THE INVESTIGATING COMMITTEES.

The Nashville Banner falsely asserts that we are opposed to the "investigations now going on at the State Capitol," and to prove its assertion quotes from an editorial in the CHRONICLE on the committee appointed to investigate the State debt. We are not opposed to investigations. We say push them on vigorously and make them searching. Go to the very bottom and unearth fraud wherever it has existed, regardless of whom it reaches. If there has been fraud under Republican administrations, expose it and let the guilty suffer. But don't stop there. Let Democratic frauds where they have existed be also unearthed. Let the guilty of all parties be punished alike. We would not throw a straw in the way of the investigating committees now in session at Nashville, but on the contrary will defend their action whenever founded upon truth and reason. We wish them God speed in their labors, and sincerely hope they may be able to ferret out any rascality in our State affairs that may have existed at any time under any administration of any party.

But we did say that the committee to investigate the State debt were hunting up a pretext for repudiation, and we see no reason to change our mind on this subject. The committee is spending considerable time, as we are informed, in trying to prove that the Funding Act of 1873 was passed through corrupt means. We do not deny that there may have been corruption in the passage of that act. We have always understood that at the time of its passage there was a pretty strong lobby at work for the measure. But for the sake of argument, admit this to be true. Suppose that members of the Legislature were bribed to vote for it: how does that affect the validity of the State? The debt had been recognized by the Legislature of 1869-70, which passed an act allowing the solvent railroads to discharge their indebtedness to the State by paying in State bonds regardless of series. The Constitutional Convention of 1870, tacitly acknowledged the validity of the debt. Now suppose that the funding act of 1873 was passed by fraudulent or corrupt means, the validity of the debt remains all the same. If there was fraud and corruption, the committee to investigate frauds, which is also in session in the Capitol, should inquire into it, but the committee to investigate the debt have nothing whatever to do with it. It is a principle of law, that an individual can not take advantage of his own fraud, and we presume the same principle will apply to a State.

The questions for this committee to investigate are, have the bonds been issued according to law, and if they have not, has the State legalized them by afterwards acknowledging their validity? If it can be made to appear that the bonds were fraudulently and illegally issued, and that their validity has not been subsequently acknowledged by the proper authority, then such bonds ought not to be paid. Until this is proved to be true, the State is bound, by its contract, entered into by its accredited representatives, and we must settle upon that basis. We have good reason to believe that the committee to investigate the State debt is not acting on that line, and repeat what we have before observed, that it might very properly have been styled, "a Committee to Furnish a Pretext for the Premeditated Repudiation of the State Debt." As to the other committees, we have not expressed an opinion. If they do their work well and thoroughly, we will give them credit.

TILDEN AS A REFORMER.

The people of this country have good reason to congratulate themselves upon their escape from an administration of four years duration with Tilden, the "Reformer," at its head. It may be possible that he knew nothing of the corrupt scheme in which his nephew, who resided in the same house with him, and who was a part of his own household, together with Smith Weed and Manton Marble, were engaged, but it is safe to say that these men are a fair specimen of the material with which he would have been surrounded. They would have formed his "kitchen cabinet," and from them he would have drawn his inspiration in bringing about a reformation of the civil service.

If Pelton and Weed and Marble, right under the old man's shadow, were able to carry on such infamously rotten negotiations, it is scarcely possible that he would have demonstrated himself to be a very robust reformer. The whole transaction is one which naturally causes an honest man to hold his nose while contemplating its rottenness. The country owes the New York Tribune a debt of gratitude for exposing the coparceners, and may well congratulate themselves that they have escaped the afflictions of a sham reform admistration.

THE Chattanooga Commercial says of the new State of East Tennessee:

"A bill has been introduced in the Legislature to give consent to the formation of a new State out of East Tennessee. While it is certain that the bill will pass, it is equally certain to the advantage of East Tennessee to have it pass. There is no community of sentiment, principle, and attitude socially or commercially between this and other sections of the State. The separation would leave East Tennessee free to follow the honester and wiser ideas of government with which its people are imbued, and the result would be a wonderful increase of population, manufactures, production and commerce. There has always in the political history of the State been direct conflict of opinion between the section east and the section west of the mountains. A separation would be a relief to both divisions."

TENNESSEE'S OBLIGATIONS.

Bondholders Striving for a Funding Bill.

New York Tribune, Saturday.

A large number of the holders of Tennessee defaulted bonds yesterday authorized the Legislative committee, of which Eugene Kelly is chairman, to select Roger A. Pryor as counsel to represent the bondholders at Nashville. The propositions of last winter are to be renewed, the alternatives being new 6 per cent. bonds for 60 per cent. of the present bonded debt and accrued interest, or else 4 per cent. bonds for the full face of the debt and accrued interest; redeemable at any time after six months' notice, and renewable if desired by the State.

Eugene Kelly stated yesterday that this renewal was forwarded to the Governor of Tennessee on January 19th, and that he had either refused or declined to transmit it to the Legislature. Tennessee, he claimed, was abundantly able to pay a large amount, if not all of its bonds. Its taxation was only one-tenth of 1 per cent. while that of Virginia was one-half of one per cent. Not one dollar had been collected, he added, to bribe members of the Legislature and never should be. He wanted the committee to go before the Legislature with a just cause, knowing that the State can pay, and then leave it to the honor of Tennessee to liquidate an honest debt.

P. W. Holmes claimed that if the State could pay its debt, it should be forced to do so. If a State once violated its plighted faith, he held that its future promises should be looked upon with distrust, and the law should be enforced to the utmost limit.

Mr. Kelly said that one member of the New York committee represented $1,000,000 of the bonds, and that there was an aversion to sue the railroad companies—as Evarts, Southmayd & Choate had given an opinion that there was no lien on the roads.

Stonewall Jackson's old sorrel warhorse, which bore his master under the moon on the fatal night at Chancellorsville, is still living at the Morrison homestead, in Lincoln county, North Carolina.

THE KNOXVILLE CHRONICLE FOR 1879.

Subscribe for a Good, Reliable News paper.

THE DAILY CHRONICLE, and WEEKLY WHIG AND CHRONICLE, will be kept up during the year 1879 to their usual high standard. By enterprise, accurateness, and close attention to the wants of our readers, we hope to merit a continuation of the liberal patronage heretofore extended these journals.

Nearly nine years ago, when there was not a Republican daily in the State, and only two or three in the South, we commenced the publication of the CHRONICLE. In all these years we have battled for Republican principles, and see no reason to change our course now. Hence we shall continue to publish a truthful, reliable Republican journal, not the organ of any man or clique, but the outspoken and fearless advocate of principles, measures and men, best calculated to promote the welfare of the country and the Republican party.

We will endeavor to make our agricultural columns worth more to farmers than our subscription price.

As a newspaper our publications shall not be excelled in the State. In addition to our telegraphic dispatches from all parts of the world, our readers shall have the benefit of correspondence and every other means through which reliable information is obtained.

Each number of the paper will contain selections made with special reference to the home circle. We will continue to avoid everything calculated to contaminate, and will publish a paper that may be taken without question within the sacred precints of the family circle.

Our market reports shall have close attention, and be made entirely correct and reliable.

We call upon all persons interested in the publication of our independent, fearless, reliable Republican journal to come to our aid and assist in extending the circulation of the DAILY CHRONICLE and WEEKLY WHIG AND CHRONICLE.
