LOCAL MATTERS.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES, Nov'r. 19, 1879. For the Middle States rising followed by falling barometer, cold northerly winds, backing to slightly warmer westerly, and clear or partly cloudy weather.

THE EXODUS.—The town—"beg pardon"—city—has been deserted to a certain extent today, everybody—who could—going to Washington to be present at the unveiling of the statue of the general who did not follow the fortunes of his old mother State, thereby, doubtless, in the opinion of many, doing a very wise thing, but then, somehow, there's a sort of roughness about the taste. Well, anyhow, all—well nearly all—went; the "big bugs" in carriages, and the little ones on foot, for "you know"

When we're rich we rides in chaises,

But when we're poor we walks by J——s, and the boats were literally jamed—loaded down to the gunwales. Men, women and children all went. And oh! the pain most of them will endure for their frolic. It was a noticeable fact that no one cared a "darned" to see the statue or hear the orations, but just went to see the "parade." Our "soldier boys," looking like veterans, especially the "little fellows" with "big guns" went along with the crowd and enlivened the occasion, drawing after them numbers of juvenile freedmen, who, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, hugged their tattered garments closer to their bodies, and turned their bare toes inward to keep them warm. Its a pity it wasn't a bright day, but the heavens were not propitious, and the sun refused to lend his countenance to the show. All the people who staid at home "to take care of the town" quietly enjoyed the day, except those who had notes to meet in bank, and they did not have such a quiet time or so much enjoyment—till after 2 p. m. It was a sight about 10:30 and 11:30 to look down King street and see the old Confeds, some disabled, hobbling along with the gay and festive youths of these latter years; the beautiful ladies in rich apparel alongside of "maidens all forlorn" of sable hue, with "dresses all tattered and torn;" little white boys with their new Sunday go to meeting clothes and new caps with gold bands around them alongside of pickaninnies sans almost anything—all rushing for the boat, thereby greatly increasing the revenues of the Ferry Company and enhancing the value of the stock thereof. But so goes the world. "All work makes Jack a dull boy," and the poorest will sometimes take a frolic—and they are right. The unveiling of a statue is as good a thing to "make a fuss" over as anything else, and gives occasion for a holiday; so let us all be glad that all the statues are not unveiled. We hope that all who went were impressed with the ceremonies, and that they, at least, learned one lesson, "How pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."

A VISIT TO THE GAS HOUSE.—The Academy Journal says:

"By the courtesy of Superintendent Rosbury the cadets were permitted to visit the Alexandria Gas Works on the evening of the 27th ult. Those who wish to see how gas was made, and they were not a few, were directed to fall in at school, and marched, under the command of Captain Wenzel, down to the works, where they were cordially received by Mr. Rosbury, who patiently explained the entire process of gas manufacture, and replied to all the many questions asked him in a most courteous manner. In the name of the school we return him sincere thanks, for we learned much by our visit. We saw a bench of five retorts cleared of coke and recharged, and the skill with which the coal was thrown in, astonished us; every shovelful went directly into the narrow door, though thrown from a considerable distance. The boys thought they would not like to be gas makers, when they saw how the flames of the escaping gas rushed out as the men closed and dated them. The fiery furnace into which Nebuchadnezzar had the three Hebrew young men thrown, could not have been much hotter, and we were afraid that some of the men would get burned, but they seemed so much used to it as if they had been salamanders. One young gentleman who thought, when he was sick the night before, that he would like to die, concluded, on seeing the retorts, that he preferred living to being cremated, or to the chance of visiting a warmer place than a gas house."

SUPERSEDEAS AWARDED.—The Court of Appeals at Richmond, on yesterday, awarded a writ of supersedeas in the case of D. C. Thompson vs. G. W. Harrison et als. This, it will be recollected, is the case in which Mr D. C. Thompson sued for damages on account of the loss of his leg, caused by a pistol shot fired by Mr. George W. Harrison on the night of the 5th of March, 1877. The case was heard in the Circuit Court of this city, before Judge Turner, and a verdict rendered for plaintiff in the sum of $8,000, the onus of the matter falling on Mr R. J. Dangerfield, who was present when Harrison fired, the latter having removed to Michigan and having no property here. The case will now come up for argument before the Court of Appeals, on the question as to whether or not a new trial shall be granted, and should one be ordered, the case will be remanded to the Circuit Court of this city, otherwise, the verdict remains in force.

THE THOMAS STATUE.—The city to-day has been almost deserted, large numbers of citizens having gone to Washington to witness the pageant attendant upon the unveiling of the Thomas statue. The Richmond Blues passed through on the train from that city last night. The Lady of the Lake this morning brought up the Norfolk City Guards, who also came to attend the celebration. At 10:30 o'clock the Alexandria Light Infantry, under command of Capt. F. L. Smith, headed by Donch's band, and the St. John's Cadets, under Maj. W. B. Dent, headed by a drum corps from the Marine band, took the ferry boat for Washington. Both commands presented a soldierly appearance and were creditable representatives of Alexandria. The carriages containing the Mayor, City Council and other officials also went up on the same boat.

MARRIAGE.—A very large congregation assembled in St. Paul's (Episcopal) Church this evening to witness the marriage of Rev. John K. Mason, of Brunswick county, Va., to Miss Claudia H. Norton, the beautiful and accomplished daughter of the rector of the church, Rev. George H. Norton. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. F. Sprigg, of Richmond. The happy pair leave for Norfolk tonight.

WOOD BURNED.—On Saturday night last, a pile of wood—oak, pine and hickory—containing about one hundred cords, at Windsor's Switch, just below Franconia depot, on the Alexandria and Fredericksburg Railroad, was burned. The wood belonged to Messrs. Charles and Joseph Potter, of Fairfax county, and the loss falls heavily on them. The fire is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary. It happened just after the passage of the up train.

IRON FOUNDRY.—It is understood that the old Smith & Perkins foundry, at the foot of Wolfe street, now owned by J. P. Agnew & Co., will, in a short time, be put in order for the manufacture of wrought iron, a furnace and two large trip hammers being erected. The advantages to be derived from such a manufactory must be of great benefit to this city, and the gentlemen having it in charge deserve every encouragement from their fellow citizens.

SURGICAL.—A tumor on the eye of Mrs. Calvin Smith, who lives at the upper end of Prince street, was removed by Dr. M. M. Lewis yesterday. The operation, a very delicate one, was performed with entire success, and Mrs. S. relieved of the impediment to her sight and the pain.

LOST HER MAINSAIL.—The schooner D. B. Steelman, Captain Dannan, loaded with coal, from this port, arrived at Norfolk on Monday morning, having lost her mainsail in a gale on the bay.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

The Maryland ferry steamer Virginia was inspected to day.

The Missionary Jubilee performances at the Methodist Protestant Church will be repeated on Friday night.

In an interview with a member of General Albert Sidney Johnson's staff recently, upon political topics, the staff officer said to a correspondent of the New York Herald:

"The State of Virginia I class among the doubtful States, so far as the Grant presidential prospects are concerned. Virginia is a large State, and some sections of it are much more strongly democratic than others. Perhaps a strong democratic candidate like Bayard might bring out the vote of Virginia, but certainly no Northern man but Grant could command the vote of Virginia, and unless a very strong democratic candidate was run against him, why, Grant would win in Virginia any way."

Walker Bros. & Co., wholesale dry goods merchants, Memphis, Tenn., have made an assignment. Their liabilities are about $200,000; assets not given. The principal creditors are in New York and Philadelphia.

NOTICE.

Lest some misapprehension should arise from an advertisement in the Gazette, in which I appear as having sold a lot, &c. I will state that the history of the title was given to the purchaser and he notified that the deed would be with "special warranty" before one cent had been paid on it.

The price agreed upon was less than one-third its real value, and exactly three-eighths of its assessed valuation. He, the purchaser, said he would, at that rate, "take the risk."

He sought the lot again and again after the title had been explained to him

I invite the closest scrutiny into my action in this matter.

O. S. Whittlesey, esq., Attorney at Law, and the purchaser himself can and will verify this statement. [H] W. A. DUNCAN.

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

At the Baltimore Stock Board yesterday Manassas 7s were firm, and closed 71 bid and 72 asked, after having been offered at 71 at the first Board. Virginia State bonds are in a pause, operators moving with great caution. The decline following the late election attracted considerable attention to these bonds, and considerable quantities have been taken out of the market by moderate investors. The consols sold yesterday at 57a57¼, closing 56¾a57¼, as on Monday, and the 10-40s were equally steady, with business at 44a44¼ The demand was more slack at the close, but holders were not disposed to invite business by reducing their set figures. Coupons were a trifle firmer, and closed 81¾a81½, against 81¼ asked on Monday.
