THE STATE AT LARGE.

A CANDIDATE'S OMNIUM GATHERUM PLATFORM.

Politics in the Fifth District—Death of Hon. John Hunter, Sr.—Fight of Excursionists—Damage by Hail in Louisa—Gleanings.

DANVILLE, VA., Aug. 11.—[Special.]—W. Barksdale, a native Republican, who for years was a deputy United States marshal, has formally announced himself as an independent candidate for Congress conditionally. In his card he says if the iniquitous Force bill becomes a law, he will not be a candidate; but, if it is defeated in the Senate, as he thinks it ought to and will be, he will remain in the field until sunset on election day. Mr. Barksdale's platform is in favor of a Blair bill, free trade and sailors' rights, free Sunday schools, religious liberty, State pensions for Confederate soldiers, free tobacco, free whisky, the temperance cause and various other things.

Hon. P. G. Lester, member of Congress from this district, has been attending the Primitive Baptist Association in this county for the past week. He preached twice to large audiences, and passed through this city to-day on his return to Washington.

LYCNHBURG.

Open-Air Religious Meetings—Richmond Negroes have a Fight.

LYNCHBURG, VA., Aug. 11.—[Special.]—For some days several of the ministers of this city have united in holding, on Franklin Hill, what are called open-air religious meetings at night. They are somewhat on the order of old camp-meetings, with their plain seats and lamp-light. These meetings have been very largely attended, and last night it is estimated that at least one thousand people were in attendance.

In the absence of Rev. Dr. Felix of the First Baptist church, of this city, Rev. Dr. W. W. Landrum of Richmond, has been filling the pulpit with great success. The church was crowded last night, and the sermon was universally commented for its ability and eloquence.

An excursion train from Richmond, consisting of three coaches, two of negroes and one of whites, arrived in the city early this morning over the Chesapeake and Ohio road. During the night Henry Carter and William Branch, two Richmond negroes, who had brought their guns along with them, became involved in a quarrel. The dispute became animated, and both whipped out revolvers and began firing at each other. How many shots were fired is not definitely known, but it is known that both parties fired until each had received a flesh wound.

Dr. D. A. Kuyk, a Richmond surgeon, who happened to be aboard, made an examination of the belligerents with the following result: A ball had struck the second finger of the second joint to the end, glanced, entering the left thigh, and imbedded itself in the flesh. Branch drove in the fleshy part of the left hand. The other men bled freely, and Dr. Kuyk rendered all the assistance in his power. The men claim that the shooting was accidental, but their claim is not credited, and, even if true, it was criminal carelessness to handle a pistol in a crowded railroad car. Quite a panic was created in the car by the incident. The wounded negroes leave for home to-night.

Last night Deputy Sheriff Inman Callatin, of Rusburg, Campbell county, was aroused from his slumbers by a grating sound like that of a saw, and on investigation discovered that some one was endeavoring to force an entrance to his storehouse. Rising quietly, he procured his shotgun, and proceeding to the window he opened fire on the intruder. Hearing no sound after the first shot, he discovered the dead body of a white man, the whole load having taken effect in his head, killing him instantly.

LOUISA.

Death of Mr. John Hunter, Sr.—Tobacco Damaged by Hail.

LOUISA, VA., Aug. 11.—[Special.]—Hon. John Hunter, Sr., one of the oldest and most highly esteemed citizens of this county, died at his residence, one mile west of this place, on Saturday night. For more than a year Mr. Hunter had been confined to the house, and a greater portion of the time to his bed. He bore his sufferings with Christian fortitude, and was seldom heard to murmur or complain under any circumstances. Mr. Hunter was born in the southern part of this county near the Goochland line on the 11th day of November, 1798, and was therefore nearly ninety-two years old—probably the oldest citizen in the county. He came here in 1815, and in 1822 was elected clerk of the Circuit and County Courts, and served in that capacity until 1852, a period of thirty years. By the application of strict business principles and economy he amassed a large fortune. He served in the Virginia House of Delegates from 1857 to 1861, and in that body opposed secession as long as opposition was of any avail. When his State seceded, however, he gave to the Confederate cause the best efforts of his mature manhood, and as presiding justice of the old county court, which position he held during the war, did much to preserve that good order in the county for which old Louisa was noted at the time. Mr. Hunter has for many years been a consistent member of the Disciples church at this place, and by his liberality in church matters has been one of the pillars of the church. His death is deeply lamented, not only by the church and community generally, but by a large circle of friends scattered over all parts of the State.

The Roundstreet neighborhood, the great tobacco growing section of this county, was visited by a severe hail-storm yesterday about 12 o'clock. My informant states that many of the best farmers in that locality will lose their entire crops of tobacco, and the corn is greatly injured, the principal sufferers being Messrs. J. F. Watkins, J. F. Wright, R. P. Holland, Joshua L. Morris, Claiborne Perkins, Crewdson M. White, W. J. Wright, and W. P. Hasher—names which will be readily recognized on the Tobacco Exchange as producers of some of the finest tobacco which finds its way to the Richmond market. Some of them contemplate cutting off at the ground and turning out a sucker, while others think they will give the whole crop up as worthless.

The Negro Industrial Parade—Chicken Fight—Personals.

PETERSBURG, VA., Aug. 11.—[Special.]—Judge R. H. Jones and Mr. W. H. Captain John Moore, freight conductor on the Norfolk and Western railroad, attempted to jump on a train at a depot here. He was thrown between the platform and the railroad track, and dragged for a short distance. The Petersburg Greys, Captain F. R. Lassiter, will go into a week's encampment on Wednesday night, at Ellersille, Chesterfield county, two and a half miles from Petersburg. Hollingsworth, and a United States Army officer, from Washington.

This morning about 3 o'clock a frame house on Foley street in Blandford, occupied by George Monroe, a negro, was destroyed by fire. Loss, $400; covered by insurance.

The funeral of Mr. George Schank took place this morning from the Washington-street M. E. church, and was largely attended. Rev. R. T. Wilson officiated. The deceased was a member of Washington Council, Jr. O. U. A. M. He was up, to a short time ago a member of the order of Chosen Friends, in which order he carried an insurance of $3,000 but he withdrew from the order some time since.

The body of a colored man was found in the water in May's meadow, in Chesterfield county, yesterday by Mr. Thomas Dolan, of this city.

The R. E. Lee Battery held another meeting to-night to elect a captain. A committee from the battery waited on Mr. R. M. Dobie to-day, and asked him if elected captain of the company would he serve, who told them that he could not.

The colored people's industrial parade this afternoon was a failure, so far as exhibits were concerned. In the line were three colored military companies. The procession was headed by a band of music. The parade was followed by a lamb-roast, near West-End Park.

A chicken fight took place this afternoon in Dinwiddie county about one mile from Grantie Grove, which was witnessed by about three hundred and fifty people. Considerable money is reported to have changed hands on the result. One of the chickens was killed.

ALEXANDRIA.

Cut by a Negro Boy—Sunday Scenes—Notes of the Churches.

ALEXANDRIA, VA., Aug. 11.—[Special.]—The eight or ten pleasure yachts owned here had their parties yesterday, who steamed or sailed down early in the morning to return in the evening. Three of them anchored off Mount Vernon and camped ashore.

Sheriff Veitch went on his usual raids, and didn't succeed as well as before, for his two prisoners were discharged by Squire Birch for lack of evidence.

While bathing in the river above the Free bridge, a white boy named Ryder got into an altercation with a colored boy. Ryder, it is said, held the darkey's head under water for several minutes, and then chased him ashore. Whereupon the darkey got a knife and cut him in the stomach, making a bad would, but not necessarily serious in its character. Both boys live in Washington.

At the Catholic church yesterday the new assistant pastor preached on "Slander and Detraction," in which he went at the "politicians and political liars."

Rev. Dr. Latimer, of Hampden-Sidney, preached two splendid sermons at the second Presbyterian church yesterday.

Burned the House.

DANVILLE, VA., Aug. 11.—[Special.]—Two men have been manufacturing whisky near Sandy Cross, in Rockingham county, N. C. Revenue Officer W. Ray went to the distillery on Saturday last to list the stock in the storage house for taxation. The officer had some reason to believe that the distillers meant mischief, and when he returned to Reidsville he took another officer with him, and the two returning to the distillery hid themselves in the woods near the storage room to watch matters.

About 10 o'clock at night the owners of the distillery went to the store, it is charged, removed the unstamped spirits, and then deliberately set fire to the house, burning it to the ground. The officers then went home and returned Sunday morning with reinforcements to arrest the men, but they, having in some way got an inkling, had departed. The object in burning the house was to make it appear that the unstamped liquor, about 600 gallons, had been destroyed, so that the revenue tax would not have to be paid on it.

Matthews County.

GLOUCESTER C. H., VA., Aug. 11.—[Special.]—The Democrats of Matthews county elected the following gentlemen as delegates to the Tappahannock Convention, which meets Friday, 22d of this month: R. T. W. H. Bledso, for many years a prominent attorney in this city, died at his home here yesterday.

Carthage, in Moore county, has had another new sensation in connection with the recent postoffice robbery there. W. F. Stutts, assistant postmaster, who robbed the office of registered matter, and in whose trunk the matter was found, disappeared while a warrant was being sworn out for his arrest, and has not yet been arrested. Postmaster Shields has just been arrested, also, and bound over for his appearance at the United States Court upon a charge of aiding and abetting Stutts to escape. It is stated that Shields assured the postoffice inspector that Stutts could be had, and that he would assist the inspector to arrest him, but afterwards refused to assist the inspector, stating that Stutts would make his appearance. Shields is suspected of being in league with Stutts, and will be held for trial.

The negroes are apparently organizing a regular campaign of their own, and are determined to split off entirely from white Republicans. A negro school teacher here is out in a card announcing himself as "the Republican candidate" for clerk of court, and will run against Charles D. Upchurch, the regular white Republican nominee, who has held the office for a number of years.

In Orange county Saturday night, negroes held a convention and put a full colored ticket in the field for the Legislature and county offices, independent of the regular Republican nominees.

CARDINAL NEWMAN DEAD.

END OF THE CAREER OF A NOTABLE MAN.

Sketch of the Life of the Prelate—General Cable News—The Cholera at Jeddah—Emperor William's Return to Germany.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Cardinal Newman is dead. He had been failing for some time, but in spite of his eighty-one years, there were hopes of his recovery from a recent attack of pneumonia.

[John Henry Newman was born at London February 21, 1801. He graduated at Trinity College, Oxford, in 1820, was elected fellow of Oriel College in 1822, and there assisted Dr. Whately in preparing for publication the Dialogues in Logic. He was ordained into the English Church in 1824, and next year became vice-principal of Alban Hall under Dr. Whately, and in 1826 a tutor of Oriel. He was appointed a public examiner in 1827 and vicar of St. Mary's in 1828. He opposed in 1829 the re-election of Sir Robert Peel as member for the University of Oxford, because of that statesman's advocacy of Roman-Catholic Emancipation.

In 1830 he was chosen one of the select university preachers and at the invitation of Hugh Rose began to write a history of the principal Church councils, the first portion of which was published in 1833, under the title of "The Arians of the Fourth Century."

Meanwhile, the reform measures of Earl Grey, and the spread in England of German anti-dogmatic liberalism, gave rise to a strong conservative opposition in the English Church, which Newman joined with the purpose of forming an Anglo-Catholic party. In December, 1832, he went to Italy with Hurrell Froude, and with him began in Rome the "Lyra Apostolica," which appeared monthly in the British Magazine. Falling sick in Sicily, he returned to England in July 1833.

Soon after his arrival what is known as the Oxford movement, was startled by John Keble's sermon entitled "National Apostasy." Newman, finding that his associates differed widely as to the way of opposing liberation, and neautralizing the tendencies towards Rome, began a series called "Tracts for the Times," and a series of letters in the Record under the head of "Church Reform." He now wrote the historical sketches that appeared in the British Magazine, and were afterwards printed collectively as "The Church of the Fathers," aided in editing "The Library of the Fathers," and delivered lectures on "The Prophetical Office of the Church Viewed Relatively to Romanism and Popular Protestantism."

In 1837 appeared his essay on "Justification," controverting the Lutheran doctrine on that subject, while his University sermons discussed the relations of faith and reason, and investigated the ultimate basis of religious belief. In the summer of 1838 he published a pamphlet on "The Real Presence," in which, seeking to give to the eucharistic doctrine an intellectual basis, he denied the objective reality of space. He now became editor of The British Critic, and remained so until July, 1841. The Bishop of Oxford having in 1838 animadverted publicly on "The Tracts for the Times," Dr. Pusey replied by denying their Romanizing tendency, this opposition emboldened the Tractarian writers, and Dr. Newman defined more and more clearly the relative positions of Anglicanism and Romanism, till his attempt to reconcile the Anglican teaching of the Thirty-nine Articles with Roman Catholic dogma culminated in "Tract No. 90" in February, 1841.

He was called upon to withdraw the tract, but refused. When the British and Prussian Governments created a bishopric in Jerusalem, in 1841 he protested against the alliance about to be contracted in the East with Nestorians, Monophysites and others.

In February, 1843, he made a formal retraction of the charges which he uttered against the Church of Rome, and in September gave up his living and resigned his office as a clergyman. To his house at Littlemore he had invited several persons whose minds were disturbed like his own, and this was represented as an attempted revival of monasticism. He busied himself and his associates with translations from Athanasius and writing a series called "Lives of the English Saints," in order to give the writers "an interest in the English soil and the English Church and keep them from seeking sympathy with Rome." Some thirty writers were engaged in this work, the Lives to form a periodical series, with Dr. Newman as editor. The first two numbers only, containing the life of St. Stephen Harding and the family of St. Richard were edited by him, the others being published independently by their respective authors.

He then began his essay on "The Development of Doctrine," in the beginning of 1845, was received into the Roman Catholic Church October 9, and left Oxford February 23, 1846. Soon afterward Dr. Wiseman called him to Oxcott and thence sent him to Rome. There he took orders, and returning to England in 1848, established two houses of the Oratory of St. Philip Neri at Brompton and Birmingham, becoming superior of the latter, which in a few years was transferred to Edgebston. There he built a large convent and a spacious church, with a school for the sons of the gentry and poor school and other pious institutions in the neighboorhood.

He published in succession "Loss and Gain," "Sermons to Mixed Congregations," "Lectures in Certain Difficulties Felt by Anglicans In Submitting to the Catholic Church," "Lectures on the Present Position of Catholics in England," and Lectures on the History of the Turks in their Its Relation to Christianity."

In April, 1853, he was sued for libel by the ex-Dominican Achille and lost the suit, the costs of which were paid by public subscription. In 1854 he was appointed by the Pope rector of the newly-founded Catholic University of Dublin. Here, besides conducting the "Atlantis," the organ of the institution, he delivered several series of discourses and lectures on universities and university education published in the collection of his works; "Sermons Preached on Various Occasions," and "Calista, a sketch of the Third Century." He resigned the rectorship of the University in 1859, and devoted himself to his labors and duties in the Oratory. Canon Kingsley having in Maxmilian's Magazine for 1864 accused Dr. Newman and the Roman Catholic priesthood generally of thinking lightly of the virtue of veracity a correspondency on this subject ensued, which was published in a pamphlet in February. This drew forth a second pamphlet from Kingsley, in which the imputation was renewed and aggravated.

Dr. Newman replied in "Apologia Pro Vita Sua" issued in weekly numbers, with an appendix, on June 16, 1864. This work was afterward embodied in his "History of My Religious Opinions." In 1864 appeared "Verses on Various Occasions," and in 1865, "Letter to the Rev. E. B. Pusey, D. D.," in reply to some assertion in the latter's "Eirenicon relative to the honors paid to the Virgin Mary."

At the approach of the Vatican Council a letter from Dr. Newman was published expressing dissatisfaction with the Ultra-Montanese for urging factiously the definition of pontifical infallibility, but expressing belief in the doctrine itself. In 1870 appeared a philosophical treatise entitled "An Essay in aid of a Grammar of Assent," and in 1875 "A history of Arianism." In January, 1875, Dr. Newman published "A Letter addressed to His Grace the Duke of Norfolk, on account of Mr. Gladstone's Recent Expostulation." New, uniform edition of Dr. Newman's complete works was begun in London in 1870. He was created Cardinal in 1879.

BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Business Transacted at the August Session of the Body.

The Board of Aldermen met in monthly session last night. The Committee on Streets, through its chairman, Mr. Capers, presented a report asking the Auditor to pay the monthly pay-rolls for hands and carts until otherwise ordered. It was asked in a resolution in which was provided that the amount of the pay-roll at no time should exceed that of any previous month of 1890. The rules were suspended, and on motion of Mr. Bowden, the resolution was voted upon, and lost, and Mr. Capers plainly asked what the Street Committee was to do—discharge the hands, or let them go on to work, without pay. After a lengthy discussion, participated in by Messrs. Dickerson, Capers, Davis, Wilkinson, and Carter, the resolution was referred to the Committee on Finance.

FIRE ESCAPES.

Mr. Davis, from the Committee on Fire Department, reported an ordinance in conformity with State legislation, and defining the character of fire escapes, as provided by act of the General Assembly of Virginia. The fire escapes are to be under the supervision of the Chief Engineer of the Fire Department. The ordinance, in the judgment of the Board, did not conform to the State law, and on motion of Mr. Hargrove it was recommitted to the Fire Committee to be put in proper shape.

Mr. Carter, from the Committee on Cemeteries, presented a resolution, asking for $300 to be placed to the credit of the committee, to be used in payment of salary of keeper of River View cemetery, for the balance of the fiscal year. Referred to the Committee on Finance.

The Board concurred in the resolution permitting the North End Land Improvement Company to build an iron viaduct from the terminus of Fifth street. The provisions of the contract to build this bridge have hertofore been given.

OPPOSING A RAILWAY.

Mr. Capers presented a petition, by request of the property-holders residing on that portion of Grace street along which Mr. Warner Moore and his associates propose to run an electric street-car railway. The petition alleges that Grace street is now the only good driving thoroughfare, except Franklin street, from the centre of the city to the western suburbs, and that both of these are filled with vehicles and teams every afternoon, causing inconvenience in driving along other streets; that the noise of the cars and the danger interferes with the comfort and quiet of citizens. The petitioners claim that such a line is not needed, and is signed by I. Davenport, Jr., Thomas M. Rutherfoord, Charles E. Wortham, John L. Williams, T. D. Barksdale, E. B. Addison, W. L. Fleming, J. B. Woodward, John R. Cary, George A. Lyon, Lewis H. Blair, C. B. and T. L. Antrim, C. D. Langhorne, Edward Y. Cannon, John C. Joplin, C. W. Branch executor estate of T. Branch, W. R. RIVER VIEW RAILWAY PETITION.

Mr. Capers presented a petition from the River View Railway Company asking permission to build a double-track street railway track, commencing at the western corporate limits on Cary street and extending eastward on Cary street to Seventh, where connection may be made with the Manchester or some other line. The right to propel cars by horse, mule or electric power, and with right to erect poles for electricity under control of the City Engineer and Street Committee. The petitioners claim that this route is the most practicable one to develop the southwestern portion of the city, and that the River View Company now have one mile of the track now laid, running in one square of your city park.

The petition is signed by E. D. Starke, William Ellyson, J. C. Easley, J. H. Brown, A. L. Phillips, D. Mittledorfer, R. B. Chaffin, and J. B. Harvie. Referred to Committee on Streets, with authority to report to either branch.

A MEMORIAL.

Mr. Capers presented and had read the following memorial, which was referred to the joint Committee on Schools and Finance:

The Confederate Memorial Literary Society is an organization chartered in accordance with the laws of this State for the purpose of establishing in the city of Richmond, the capital of the late Confederate States of America, a society to collect and receive by gift, purchase, or otherwise all books and literary productions relating to the late war between the States and those engaged therein; all works of art and science; all public records, works, and archives of that period; and to keep and preserve the same for the use of the Society and the public, under such rules and regulations as the society may prescribe.

The said society by its charter was authorized to receive from the city of Richmond, and to hold and enjoy the building and grounds at the corner of Clay and Twelfth streets in said city, which were used and occupied by the Hon. Jefferson Davis, late President of the Confederate States of America. The said society, therefore, respectfully petitions the Honorable Council of the city of Richmond to aid in promoting its objects by appropriating for the uses hereinbefore specified, the building at the corner of Clay and Twelfth streets, formerly occupied and used by the Hon. Jefferson Davis while President of the Confederate States, but now used as the Central school building of this city. Your petitioners believe that this action on your part would not only receive the approval of the entire community, but give great gratification to the people throughout the South. They therefore respectfully pray that this application may be referred to such committee or committees of your honorable body as you may deem proper for the purpose of having them report the necessary ordinances and resolutions making the transfer of the building and providing the necessary quarters for the Central school.

It is further provided in the charter of this society that when the city of Richmond shall have dedicated the said building and grounds referred to for its use and under such rules and regulations as said society shall prescribe, they may tender to the Southern Historical Society and to the Virginia Historical Society, or either of them, the use of such rooms in said building as said society shall designate; and said historical societies, or either of them, may be willing to reserve and use for keeping and preserving the archives and property of said historical societies, or either of them.

THE NEW YORK CENTRAL.

BACKBONE OF THE STRIKE SAID TO BE BROKEN.

Governor Hill Gives Expressions to Careful Views on the Use of the Militia—Passenger Trains Beginning to Run Regularly.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—[Special.]—The New York Central strike is already a failure. There is a pretty general belief that the New York Central will come out victorious, and that the injury to the road would be comparatively unimportant; that the movement of freight might be delayed a short time, but the road would have to transport the bulk of the merchandise that would have come if the strike had not taken place.

It is claimed that one of the first men to organize the passenger train was also the first to take the place of a striking switchman. He is a prominent member of Local Assembly 10,749 of West Albany, and at the outbreak of the strike was employed as conductor on a passenger train.

APPEAL TO GOVERNOR HILL.

Vice-President Webb to-day sent Governor Hill an appeal for aid, showing that the strikers were in full possession of the yards at Dewitt, and refused to allow the company to control its property. He also notified the Governor that the strikers were threatening to molest the West Shore tracks and operatives because some Central trains were moving over their lines.

HIS ANSWER.

The Governor has answered as follows: You may rest assured that the State authorities will act promptly and vigorously in protecting property and preventing violence. The true functions of the military forces should not, however, be misunderstood. It is not their business to operate the railroads nor to interfere on behalf of either party to a labor controversy, but only when invited to act in aid of the local civil authorities in suppressing violence. In protecting property they are not expected to do police duty, nor to discharge those functions which more properly belong to the sheriff posse. The power of the civil authorities should be fully applied before resort should be had to military
