER—250 pounds, in good order. The outside of this house is printed from it.

THE rain, it raineth every day, and the farmer and gardener continue to fail to get in their little work.

DAN RICE, the showman, is still on deck, and will be here on Thursday, 21st, with his mammoth Museum and Menagerie. See "ad" in another column for further particulars. Let everybody come.

THE next meeting of the Central Kentucky Medical Association will be held in Danville, commencing at 10½ o'clock, A. M., on Wednesday, the 21st inst. Dr. Cowan will open the debate with a paper on Typhoid Fever.

IT is said that Hon. Robert Blain, who represented this District in the Senate in years agone, has an idea of offering again for the position. He is a clever man, at least as clever as a member of his party can be, but he will hardly ever occupy a seat in the Senate again till he moves to a District that takes more stock in the party of which Mahone is the head.

GENTS' furnishing goods, such as Shirts, Undershirts, Drawers, Scarfs, Suspenders, Gloves, Neck-handkerchiefs, Collars and Cuffs for Men and Boys at J. Winter & Co's, corner of Third and Market Streets, Louisville, Ky., in such numbers, variety and at such low prices that it will be not only a pleasure to purchase there, but also to your interest. Take our advice.

THE LAWYERS.—Mr. Barnes got after the lawyers in one of his sermons at Lancaster, and one of them at least got offended with him. And now comes a Stanford man and expresses the desire to see the last son-of-a gun of a lawyer hung by the neck till he is dead. These things are a little bad on the lawyers, but then they are a bad set and don't take it much to heart.

BANANAS, Apples, Oranges, Lemons and Vegetables received daily at B. Mattingly & Son's.

THOSE indebted to me for Undertaker's services will please call and settle as I am in need of the money. R. H. WEAREN.

IT is hardly necessary to call the attention of the reader to McAlister & Lytle's "ad." It speaks for itself, as will their goods and prices, if you will take the time to investigate.

M. C. THURMOND, Danville, has just received a fine lot of Buggies, Carriages and Harnesses, which he offers at the lowest figures to the people of Lincoln and surrounding counties.

WE have, at a tremendous cost, (to them) secured the services of Mess. Severance, Dudderar & Co. to edit a column of the I. J. for the balance of the year. Read their pithy paragraphs this week, and go and ask them what they mean by them.

HOG THIEF.—Alex Smith, colored, was tried before Judge S. S. Myers yesterday for stealing one hog of the value of $4 from W. H. Dudderar and held in the sum of $150. The bail indicates that there was but little doubt in the mind of the Judge as to the guilt of the accused.

DELIGHTED.—So say all the ladies who have visited the store of Joe Hayden this week and looked at the new styles of dress goods. They are something never before seen in Stanford, and you will be surprised to learn how little it requires to buy an elegant dress and trimmings. In the notion department we have never seen anything to excel in variety, beauty and cheapness.

HOME AGAIN.—The new Clothing Store of Bruce & Co., is on a regular boom; first because they have the most carefully selected stock at the lowest prices, and second, because they spare no expense to present it to the public in the most attractive form. Read their large advertisement in another column, then go and examine their goods and prices, and we guarantee you will not go hence without investing.

ALL THROUGH.—If you will go to Joe Hayden and examine his entire stock you will not find a lot of old goods brushed over to look new, but you will find all through, from bottom to top of shelves, the finest, prettiest and best stock of goods in nameless varieties, ever opened in this old town. Men, women and children can get everything they need in wearing apparel, and Joe says he will not be undersold by anybody.

STRANGE BIRD.—Allen Beasley, Jr. shot a large, peculiar-looking bird near town Wednesday, which Dr. R. C. Morgan, who is somewhat of an ornithologist, pronounces a Tygresoma, or Tiger-bittern, a native of South America, and the first one ever found in this country. It is a dark, reddish-brown, barred and marked with black, somewhat like a tiger, and is about the size of an eagle. It can be seen at the St. Asaph Hotel for a few days.

RIGHT OF WAY.—Col. Thos. W. Varnon has just returned from a trip to the Tennessee line, along the road-bed of the Knoxville extension. In the sixty-one miles from Livingston to the point named, he succeeded in getting the right of way free of charge from all but four land-holders, who had the right to give, and three who had not the right to give, the property belonging to infant heirs. These will have to be settled by the usual course of law.

THE contracts for building the Knoxville Branch extension from London to Williamsburg have been awarded as follows: Section 19 to 25 inclusive; Coleman & Gleason, Louisville; 26 to 31 inclusive; Talbot & Rosser, Harrodsburg; 32 to 35 inclusive; E. J. Frazer & Co., Louisville; 36 to 39 inclusive; T. F. Ryan & Co., Cincinnati; 40 to 44 inclusive; Nolan, Coyne & Burke, Jefferson; 45 and 46, Robt. F. Bibb & Co., Mt. Sterling; 47 to 49 inclusive; Myer, Hay & Simmons, Shelbyville.

FOILED.—According to the Enquirer Mr. Ion Arnold, the musician and would-be "marher" of the Hunt Troupe, got "mashed" in Cincinnati Sunday by the irate father of a young lady of Paris, Ky., who had fled from home to the Henrie Home to become the wife of her darling Ion. The article went on to say that the old man had collared the youth, shook him up and then took his daughter back to Paris. In a card in Tuesday's paper, however, Mr. Arnold denies the story, says that the young lady was merely an acquaintance, and that the old man made no attempt whatever to harm him.

DISREGARDING THE LAWS.—There is a special Act of the Legislature saying that no whisky shall be sold in the town of Hustonville, and yet there is at least one place there which, it is said, is kept constantly open in defiance of all law, and every witness in the Moore-McCormack murder trial had something to say about "Clay Powell's bar-room." The good people of that town beg of those in authority to see that the notorious business is stopped by visiting the severest penalty of the law on dealers in the drug that leads more people to the commission of crime than all other causes combined. It is bad enough to break the laws secretly, but such open defiance as is shown in Hustonville is a shame and a reproach that ought not to be tolerated.

Circuit Court.

This is the fourth and last week of Court and everybody is glad. Considerable business has been disposed of, but as a Court of convictions it has been a lamentable failure. The juries seemed determined that no guilty man should be punished, and whenever they could not strain a point and acquit, they did the next worse thing—hang. There have been several hung juries this Court.

Contrary to the expectation of nearly all, except the jury, who heard the evidence, Wm. I. Moore was acquitted of the murder of James K. McCormack, his peers hardly leaving their seats. Several times during the trial Moore was forced to tears, a fact which shows that he is a better man than most of those who take human life in their hands.

After many continuances and a change of venue, the trial of Boone Conn, for the murder of Monroe McCoy, in Garrard county, on the 9th of June, 1876, was commenced here on Monday last. Some fifty men were examined before a jury was obtained, and on Tuesday the testimony began. The prosecution proved that on the day named young McCoy, with his aunt, was driving home from Lancaster when Riley Rankin, Sweeney Morgan and Boone Conn overtook them. Some words passed, and Conn, drawing his pistol, fired at McCoy, killing him instantly. It was further proved that the murdered man was unarmed. The defense, on the contrary, showed that McCoy had fired the first shot, striking Conn's horse in the shoulder. It will be remembered that Sweeney Morgan, who happened to be with Conn at the killing, was afterwards sent to the penitentiary for six years, although the only lady witness swore that he took no part in the affray. Renfro, the other man with Conn, skipped out and has not shown of his face here since. R. C. Warren played a lone hand for the Commonwealth in this case, while Welch & Stuffey, W. O. Bradley and Geo. Denny appeared for the defense. Of course the jury hung—they always do when they can't acquit. Judge Owsley is hanging to them, however, and intends to get a verdict, if possible.

The suit of John W. Miller, &c., vs. the National Bank of Lancaster, in which a change of venue had been obtained from Boyle, was tried here this week. Following is a statement of the case as given by one of the attorneys: Samuel W. Miller made a deed of trust to his creditors, among others the First National Bank of Danville. His land was sold under proceedings in that case and purchased by that Bank. Afterwards the National Bank of Lancaster purchased the land from the first-named Bank. In the trust case a writ of possession issued to put Miller's Trustee in possession of 160 acres of the land which was assigned by him to the first-named Bank and by them to the National Bank of Lancaster. John W. Miller and two of his brothers were in possession of the 160 acres and brought suit against last-named Bank to enjoin the execution of the writ on the ground that it was not a creditor of S. W. Miller or the first-named Bank, and was prohibited by its charter from purchasing real estate. The Bank of Lancaster asked in their answer for a writ of possession against Susan Miller who was in possession of the remainder of the land, about 400 acres. The Court held that the petition be dismissed, and granted defendant a writ of possession for the 400 acres, and that if the Bank had violated the Statute, it could be held answerable only by the sovereign. Speeches were made by Hopper & Bradley for Plaintiffs, and Anderson & Jacobs for Defendants. Judge M. J. Durham and Mr. Herndon were also in the case. An appeal was taken.

Last week we gave an account of the examining trial of Charles Wright and Sam Middleton, for robbing one W. M. McWilliams of $50. Judge Owsley ordered a Grand Jury summoned to consider their case, and they were promptly indicted. Wednesday, just a week after the alleged robbery, they were brought to a final trial, and yesterday they were sentenced to four years each in the Penitentiary.

Alex. Smith, the hog thief mentioned elsewhere, stole on Tuesday, was arrested on Wednesday, tried on Thursday and pleading guilty was given one year in the penitentiary. If this summary justice could be meted out in all cases a short-stop would be put to crime.

DEATHS.

—PORTER.—On Sunday night last, after a lingering and painful illness, Miss Sallie H. Porter, aged 23 years. She was a devoted member of the Christian Church, and a favorite of all who knew her. Her funeral was preached on Tuesday by Eld. B. Rickets, and her remains interred in the family burying ground.

RELIGIOUS.

—Mr. Barnes had 804 conversions in Lancaster. Praise the Lord!

—Rev. W. T. Tyree says that there have been additions to the Baptist Church at Brodhead every meeting day this year, and that last Sunday there were eight.

—An effort was made in the Washington, D. C., Presbytery to depose one of its ministers because he had married a Catholic lady, but after a heated debate the resolution for his expulsion was very justly tabled.

—The book of the General Presbyterian Council, just issued in Philadelphia, gives the number of the Presbyterians in the world as about 3,000,000 communicants and about 12,000,000 adherents to the several Presbyterian bodies.

—The Gutenberg Bible, the first book printed with types, was sold at auction in New York a few days ago for $8,000. It is printed in Latin and Gothic type, with illuminated capital letters and decorations, and was issued in 1455, after five years of labor.

—Rev. Johnathan Morsn, pastor of the colored Baptist church, asks us to thank his friends of the various churches for a well-timed raid on him this week with all kinds of eatables, enough to last him nearly a year. He has been sick all the Winter, and the gifts were, therefore, doubly appreciated.

—The meeting of the Methodist church closed Friday night, with fifteen additions. Miss Minnie Straub and Charley Cox were added after our last report. Those who had not been baptized had that ordinance administered to them Sunday night, after which they were admitted into the church and the right hand of fellowship extended them by the congregation.

LAND, STOCK AND CROP.

—T. R. Walton, Jr. recently bought of J. M. Hail a pair of oxen for $80.

—The trotting horse, Jewett, has been sold to a Pennsylvanian for $15,000.

—Squire J. S. Murphy says that the fruit is all safe save what was killed in the bud; a portion of the peaches. Farmers are more behind than ever known in this county.

—Stock was never in a worse condition than at present. Feed has about given out, and unless the "green grass commences to grow all around" pretty soon, a great many cattle and sheep must be lost.

—John R. Dickinson, who lately returned from Atlanta, Ga., tells us that the mule market is very dull; in fact, he says that prices are better here than there. Sales are few and far between at $60 to $200 per head.

—In Cincinnati the cattle market is firm and strong at $3 and $3 50 for common to $4.85 to $5.50 for best shippers. Hogs are in active demand at $6 to $6.35 for selected butchers, down to $5.50 to $4.25 for trashy scalawags. Sheep are advancing; common, 3½ to 4½c; choice, 5c to 6½c per pound.

—Mr. Randall Litsey, of Harrodsburg, one of the best judges of stock in Kentucky, has recently gone into the Jersey stock business, and has a herd of very fine animals. Any one wishing a fine cow could not do better than calling on or addressing him at Harrodsburg, Ky. See "ad" elsewhere.

LEXINGTON COURT.—About 800 cattle offered, not more than half of which were sold. The market was considered a failure in consequence of the late Spring and the scarcity of provender. One lot of steers sold at $60, which was considered a little over 5 cents. Mules in good demand at $100 to $150. Plug horses plentiful at $50 to $50.

That Plaguey Road Again.

DANVILLE, April 14, 1881.

Editor Interior Journal:

In your last, Mr. Jackson Givens' annualized statement is published, which says "that he declared eleven per cent. per annum, and a surplus of $1,700, which he turned over to Mr. Jones." I do not know what Mr. Givens' purpose was in making this statement. I can't think it was to make the impression that the road made that much money the year he was its President. It is true Mr. Givens was President from May 1870 to May 1879, immediately after the death of the late Capt. Warren, whose executors paid over to him $2,414.32; added to that amount he received $500 from the Cincinnati Southern Railway Company—making $2,914.32. This amount he starts out with, other than the current earnings of the road. In July 1875 he paid six per cent., and in January 1876 he paid five per cent.—making eleven per cent., as stated, and, at the expiration of his year, he turned over to me $1,667.32, out of which fund he deducted $80 I had to pay the State Auditor on Mr. Givens' January dividend that he should have paid, which leaves a net income over to me of $1,587.32. This amount, taken from amount he had turned over to him of $2,914.32, would leave $1,327.36, which amount of surplus he used in paying his eleven per cent., which is over four per cent. on the capital stock. Of $37,000, therefore, you will find he really paid less than seven per cent. out of the current earnings of the road. So much for his statement. Mr. Givens, as above, turned over to me $1,587.32. I paid two per cent. during the next year, and had on hands cash balance of $1,600.25. This amount, taken from the $7,858.21, amount turned over by Mr. Givens, leaves $5,657.96, which is the amount of surplus used in paying ten per cent. dividends, which is little less than one and five-eighths per cent. to be taken from the ten, which leaves me to have paid eight and three-eighths per cent. out of the net earnings of the road, and that year I gave to the best working it had had for several years. So much for the comparison. In the latter part of this year the railroads pooled their differences, and we have had nothing since but the local travel, and of course the receipts are very much reduced.
