The Home of Winter Davis.

Baltimore is the home of Winter Davis, who went from that city to Congress two years ago by the votes of a party who would not permit his opponents to vote against him. Knowing that his election was a fraud, he retained his seat in the National Legislature, and the more particularly to evince his shamelessness, and disregard of every thing honorable and ennobling in life, he referred with pride to his constituents in a speech he delivered in that body. At the recent election in Baltimore, he was again foisted upon the people of that city by the most utterly rascally and murderous means ever before heard of, as their representative in Congress. This fresh evidence of the good will of rowdies and cut-throats will doubtless call forth renewed and increased expressions of thanks from Winter Davis.—As the partaker has a reputation akin to the thief, we will have little difficulty in placing Winter Davis.

The Cincinnati Gazette, an opposition paper which alternately shows leanings towards Chase and Corwin, yesterday gave in its editorial columns the following item, regarding the extreme pleasure one derives from attending balls in Baltimore, the home of Winter Davis:

Last Friday night, in Baltimore, Jack Cook attended a ball on the "Causeway," and when in the act of retiring, was followed by a crowd of men, beaten in a horrible manner, and finally seized by them, when one of the number stabbed him in the side, after which they threw him into the Falls, no doubt with the intention of destroying his life. Fortunately his cries of distress were heard, and he was rescued. Pleasant city to live in, that Baltimore!

Yes, pleasant place, that Baltimore, only they do things up a little strong.

The Gazette then proceeds to give a sample of justice, as administered at the home of Winter Davis:

Last Friday, about fifty half grown boys, in the City of Ruffians, (Baltimore,) amused themselves by a street fight. Of the fifty, but two were arrested, and they were released by Justice McAllister, on giving bonds to keep the peace.

That Baltimore is a delectable place, and Davis is one of its fruits. Elected by rowdies as their Representative in Congress, will decent, honorable men approve by fellow shipping him?

The Southwick Tragedy.

Under this caption, the story has been told, by the press all over the Union, of a domestic drama recently enacted at Southwick, in the State of Massachusetts. Mrs. Holcomb was found by her child in the cellar, insensible and horribly bruised. The husband had disappeared. They were both highly respected. It appears that Mrs. Holcomb was jealous—insanely jealous of her husband. The ordinary intentions and courtesies which a gentleman is bound to extend to a lady, were distorted by her into acts of criminality. She could not bear to see her husband in conversation, even, with another female, and of course this weakness was the occasion of much domestic unhappiness. The Springfield Republican says, in relation to this jealousy of the unfortunate lady.

There seems to have been neither reason in the feeling, discrimination in the persons who called it forth, nor moderation in her attacks upon her husband on account of it. It was undoubtedly but an expression of that insanity that lurked constitutionally in her system. The presence of his niece, Miss Emma Holcomb, who is a young lady of 19 years, that fatal afternoon, probably called forth from her an outburst of this sort, directly after Emma left, and the rage which its injustice excited in Mr. Holcomb swept away his self-control, and drove him to the desperation and madness that vented itself in the murderous assault. This, it is presumed, is the real and only explanation of the affair.

Irritated to madness by the suspicions and accusations of his wife, Mr. Holcomb, it is presumed, lost control not only of his temper, but of his senses, and committed upon her the brutal and unmanly assault which has brought her to the very threshold of the grave.

On Monday, Mrs. Holcomb asked for her husband, but expressed fear that he would kill her. The father of the fugitive, and the family of his wife, join in a call for him to return to his home, but as yet nothing has been heard of him.

CORN AND HOG CROP OF IOWA.—It is estimated that in sixteen counties in the south eastern portion of Iowa, the corn crop will yield 40 to 50 bushels to the acre. It is selling in Van Buren County at 10 cents per bushel, and in other counties at 15@18 cents, delivered in towns. The hog crop in the fifteen counties above is estimated at 150,000. It is also estimated that 20,000 beeves will be fed this winter. The crop of sorghum syrup is estimated in these counties to be worth $10,000 to $20,000.

☞A very important seizure of diamonds jewelry and watch movements, amounting in their aggregate value to $60,000, was made a few days ago on the arrival of the steamship Asia at Jersey City. The property belonged principally to two Spanish gentlemen. Another party is also implicated in an attempt to smuggle some ten dozen sets of valuable shirt studs.

☞The vote of Kansas at the late election was 18,000. As not over two thirds of the electors were at the polls, and thousands of others had not acquired a residence in the State to make them voters, it can hardly be doubted that she has a population sufficient to entitle her to admission into the Union under the provisions of the English Bill.

To the Tax Payers of Montgomery County!
YOUR TAX RECEIPTS ARE NOW ready for you. The time is short; there is yet comparatively but a small amount paid. Those that put it off till near the last, will find it almost impossible to get to the counter. The law requires that at least one-half of your Taxes be paid on or before the 20th of December, and imposes a fine of 5 per cent. on all taxes due and not paid at that time. Gas, street improvement and delinquent taxes are all due on or before the 20th of December.
This fiscal year closes my official term: it will be necessary to have the taxes in according to law, in order to enable me to make settlement and a showing, as the law requires. Look to your interests in time, and save cost and penalty.
