TUESDAY, NOV. 4, 1879.

ELECTIONS TO-DAY.

The election in New York to-day is for Governor and other State officers and members of the Legislature. The candidates for Governor are: A. B. Cornell, (Rep.); Lucius Robinson (Dem.), and John Kelly, (Tammany.) At the last Gubernatorial election, Robinson was elected over Morgan (Rep.) by 30,400 plurality. In 1877, for Secretary of State, the Democrats had 11,264 majority. In 1878, the Republican candidate for Judge of the Court of Appeals had a plurality of 34,461 over the Democratic candidate. In the present Legislature, the Republicans have a majority in both houses and a majority of 74 on joint ballot.

The contest in Massachusetts is between Long, the Republican nominee, Ben. Butler, the candidate of the Nationals and one wing of the Democracy, and John Quincy Adams, regular Democrat. The race is between the first two mentioned. The Republican plurality last year was 25,290, and majority over all, 13,215. The Republicans have a majority of 158 in the Legislature on joint ballot.

Wisconsin elects a Governor and Legislature. At the last election the Republicans carried the State by a majority of 8,273, and had a majority of 7 on joint ballot.

New Jersey will elect members of the Legislature, the interest of which centers in the fact that a portion of the Senators hold over and participate in the election of Mr. Randolph's successor in the United States Senate. The Legislature now has a Republican majority of 7 on joint ballot.

There are also elections in Nebraska, Minnesota, Mississippi, Pennsylvania and Virginia, but those above mentioned are the points upon which public interest centers.

GEN. JOSEPH HOOKER.

One by one the old heroes are dying away. Of the men who fought under the Stars and Stripes in the wars for the Union, each day seems to add one more to those who "have gone before." The news has reached us that "Fighting Joe Hooker," the gallant victor of the "battle above the clouds," has gone to his long rest. The old warrior has drawn for the last time his trusty steel, and has crossed the dark river, over which we must all pass, be we exalted or be we lowly.

Gen. Hooker was born at Hadley, Mass., in 1814, and was consequently sixty-five years of age. He graduated at West Point in 1837. With him, as with so many of our military heroes, the Mexican war was his finishing school in the art of war. Through this he passed with great credit, and with his good sword he carved himself out a name and promotion. He entered it as an aid, and was brevetted Captain at Monterey, for gallant conduct on the field. For the same meritorious action he won his silver leaves at the Natural Bridge, and his eagles at Chapultepec. In 1853 he threw up his commission and settled on a ranch near San Fancisco. He was unsuccessful, however, and when the loud alarm rang over the land, publishing the dreadful news that civil strife had begun, he hurried to Washington, and offered his services to his bleeding country. His somewhat dissipated habits, and the failing he had of criticising his superiors, made it difficult to obtain a command, but he was finally assigned to the army of the Potomac. In 1862 he was made Major-General of volunteers, and in the latter part of the same year Brigadier-General of the Army. In 1863 he rose once more and superceded General Burnside in the command of the army of the Potomac. The retreat which Gen. Lee caused him to make at Chancellorsville lost him his command and Gen. Meade was given it, he taking command of the Eleventh and Twelfth army corps. In October. 1863, began the movement which ended with his famous "battle above the clouds" at Lookout Mountain. In 1865, while assisting at a banquet given at New York, in honor of Gen. Grant, he was struck by paralysis, from the effects of which he lost the use of the right side of his body. Three years later he again resigned his well-earned commission.

Gen. Hooker was a brave, spirited, combative man, who held on to his opinions with the greatest tenacity. He was fiery, and what he lacked in strategy made up in dash. It was this quality which won for him the soubriquet of "Fighting Joe Hooker."

WHAT WILL THE OLD DOMINION DO?

With to-day will close a campaign in Virginia which is remarkable for its bitterness and for the magnitude of the issues involved. Virginia, like Tennessee, owes a public debt. As in Tennessee, she has two parties, one in favor of paying the debt and one opposed; one in favor of honesty and one in favor of dishonesty; one desirous of maintaining the good name of the Commonwealth and one indifferent about it. The Lynchburg News says:

We do not believe that prior to this campaign there was ever discussed before the people of Virginia a question in which there was at least the appearance of the advocacy of immorality and dishonesty.

"Certainly the charge has been made and pressed, that the debt policy of Mozart Hall, as set forth by the leaders, is not in accord with the principles of honor and integrity, and certain it is that appeals made to the honesty of the people, and based on the preservation of the honor of the State have been ridiculed and flouted. Well, this miserable campaign, which has paralyzed our credit and damaged our State by the fact that such a contest was necessary, is about to be closed—we hope forever. Its close will be the funeral of many a man in Virginia who, if he had been modest, sincere, and stood upon a high plane, might in the future have attained eminence. Thirst for notoriety and office will have furnished many a political coffin this fall. The State says:

"The farce, a long one, it is true, and a most ridiculous one on their side, approaches its denouement, which will be most absurd—as absurd as the transformations in Pinafore. The Readjuster babies have been so mixed up and changed in their cradles that next Wednesday morning General Mahone will not know whether he is Massey or Massey is him; and that person will be in equal doubt concerning his identity. The 'Little Buttercups,' however, will solve the difficulty, and put these enfans terrible to sleep in their separate cribs thereafter, for never again can they occupy the same political cradle. We really do feel pity for what awaits them on Tuesday next, but they have invited their own fate, and as they have sown so must they reap. Their sad experience in this attempt to lead astray the people of Virginia by false and knavish teachings of dishonesty, let us trust, may prove a lesson to them and to all future aspirants that when they attempt to build up their personal fortunes and further their ambitious designs at the expense of public honesty and in defiance of the moral sentiment of the people, they but court their own political destruction."

We sincerely trust that Virginia will come out on the right side. For her own sake, for the sake of her enviable reputation, we hope it will be that way. And we hope to see honesty triumph there, because it would exercise a good influence in Tennessee. If Virginia repudiates her Repudiators, then Savage & Co. will have received a blow in this State that will cause them to reel and stagger, if it doesn't permanently disable them.

NOTICE.

PURSUANT TO A DECREE OF THE CHANCERY Court for Blount county, Tenn., rendered at the June Term, 1879, I will sell to the highest bidder at the Court House door in Maryville, Tenn., on the 1st day of December, 1879, the Montvale Springs lands situated in District No. 8th, Blount county, Tennessee, containing 400 acres more or less, and adjoining the lands of Wm. Walker, E. Carpenter, James Matthews & Co., and others. Said lands will be sold in small farms, and as a whole, and the sale bringing the most money adopted as the sale. Said sale will be made on a credit of six, twelve eighteen and twenty-four months, except 5 percent. cash in hand, in bar of the equity of redemption, to satisfy a judgment in favor of L. C. Shepard, Admr., and against Joseph L. King et al., the purchaser to give note with good security, bearing interest from date of sale and a lien retained for the payment of the purchase money.

The Whig and Chronicle in Reach of Everybody.

Fourteen Months for the Price of One Year.

From now until November, 1880, will be one of the most exciting periods in the political history of this Republic. On the 14th day of next month, the people of Ohio will elect a Governor and other State officers. Heretofore, parties have been very evenly divided there, which, together with the important influence which the result is to have upon the great Presidential contest of next year, gives the contest a national interest, and its decision will be regarded with deep concern in every nook and corner of the Union. Two strong tickets are in the field, and the battle is being waged with a vigor which shows that each party fully appreciates the prize for which they are striving.

In November, the great State of New York will elect a Governor, State officers and a Legislature. This too is a contest of the highest National importance. The Democrats for several years have been in the ascendancy there, but they are now distracted by internal dissentions, which, together with the disadvantage at which they are placed by being held responsible for the policy inaugurated by their leaders in Congress, gives the Republicans great encouragement. This, together with a thorough conviction of the righteousness of their cause, inspires them with courage and confidence, and they are determined to contest every every inch of the ground with that resolute purpose which animates true and tried soldiers fighting for the dearest and most cherished principles. The result in that State will be looked to all over the Nation with an interest never before felt in a State election. The giants of both political parties, all over the Nation, will take part in the contest and the issues involved will be ably and thoroughly discussed.

Elections will also be held in November, in Iowa, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Minnesota, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania. In each of these States the two great political parties will put forth their best efforts, and results will be looked to with extraordinary interest.

On the first Monday in December Congress meets again, and the session promises to be one of extraordinary interest. The leaders will contend with each other for the vantage ground upon which to make the great political fight of next year, when a President is to be selected and a new Congress to be chosen. Every man who feels any interest in politics will desire to watch every step of the preliminary struggle.

Already an intense interest is manifested in the Presidential struggle of 1880. Both parties are on the alert, wide awake to take advantage of whatever the leaders may imagine to be conducive to their party success. Early next summer the National Conventions will be held, and full tickets placed in the field, when the work of the canvass will begin with a vigor never surpassed in any similar contest in the history of Presidential elections. Never before has a greater interest been felt in the result of a national election, so far in advance of the time at which it is to be held, than now exists.

In addition to the national issues, around which will centre so much of public interest, in Tennessee we will have a State election next fall. Without any sort of exaggeration, this will be the most important of any ever held in the State. The repudiation wing, which is a majority of the Democratic party, is marshalling its hosts for a final charge against the credit, honor, integrity and good name of the Volunteer State. If they succeed, we are ruined and disgraced. They propose to place in the field a full ticket for Governor and members of the Legislature, composed of men committed to the policy of repudiating a large proportion of the State debt. They will be met by the State credit men, and a desperate effort will be made to rescue Tennessee from the control of those who would bring upon her everlasting ruin and irretrievable disgrace. No Tennessean can fail to feel a deep interest in the result of our next State election.

In view of these interesting political events, every intelligent man in the Union wants to read regularly at least one live, reliable political newspaper. Such we will make the DAILY CHRONICLE and the WEEKLY WHIG AND CHRONICLE. We intend that our readers shall know all about all the important political events of the day, and, in addition, we expect to take an active part in the discussion of all the issues involved. Our political intelligence shall be reliable, and our position on all questions thoroughly understood. We will wear no man's yoke, will be the organ of no particular ring or clique, but expect to labor for the success of Republican principles with a zeal inspired by the earnest conviction that we are right.

While we shall keep our readers fully posted on political questions, we will also continue to devote a large share of our space to agricultural, educational, religious, scientific, literary, industrial and commercial intelligence, giving something in each issue that will interest readers of every avocation and profession, and all ages, sexes and conditions in life. We will give each week a carefully prepared report of the local and metropolitan markets, making them so full and reliable as to be indispensible to business men, farmers and mechanics.

And now to place the WHIG AND CHRONICLE within the reach of all we propose to send it up to and including the 14th day of November, 1880, which will give time for a report of the returns of the Presidential election, for the price of one year's subscription, ONE DOLLAR AND FIFTY CENTS. Any one sending us ten subscribers will receive the paper free until November 14, 1880.

Or, we will send the DAILY CHRONICLE to any one who sends us a club of twenty subscribers, for the entire year, 1880, for TWENTY FIVE CENTS EACH.

We will send the DAILY CHRONICLE until the 14th day of November, 1880, for the price of one dollar, in advance.

Or, we will send the DAILY CHRONICLE until the first of January, 1880, for TWO DOLLARS. In all instances the cash to accompany names.

These are unprecedentedly low rates, and affords a rare opportunity for keeping up with the news of the times for a very small outlay of means.

Send the names at once, so that you may not lose an issue. Send postal money order, draft, by registered letter or by express, at our risk.

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and as satisfactory as ever.

It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color.

It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff. It gives the head a cooling, soothing sensation of great comfort, and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

A. A. Hayes, M.D., State Assayer of Massachusetts, says, "The constituents are pure, and carefully selected for excellent quality; and I consider it the BEST PREPARATION for its intended purposes."

Price, One Dollar.

Buckingham's Dye FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade, to brown or black at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.
