For Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Sick Headache, Chronic Diarrhoea, Jaundice, Impurity of the Blood, Fever and Ague, Malaria, and all Diseases caused by Derangement of Liver, Bowels and Kidneys.

SYMPTOMS OF A DISEASED LIVER. Bad Breath; Pain in the Side, sometimes the pain is felt under the Shoulder-blade, mistaken for Rheumatism; general loss of appetite; Bowels generally constive, sometimes alternating with lax; the head is troubled with pain, is dull and heavy, with considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of leaving undone something which ought to have been done; a slight, dry cough and flushed face is sometimes an attendant, often mistaken for consumption; the patient complains of weariness and debility; nervous, easily startled; feet cold or burning, sometimes a prickly sensation of the skin exists; spirits are low and despondent, and, although satisfied that exercise would be beneficial, yet one can hardly summon up fortitude to try it—in fact, distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred when but few of them existed, yet examination after death has shown the Liver to have been extensively deranged.

It should be used by all persons, old and young, whenever any of the above symptoms appear.

Persons Travelling or Living in Unhealthy Localities, by taking a dose occasionally to keep the Liver in healthy action, will avoid all Malarious attacks, Dizziness, Nausea, Headaches, Depression of Spirits, etc. It will invigorate like a glass of wine, but is no intoxicating beverage.

If You have eaten anything hard of digestion, or feel heavy after meals, or sleepless at night, take a dose and you will be relieved.

Time and Doctors' Bills will be saved by always keeping the Regulator in the House!

For, whatever the ailment may be, a thoroughly safe, purgative, alterative and tonic can never be out of place. The remedy is harmless and does not interfere with business or pleasure.

IT IS PURELY VEGETABLE. And has all the power and efficacy of Calomel or Quinine, without any of the injurious after effects.

A Governor's Testimony. Simmons' Liver Regulator has been in use in my family for some time, and I am satisfied it is a valuable addition to the medical sciences.

J. GILL SPOONER, Governor of Ala. Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, of Ga., says: Have derived some benefit from the use of Simmons' Liver Regulator, and wish to give it a further trial.

"The only thing that never fails to relieve."—I have used many remedies for Dyspepsia, Liver Affection and Debility, but never have found anything to benefit me to the extent Simmons' Liver Regulator has. I send from Minnesota to Georgia for it, and would send further for such a medicine, and would advise all who are similarly affected to give it a trial as it seems the only thing that never fails to relieve.

P. M. JANNEY, Minneapolis, Minn. Dr. T. W. Mason says: From actual experience in the use of Simmons' Liver Regulator in my practice I have been and am satisfied to use and prescribe it as a purgative medicine.

FOUND IN A COFFIN.

A dispatch from Calais, Maine, February 16th says: Several years ago sorrow for the loss of his wife by shipwreck induced Malon Holland to abandon his farm near Bangor and become a traveler. He finally settled on the Northwestern extremity of Rainy Lake, which forms a part of the boundary between Mahitoba and Minnesota, where he lived the life of a hunter and trapper. He left some distant relatives in charge of his farm on his departure from Maine, to whom he promised to give all of his possessions in the event of his dying first. Holland died three years ago, but so far as his relatives knew he did not leave a will. Recently they decided to bring Holland back to Maine and bury him near his wife and ancestors. On arriving at Rainy Lake it was found by his relatives that Holland had been buried in a box made of old boards, and that he could not be taken eastward until he was put into a more substantial coffin. In making the transfer the missing will was found, giving Holland's property to his relatives, as he had promised, and also a memorandum stating where he had buried $2100 in gold near the lake. The papers had been buried with Holland by mistake.

—FROM among the many testimonials received we select the following written by J. H. Carter, a resident of Phelps Co., Mo., who says, "I have used Sherman's Prickly Ash Bitters to the best advantage, and can honestly testify that it has done myself and family an immense good, and from my experience recommend it highly to all sufferers."

—OF all the statesmen who visited President Cleveland the other day in New York, by his request, not one can tell what the great man's intentions are. He pumped all his visitors dry, and gave them nothing in return.

DOCK ON CANDY PULLINGS.

I don't like candy pullings you bet I don't and after I have related to my readers an adventure I had at one, South East of here in that region of country noted for its ugly girls and pine trees, I think that they will quite agree with me that my dislike is but natural.

Well, as Mr. Collens says in the commencement of his stories, 'on a bright sunny evening a solitary horseman, might have been seen wending his way,' towards the pine woods, that was Dock, and he was on his way to a candy pulling, to be given at the residence of Mrs. Blanks. When I arrived, I found quite a crowd had already assembled. Girls were dipping snuff and grinning, boys were sitting in silent admiration of their junestreaks—as they call them. Well, after a while a head appeared at the rear door, and squealed out, 'Sal, the candy is ready.' Whereupon I with the rest of the fool boys were invited out to the kitchen, where a wash pot of boiling syrup was lifted off the fire, and emptied in large plates to cool. Miss Sal came and with oh! such a sweet smile, asked me to be her partner in the performance that was to ensue. I wishing to appear gallant; grabbed in with both hands to get enough for both, and I gave a war whoop, danced an Indian jig, trying to sling the stuff from my blistering fingers, and in my frantic efforts to free myself from the burning candy, I accidentally landed a dough on the old man's nose, who had come in to look on. He joined me in the nance, yelling at the top of his voice; we were both ushered out to the foot tub where the dextrous use of the map by the old woman wlay all pain. It is useless for me to say that my fun was spoiled, and I went away from there vowing never to go to another candy pulling, and so far I have kept my word.—[Exchange.]

—HOW did Gordon happen to go to Kharnton? The first proposal to that effect appeared in the Pull Mall Gazette, and it has been supposed that the idea originated with that paper; but the New York Evening Post says it has good grounds for believing that it originated in an entirely different manner; that Gordon telegraphed the editor of the Gazette suggesting himself as the man to solve the Egyptian problem, and asking whether the editor would support him. An affirmative answer was sent; the editor "represented" the paper in an interview at Southampton, and the two or three articles which were supposed to express the demand of the people were written by Mr. Stead in Gordon's own study and submitted to him in manuscript before being sent to London. The Post says: "We wonder whether Gordon sought divine guidance on that occasion by his usual method of tossing a half penny. If so, his fatalism betrayed him at the crisis of his life."

RAPID GROWTH OF A CENT.

A cent seems of little value, remarks an exchange, but if it is only doubled a few times, it grows to a marvelous sum. A young lady in Portland caught her father in a very rash promise, by a knowledge of this fact on her part. She modestly proposed that if her father would give her only one cent on one day, and double the amount on each successive day for just one month, she would pledge herself never to ask of him another cent of money as long as she lived. Pater-familias, not stopping to run over the figures in his head, and not supposing it would amount to a large sum, was glad to accept the offer at once, thinking it also a favorable marriage dowry in the future. On the twenty-fifth day he became greatly alarmed, lest if he complied with his own acceptance he might be obliged to be "declared a bankrupt on his own petition." But on the thirtieth day the young girl demanded only the pretty little sum of $5,368,709.12. The astonished merchant was only too happy to cancel the claim by advancing a handsome cash payment for his folly in allowing himself to give a bond—for his word he considered as his bond—without noticing the consideration therein expressed, and by promising to return to the old custom of advancing much smaller sums daily until otherwise ordered.

Our arithmetical reporter has been "figuring on it," and says that if the old gentleman had fulfilled his promise, the daughter would have had, upon the receipt of the thirtieth payment, the snug little sum of $10,430,617.43.

—A MECHANICAL accountant has been invented by a Meriden genius. The New Haven Palladium says: "The machine is worked by simply touching figures, exposed in plain view, arranged as the letters on a type-writer, only ten or twenty times as large, which stands between the salesmen on the counter. When the clerk sells $5 10 worth of goods he takes the money, touches the figure 5 on the dollar section and 1 and 0 on the cent column. This cannot be altered until the next sale without ringing a bell and thus alarming a bystander, either salesman, proprietor or customer."

—IT is estimated that there will be 18,000 men in line in the inauguration parade. Pennsylvania alone sends fifteen infantry regiments numbering about 8000 men. In the civic display New York expects to take front place with 600 men from Tammany, 1200 from Irving hall and a company of heavy weights from the county Democracy, each man to weigh between 200 and 300 pounds.—[Exchange.]

—IN Natchez, Miss., a negro 70 years of age was sentenced to a year in jail for marrying a white woman 72. He claimed that he simply married her to take care of her, but the court no doubt decided that he might have followed the promptings of humanity in a more Platonic fashion.
