New Orleans and Havana letters give a rumor of the escape of the Harriet Lane, from Galveston, armed and manned for privateering. The Brooklyn was said to be chasing her, and the Mississippi had gone out to look for the Alabama. Letters to the Navy Department, dated Off Galveston, Jan. 10, give a brief account of a commencement of the bombardment of that place. Some execution was done among the Rebel fortifications. The fight was soon to be recommenced. At that time the Harriet Lane was in port.

The Duty of Loyal Men.

[From the Columbus Fact, of Saturday.]

Never, since the organization of this Government, was it more incumbent on loyal men to be energetic in their country's cause. Treason stalks abroad in every land, and traitors give vent to their base passions, laudations of the rebels, and denunciation of the Federal and State Government on our public streets. These sympathizers are becoming more bold, encouraged by their presses, and such leaders as Vallandigham & Co. They doubtless have their secret organizations to forward their base designs, the disintegration of the Union, the ruin of our country, and the persecution of all patriots. To counteract this, loyal men must work. Get hold of documents. Call public meetings. Obtain loyal speakers.—Expose the sophistries and falsehoods of the traitors of the North. Organize clubs of loyal men, and work. If we do not want traitors to steal our liberties from us, in the name of freedom, and sell us outright to traitors, we must work, and that promptly and energetically.

A dispatch from Nashville states that the Rebels are going to make a determined effort to capture one of our transport fleets on the Cumberland. Forrest's cavalry are to do the job.

Victory Near the Blackwater.

Gen. Corcoran's first Engagement—The Rebels Commanded by Roger A. Pryor—They were whipped and routed—The Pursuit continued over six miles.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 31.—A Fortress Monroe letter received yesterday states that the rebels crossed the Blackwater on Friday.

Gen. Peck sent out a force which drove them back with great loss.

We lost forty killed and wounded. The rebels retreated toward Franklin.

The Washington Star says that dispatches were received to-day from General Dix at Fortress Monroe, stating that yesterday Gen. Peck's force, or a portion of it, had an engagement with an opposing rebel force with Pryor near Blackwater River, resulting in the route and retreat of the rebels who had been driven six miles. When the intelligence left our victorious troops were pursuing the rebels.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—The Herald contains details of the late fight near the Blackwater, on the night of the 28th, with three regiments and four detached battalions of infantry, 900 cavalry, and fourteen pieces of artillery.

The next night, Gen. Cocoran, under orders from Gen. Peck, advanced to meet the enemy.

The rebels were found ten miles from Suffolk, and a cannonading of two and a half hours caused the enemy to retreat.

Corcoran advanced his forces, his infantry, with fixed bayonets, driving the rebels a mile, they leaving their dead and wounded on the field.

Corcoran continued to follow them up and the rebels took another position 2½ miles from the battle-field, and at the latest mail communication Corcoran was moving to flank them.

The above battle occurred by moonlight.

Telegrams yesterday indicate the rebels were again driven from their position and are still pursued. Our loss is 24 killed and 80 wounded.

Col. Kroder of the 167th Pennsylvania was dangerously wounded.

The Seige of Vicksburg.

Operations on the Cut Off—Gen. McClernard's Chief of Staff Killed.

CAIRO, Ill., Jan. 31, 1863.

Col. Stewart, Chief of Gen. McClernard's Staff, was killed opposite Vicksburg on the 24th inst. He was destroying the Rebel ferry-boats, and was shot by the enemy.

CAIRO, Jan. 29.—I have seen a Captain of the 96th Illinois who left Vicksburg on the 22d inst.

Two Brigades were engaged, when the Captain left, in opening the famous cut-off, of which so much was said last Summer.

The river is bank full at Vicksburg, and high enough to rush through the canal at a fearful rate. He thinks it will be a perfect success. He thinks that should this channel become large enough to admit the passage of boats, the Rebels for the present will be allowed to hold Vicksburg, while the Unionist turn their attention to matters further South.

In his opinion it would take 150,000 men to storm their fortifications at Vicksburg.—Our gun and mortar boats could shell the city from where they lie on the north side of the river bend; but, even if it were entirely destroyed, the fortifications, which extend for miles back, would be as formidable as ever.

Gen. McClernard's forces have landed on the Louisiana side five miles below the mouth of the Yazoo River, and in full view of the city.

LATER.

CAIRO, February 3.—Advices from Vicksburg to the 30th of January have been received.

Gen. Grant had arrived.

The work of widening and deepening the canal is progressing.

The rebels have planted a battery on the Mississippi shore, which commands the lower end of the canal.

The White of the 22d says General Long street, with thirteen brigades, has gone to Tennessee.

The gunboat New Era was attacked on Sunday night at 11 o'clock, near Island No. 10, by guerrillas, with three pieces of cannon.

The New Era returned the fire with shell. The conflict lasted until daylight, when the rebels retired. Their force is believed to be between 2000 and 3000.

The operator at Paducah reports the command at Fort Donelson was attacked at an early hour this morning. At 4 o'clock this afternoon the engagement was still going on. Reinforcements have gone forward.

Bombardment of Galveston.

The Ball opened by the Brooklyn—Attacks Upon the Fortifications—The day chiefly devoted to securing positions—The grand Bombardment yet to be heard from.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1, 1863.

The following extract from a letter written by Acting Assistant Paymaster Frederick R. Thompson, of the United States steamer New London, detailing some incidents of the bombardment of Galveston has been forwarded to the Secretary of the Navy.

"Saturday Evening, Jan. 10, 1863.

"We arrived off Galveston about noon to-day, and as soon as the Captain reported to the flag officer, the request went up from the flag-officer to prepare for action and get under way. The Brooklyn stopped about two miles from the fort, while the New-London and Scioto went close in, to draw, if possible, the fire of any batteries which the Rebels may have erected. Surrounding the fort could be seen the tents of the troops, and toward them our fire was directed. The ball was opened by the Brooklyn. She was lying about a mile and a half from us. We saw a puff of smoke at the bow, and then heard the deep booming of her gun, while in the air we could hear the howling of her shell as they passed over us. The Scioto followed with her eleven-inch and Parrot at one extremity. We opened fire with one Parrott and Sawyer, but elicited no reply. We then went within a mile and a half of the fort and opened fire on the encampment. The Scioto came after us, while the Brooklyn, with the tremendous range of her guns, planted a shell in nearly at the distance of three miles. We were rolling tremendously, and we had to fire as we were rising. Our starboard 30-pounder was fired, and we watched in the direction of the range. The shell exploded in the fort, and soon down came the Rebel flag the halyards being cut, so that the credit belongs to the New-London. After firing several good shots, the signal was sent up from the flag-ship to cease action. We came about, and as we returned a field piece battery was opened upon us, but it fell short, through near enough for us to hear and see the shot as it struck about twenty rods from us. We gave them a broadside and the Scioto three 11-inch shells, all of which struck and exploded in the battery, the effect of which must have been tremendous, judging from what we could see through the glass. We could see the masts of the Harriet Lane over the town, which is situated on a narrow strip of land. To-night our squadron has been reinforced by two more gunboats, carrying sixteen guns. To-morrow being Sunday, nothing will be done, but when the bombardment is renewed it will be terrific. Galveston is a doomed town. The disgrace attending the capture of the Harriet Lane must be wiped out, and the vengeance upon the butchers and captors will be awful. On Monday we shall attempt to pass the forts at the mouth of the harbor."

CAMP SILL, NEAR MURFREESBORO', TENN., Jan. 15, 1863.

MR. JOHN DYSART—Dear Sir: It becomes my painful duty to inform you, that your brave and good son, John B. Dysart, was severely wounded in the battle at this place, on the 31st of December, 1862. Our column was then falling back, and of course he fell into the enemies hands. He was conveyed to a hospital, and had his wound dressed by their Surgeon. This was the last heard from him, until yesterday, one of the boys found his grave. Good, brave man, he had died from the effects of the wound received whilst gallantly defending the flag he had been taught to love. I know the feelings of a father on the reception of such saddening news. Weep not for him, he is happier to day than if in this contentious world. John was known during his whole connection with the regiment, by his good orderly conduct and manly virtues.—'Tis the fate of war—men that fight must get killed. I know I was instrumental in inducing him to come—but I know you will not censure me for actions—for in his own acts he proved to the world that he knew and felt it to be his duty to go into the field. I know, and his company will testify that no man in the army was better prepared to die than John. To you and the family, I can only offer my sincere and heart felt sympathy, and state that in his loss we recognize the loss of a gallant and brave supporter of our cause, a Christian, and a highly esteemed gentleman.

I remain yours, with sentiments of respect,

THE New Philadelphia Advocate of the 30th, says the late heavy rains have caused the Tuscarawas river to overflow its banks, doing considerable damage to fences and crops. The water has broken through the canal bank at the Oiltown Basin and at Canal Dover and will be greatly damaged at various points. The cars on the Tuscarawas Branch were unable to make connection with the main line at Bayard, on Tuesday, in consequence of damage to the road. The Steubenville and Indiana Road has also received considerable damage, at the crossing on the Muskingum, below Coshocton, preventing trains from making connections.

Resolutions of the St. Clairsville Bar on the Death of Judge Alexander.

The members of the St. Clairsville Bar met at the office of O. J. Swaney, Esq., on the 2d day of February, 1863, to give expression to the sentiments occasioned by the death of Hon. ROBERT J. ALEXANDER.

On motion of Wm. Kennon, Jr. Esq., Judge B. S. Cowen was called to the chair.

On motion of E. E. Kennon, Esq., JOHN H. HEATON was elected Secretary of the meeting.

On motion of J. H. Heaton, the chair appointed Wm Kennon, Jr. Daniel Peck, E. E. Kennon, O. J. Swaney, and M. J. W. Glover, Esqrs., to draft resolutions suitable to the occasion.

The committee reported the following for adoption:

Our fellow-citizen, brother and friend, Judge Robert J. Alexander, is dead. After a long and painful illness, which he bore with great fortitude and resignation, he passed from earth, but not from our remembrances. At 4½ o'clock, A. M., January 30th, 1863, in full possession of his reason, and aware that the hour of his departure was at hand, he expired in calm serenity, and without mental anguish or physical struggle, he entered into the "dark valley of the shadow of death."

Our brother, Judge Robert J. Alexander, has been an exemplary member of the Ohio Bar for 33 years, and a citizen of St. Clairsville during that time. He was elected Judge of the Court of Common Pleas and District Court of this Judicial District, being the first Judge elected by the people upon the adoption of the New Constitution, which position he filled with honor and credit to himself for the period of five years, giving entire satisfaction to the Bar, and commanding their highest respect and esteem for his impartial, upright and intelligent administration of justice. Socially and professionally he was companionable and affable; probity and sincerity followed his pathway through life. As a husband, father and friend he was indulgent, kind and affectionate. His duties and obligations to society and his country were always scrupulously observed.

Endowed by nature with a vigorous and well balanced intellect, by application he had become a good lawyer, a safe counsel, an able Jurist, an honorable and successful practitioner.

In the death of Judge R. J. Alexander the Ohio Bar has lost an esteemed and talented brother, society a sincere and generous member, the country a true friend, and his family an honored, exemplary, and affectionate head.

While we are aware of the sanctity of private grief, we desire to tender to the family of the departed our sincere condolence in this their great affliction and irreparable loss.

On motion of Jno. A. Work, Esq., it was resolved that the Belmont Bar attend the funeral of the deceased.

After appropriate remarks made by the members of the Bar relative to the integrity, honor, and unblemished character of their deceased brother, on motion of O. J. Swaney, Esq., the foregoing proceedings were unanimously adopted as expressive of the emotions of our hearts, produced by this sad dispensation of Divine Providence sobered, however, by the thought that "our loss is his eternal gain."

On motion of Daniel Peck, Esq., it was resolved that a copy of these proceedings be presented to the family of the deceased, to the Common Pleas and District Courts, with a request that they be spread upon their Journals and to the papers of this County for publication.

On motion, the meeting adjourned.

Court of Common Pleas.

Isaac Z. Blanchard vs. John Franks & Rebecca Franks his wife.

THE DEFENDANTS, non-residents of the State of Ohio, will take notice, that on the day the Plaintiff has filed in the above named court his petition against them, the object of which is to foreclose two mortgages, made by the defendants to the Plaintiff, one for $400, note and mortgage dated the 11th day of June 1860, the other for $200, note and mortgage dated 20th of June 1860, each at one year with interest from date at 8 per cent. per annum, both mortgages of the same land, described as follows, the West half of the Southwest quarter of Sec. 3, Township 5, and range 4 of the Marietta district, also fifteen acres adjoining the said tract, being part of the N. E. quarter of the S. E. quarter of sec 9, Township 5 range 4, conveyed to the said John Franks by Jacob Yocum the 1st of July 1859, that the whole amount of said notes and interest is due, together with $22 64 paid for delinquent taxes on the same.

The substance of the prayer is, that unless by a short day to be named the said money be paid, that the said tracts of land be sold, and that out of the proceeds, the Plaintiff's claim be paid.

The defendants are therefore required to answer said petition on the 23d day of February 1863, the said petition will be taken as true and confessed by you, and judgment will be entered accordingly.
