I. W. W. (?) HID ON RACCOON MT.

Deputy Frank Shipp Takes Muleback Ride to Hermit's Dwelling.

FINDS PACIFIST TRACTS

Mountaineer Suspected of Communicating With Emma Goldman and Other Radicals.

A government official's ride on muleback into the wilds of Raccoon mountain, a raid on a little farmhouse nestled in the hills far away from all habitation, and the capture of numerous booklets and papers advocating "peace at any price," resulted Friday in the arrest of H. E. Sandow, hermit farmer, pacifist and alleged I. W. W. member. Following this investigation, which was conducted by Frank Shipp, a special agent of the United States government, he was lodged in the police station pending a preliminary hearing. Yesterday he was transferred to the county jail on account of the fact that no provisions are made for the sustenance of government prisoners in the police station.

Sawdon, who is a tall, rawboned man of 53 years, a typical agriculturist, seems to be a man of good education. According to his story he came to Tennessee about a year ago from Indiana. He admits being acquainted with quite a number of members of the I. W. W. organization, but said that when their policies were outlined to him he did not agree with all of them, so decided not to become a member.

When asked about his religion and its relation to war, he said that he had no religion, but believed in the religion of humanity. He said that he was not affiliated with any particular religious sect. He said that he was ignorant of the charges made against him, but that he supposed that he was arrested on account of the publication of a booklet last winter depicting the horrors of war and advocating peace by arbitration. He said that he had discontinued the circulation of the booklet this spring on account of the fact that he saw it was doing no good and that it was too late to arbitrate for peace.

Though it was intimated that he had had association with Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman, prominent leaders of the I. W. W. organization, he denied even knowing them.

He will be held in the county jail for a preliminary hearing before the United States commissioner. The man was arrested at the Sanders Plow company plant, where he was employed.

SUBURBAN SCHOOL BABY TESTS TUESDAY AFTERNOON

Mrs. Joe Clift, general chairman of the baby welfare campaign, announces that the weighing, measuring and testing of the babies at the Ridgedale, Hemlock, Junior High and Oak Grove schools will be on Tuesday afternoon from 2 to 4. Mothers living in those districts are requested to take their babies under 6 years old to these school centers at that time.

MOST SUCCESSFUL DEMONSTRATION

It Is Simply Remarkable to Step Into the Globe Remedy Co.'s Office, 1225 Market St., and See and Hear the People Praise These Truly Wonderful Remedies.

Mr. A. H. Arthur, of 112 Rogers street, Alton Park, Chattanooga, called on the Globe Tonic demonstrators and said: "Globe Tonic is the very medicine I have been looking for. My wife has had stomach trouble for a long while and has tried many remedies. I bought one bottle of Globe Tonic and she is improving every day. After she had used the third dose, she expelled a lot of worms. My mother became interested in the medicine and used it a few days and she expelled about a pint of worms. I want another bottle now, and we will continue to keep it in our house, as it is a grand medicine."

While the demonstration is in progress we are selling the large $1.00 bottles for 65 cents (three for $1.75) and refund the price if the first bottle does not benefit. Call on the demonstrator at 1225 Market street and let them tell you of your friends and neighbors who are using and praising the Globe Tonic, and get a free sample.—(Advt.)

STRIKING CONTRAST IN TYPES OF WOMEN AT BAR OF JUSTICE

One Was Refined, Comely and Beautiful to Behold, and She Said She Was Guilty — The Other—— Oh, well! — She Was Another Type and Wasn't Guilty—But She Was.

She was unusually noticed the minute she entered the courtroom. There was a grace, a distinction, a subtlety—an indiscriable and exquisite atmosphere of freshness and almost elegance about her which lifted her beyond the range of competition and which made her stand out from the others as a diamond would shimmer from a heap of broken glass. Calmly serenely, yet sadly she pleaded guilty to vagrancy, an offense which implies a multitude of sins among which is the loss of a woman's priceless jewel. She pleaded guilty. Why? There's always a why for a woman gone wrong. The devoted love, the implicit confidence in an unfaithful man was the very good reason why in the case of Beatrice Phillips who faced the stern bar of justice in the criminal court Monday morning.

She flushed as she faced the judge and looked down. She was young and slender, and her bare arms were round and shone white in the blaze of the morning sun which had stolen into the courtroom. Her hair was beautiful. Her eyes were young and seemed to call from their blue depths for help from becoming like these women of coarse laughter from mouths like painted wounds. How pitiful it was that she should be here among the painted women. She was too young and if left would grow like the rest. A great pity for her seized every one present. "You are charged here, little girl, with vagrancy. Are you guilty or not guilty? asked Judge McReynolds. "I am guilty, and I will tell you my story, so that you may see just how guilty I am," she answered, and then she continued: "The happiest time in a woman's life is when she feels the burning fires of her first love kindled, of course, by the ambitions and promises of home and motherhood, made by the object of her affections. I had ambitions, of course, for home and motherhood; there's not much to a woman that hasn't. But my ambitions were wrecked on the Gibraltar of man's unfaithfulness and deceit. I loved him and that love fired by his yet unfilled promises led me to give all that I had. Then following promise after promise to repair this wrong he disappeared and has not since been heard from. Cast out into the world by family and friends, who learned, of course, of my disgrace, I drifted down the pathway of life until I have struck the bump at the end of the way of the transgressor.

"Guilty; why judge of course I am guilty" she concluded. "Not guilty" said Judge McReynolds. "Mr. Clerk, call the next case."

The next case called proved an inevitable contrast, as is found in almost every instance. Her name was Mamie Bowles, and she flippantly flung her lengthy and shapeless form which was meagerly covered by just as few clothes as the majesty and modesty of the law allows. As soon as the silencer was put on and the cutout taken off the noise and nuisance of the champing of gum she held between her lilkept and unswept teeth, she was told she was charged with a vagrancy. Then her long range vocal guns were turned loose and the court and spectators were forced to seek shelter in the trenches of decency. "Naw, I ain't guilty of 'vacancy.' It's a lie the men who arrested me 'framed me fer fair.' I loves Jimmy. He's me pal, and I lives with him and 'taint nobody's business.

"I don't believe in this cupid marriage stuff; it a lot of 'camelfluge.' I makes me money off de men. But what if I do? If Jimmy don't object what business is it of de law. This old world was built for a good time, and those who don't like its shape should shuffle off de motal coil. Naw I ain't guilty, of course, I ain't," she concluded.

"Guilty; eleven months and twenty-nine days. Mr. Clerk, call the next case," said Judge McReynolds.

TWO POUNDS OF SUGAR EACH MONTH PER PERSON

Administrator Places Further Limitations on Supply. Cafes Again Cut.

J. W. Abel, United States food administer, has received important sugar regulations from the department at Nashville to be carried out in Chattanooga. The sugar shortage is becoming more serious every day and the food administration is making every effort to save sugar wherever it is possible. In order to do this, after August 1, a rationing program will be put into effect.

The rule received by Mr. Abel provides that after the first of August each person will be limited to two pounds of sugar per month. The administrator has instructions to see to it that the retailers make every effort to see to it that the aggregate sales of sugar during the month to households does not exceed this quota. This seems to be an important ruling and Mr. Abel says that it will have to be carried out to the letter in Chattanooga.

It is especially imperative that the retailers pay particular attention to this ruling as their allotment for the month of August will be based on this ration, according to their certificates turned in.

The ruling providing that hotels, restaurants, public eating places, cafes and boarding houses will be limited to two pounds of sugar for each 90 meals served, will also be enforced here after August 1.

In order to carry out these new rulings the rationing out of all the sugar to customers will be of special importance. No one will be permitted to have sugar bowls on the tables of public eating places.

No Credit Extended On Freight Charges

A meeting of the freight traffic representatives and the local agents of the Chattanooga lines, together with some of the leading shippers of the city, was held in the James building recently to discuss the application of the director general's order No. 25, effective August 1, with regard to the cash basis of paying freight charges and securing credit accounts when necessary.

It was decided that no credit will be extended unless it is shown to be necessary, for which application must be made in writing on blanks furnished by the local freight agents. Where credit is desired bonds must also be executed by the applicant, which may be either in the shape of individual bonds or with a bonding company. Bonds covering the extension of credit are of two classes. First, to cover patrons transacting business at one or more points with carrier. In such cases applications for credit accommodations shall be filed with an agent of the carrier from which credit is desired, and must show the station or stations at which the accommodation is desired and the maximum amount of credit applying to each station. Second, to cover patrons transacting business at one point with two or more carriers. In such cases applications for credit may be filed with an agent of either of such carriers. Such applications shall state the carriers from which credit is desired and the maximum amount of credit applicable to each carrier. Upon receipt of such application by an individual he must obtain the joint recommendations of the agents of the carriers interested and the matter will then be handled by the agent to whom the application is made, so that all the agents of the carriers mentioned in the application will receive authority to extend credit to the applicant when properly approved by the treasurer to whom application is made.

ARMED PEASANTS MARCH ON KIEFF

Russian-Ukraine Peace Delegates Unable to Agree on Terms.

Washington, July 29.—An official communication from Minister Morris at Stockholm to the state department to day says that the Russian-Ukraine peace delegates have been unable to agree and that 75,000 armed peasants are marching on Kieff. The minister added that he thought reports of the strength of this force were greatly exaggerated, however.

The Moscow soviet, he also reported, has expelled all relatives and friends of those who were alleged to have been implicated in the assassination of Count Mirbach, German ambassador to Russia.

HIGHLAND PARK ROUSED OVER WOMAN'S CONDUCT

Home of the Von Drakes Aired in Court—Lewd Actions Charged.

The home of Mrs. Siddie von Drake in fashionable Highland Park was given a thorough airing in the criminal court Monday morning, when Mrs. Von Drake was on trail charged with running a disorderly house, and Richard H. Howard charged with lewdness. The witnesses for the state throughout the morning told of parties at the Von Drake home which were invariably held in the absence of the husband and in which Howard was charged with always being a party, too, and which failed to stand, in their opinion, the spotlight of propriety. The prosecutors in the case were Mr. and Mrs. George W. Chamlee, next door neighbors to the Von Drakes, on Union avenue. Mrs. Chamlee proved the most damaging witness to the defense as what she testified was not hearsay, but what she had actually seen herself from the windows and porches of her own home. Mrs. Chamlee stated she had on one occasion seen Howard and Mrs. Von Drake on the davenport and another time in the bed room. She stated the conduct of the man and woman had almost driven her into nervous prostration. She stated that on one occasion she had written Mr. Von Drake a letter advising him of the conduct of his wife, thinking he was being imposed upon. This, however, did not feaze the husband, who then brazenly entertained Howard in the front yard and walked with him on the streets as if he were proud of his wife's conduct.

Mrs. Chamlee further testified that soldiers and girls would gather at the Von Drake home and unseemly conduct was engaged in. She stated that on one occasion she had seen a neighbor named Johnson fondling Mrs. Von Drake's sister and later he had led her into a bed room and then pulled down the shades. The witness stated that she was informed by some one when the Von Drakes moved to the neighborhood that the conduct of Mrs. Von Drake would not prove a credit to the community, but she paid no attention to such a rumor, but waited and saw with her own eyes that the reports were true.

George W. Chamlee, who besides being the prosecutor assisting Gen. T. Pope Shepherd in the trial of the case, stated he had noticed suspicious circumstances about the Von Drake home and that frequently night and day Howard's automobile would drive up in front of the house and Howard would get out and go in and remain several hours. He said that last summer soldiers and women with dissipated faces began to gather at the home and he then became suspicious and seeing enough to justify him in taking a drastic step decided to have a soldier who was there arrested. The witness stated that he thought by arresting the soldier in the presence of the neighbors, who were sitting on the front porch, it might humilitate the Von Drakes so they would be more guarded. However, the arrest of the soldier, the witness stated, did not feaze the people nor stop their conduct.

Others of the neighbors of the Von Drakes, who testified as to their unsavory reputation, were Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Weeks, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Winger and Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Seay. They all testified they had seen Howard and Mrs. Von Drake frequently together either at the Von Drake home or in Howard's automobile.

Just before noon the state rested and W. B. Miller, counsel for the defense, asked permission to put on several business men who were character witnesses as they were anxious to get back to their business. Four or five character witnesses were then placed on the stand and all gave the defendant, Mrs. Von Drake, a good character. The two defendants and their witnesses will testify throughout the afternoon, as it is not thought the case can ce completed before late Monday afternoon. Mrs. Von Drake occupies a responsible positon with the Chattanooga Bakery and her husband formerly worked for Tom Snow Heating and Roofing company.

PHYSICIAN ARRESTED FOR NOT REPORTING AT CAMP

Dr. C. R. Myers Held by Federal Authorities—Had Volunteered.

Dr. Clayton R. Myers, of Shawsville, Va., was arested Friday in Cleveland by Fred Shipp a special agent of the government for the eastern division of Tennessee, and was brought to Chattanooga, where he was lodged in the county pail on a charge of desertion.

Dr. Myers was arrested on compaint of the draft board at Shawsville, and will be brought to trial in a short time.

According to Myers, he volunteered for service in the medical reserve corps shortly after the United States declared war on Germany and he was waiting to receive a call. He said that on February 29 he received orders from General Robeert Noble, of the medical officers reserve corps to report to Fort Oglethorpe. He reported this fact to his local board and they informed him that he need not report immediately, but that they would advise him the proper time to take up his duties. He said that he had been inoculated for typhoid fever and later vaccinated for small-pox and that he had a hard time with his arm. He later removed to Cleveland, failing to give his forwarding address to the local board. This is probably the cause of his arrest, so he asserts.

He said that if his arrest had been postponed a few hours, he would have been in camp at Greenleaf. It appears that he was reporting without order or if he had had orders he had not received them.

Dr. Myers will be given a preliminary hearing before Commissioner Sam McAllister in the next few days.

Second Lecture on Auto Repair Tonight

Getting down to bedrock foundation will be the program for the evening at the second night of the automobile efficiency course at the chamber of commerce tonight. Otto Hassler, of Hassler Bros., will be the instructor and promises to make the groundwork of automobile construction so plain that every student of the class will take away a definite understanding of the subject under discussion. At the opening night of the class last Monday night, Ernest Holmes discussed the automobile in a general way, showing the relation of one part to another. Tonight Mr. Hassler will start with the frame, explaining the various types, the strain which is put upon it and go through with the parts of the chassis, such as springs, etc., as he can cover. The lecture will be demonstrated by the dismantled parts of the car, which will be later assembled into a complete car.

The thirty-minute feature of emergency roadside repairs promises to be of special interest, particularly to the more experienced drivers. One student of the class last week stated that he had secured more than the value of the fee charged automobile owners in the advice given him under this head at the opening meeting of the class.

Since the first meeting of the class a number of additional enrollments have been secured.

Diarrhoea Quickly Cured.

"I have been in the practice of medicine for forty years," writes Dr. D. A. Post, Barnwell, S. C. "I came to this place last March, having purchased a plantation ten miles from here, am preparing to move onto it and shall practice there. I find diarrhoea prevalent, in fact became affected myself, saw a notice of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy, bought a small bottle and it is good." (Advt.)

SINGS HIS WAY INTO GERMAN PRISON CAMP

Poet, Author of "We and the World," Interned Here. Other "Pros" Arrive.

Rhyming his way to the heart of the kaiser, Dr. Hans Heinz Ewers rhymed his way to the heart of Oglethorpe prison camp with the poem "We and the World."

Ewers is typically German in appearance and in his views, and he was brought to Oglethorpe with a bunch of alien enemies from New York. The poet was interned in order to stop the flow of German propaganda from his pen.

Ewers is one of thirty-four interns brought to Oglethorpe from New York. As a sample of Ewers' speeches and articles are the following:

"Germany will never be the same after the war. She will be more centralized than ever and a stronger Germanic spirit will be born in the people. Germany is too strong, too young, too vigorous to be defeated. Her trials and sacrifices now will make her all the stronger in the real world struggle which will follow this war."

Ewers was chief among a group of twenty German aliens who were sent here. An enemy alien of a more sympathetic kind was Felix Armand Sommerfield, a soldier of fortune who accepted internment with the calm philosophy of one used to vicissitudes.

"I don't blame you," Sommerfield is said to have declared upon arrest. "It's the fortune of war. I had a fair hearing and I got what was coming to me."

Sommerfield led an adventurous career on the Mexican border, running munitions and rifles into Mexico to Madero, and then to Villa. A rumor connects his name with a store of a million Mausers stored somewhere in the United States, for Germans. Whether the Mausers are a myth or a million the intern declines to say.

Among other famous prisoners in this batch were Gustave Martini, who came from China in 1915, and was accused of corresponding with the Austrian army. Among the less well known were Adolph C. Fabricius, Hans Lentz, Fritz Jaedicke, Wilhelm von Greencamp, Otto Schaefer, Jacob Kuhn, Otto Bollman and John Borchert.

Sour Stomach and Belching.

"When I began taking Chamberlain's Tablets three years ago I was troubled most of the time with belching and sour stomach. I also had headache and constipation. This remedy was just what my system needed. It strengthened my digestion and restored me to my former good health," writes Mrs. A. D. Smith, Jordan, N. Y. (Advt.)

YOUNG MEN URGED TO FINISH EDUCATION

Secretary Daniels Writes Letter on Subject to Recruiting Officers.

The local navy recruiting station has received a copy of a letter sent to the main recruiting station at Nashville, advising all the recruiting officers to use their influence to have young men who are attending high schools and colleges to continue the completion of their education. The letter, written by the secretary of the navy, Josephus Daniels, in part is as follows:

"The secretary of war and the secretary of the navy have encouraged young men under the draft age to remain at school until there is imperative need for their services. We have advised them to take military training at schools wherever possible, and pursue their education. With this instruction I am sure they will be better fitted for the call when it comes to them.

"In the navy we take young men over 18 who desire to come, but those who are pursuing their studies at school and college are advised to continue their studies for the present.

(Signed.) "JOSEPHUS DANIELS."

No boy under the draft age who is attending school can be called a slacker for not enlisting in the service. On the contrary, he is injuring himself by not finishing his education, which would make him of far greater value to his country when the government needs him. Many men who have a technical training, such as engineers, chemists and electricians, are especially needed in all branches of the service, and for this reason it is most necessary that our young men who are attending high school and college complete their education, or continue until they are called for service.

SUNDAY COMMITTEE TO HOLD MEETING TONIGHT

Pastor and One Layman From Each Church to Manage Evangelist's Coming.

Chairman J. B. Phillips and representative ministers from practically all local churches will meet tonight at 7:30 at the Y. M. C. A. to make further plans for the coming of Billy Sunday in December. Members of the Billy Sunday executive committee have decided that rather than appoint subcommittees themselves to carry out the preparations, the ministers and one representative layman from each church form a large committee, to which will be delegated, in sections, whatever duties it may be necessary to carry out. Pastor Phillips acted as chairman of the committee delegated to secure the evangelist for Chattanooga. He also was made temporary chairman of the organization on preparation. At tonight's meeting, however, some active layman probably will be named to handle the work as permanent chairman of the forces.

For Sheriff W. G. SEARS

To the People of Hamilton County:

I am your candidate for sheriff, and not the candidate of any clique. If elected, I will perform with fidelity the duties of the office and will preserve order at all times and under all circumstances.

I was not selected to make this race in a star-chamber session of the bosses of the two parties. Can my opponent truthfully say this?

I have made as thorough a canvass as it has been possible for me to make, but could not see all the voters. The bosses are not for me, but the people are, and, if elected, I pledge equal rights to all and special privileges to none.

I have no money with which to hire workers on election day, but am depending on the unpurchasable and unbossable voters to take care of me, with the solemn assurance on my part that I will enforce the laws upon the statute books without fear or favor. Respectfully,

W. G. SEARS,

Candidate for Sheriff.

To Organized Labor:

The following letter is self-explanatory:

Chattanooga, Tenn, July 29, 1918.

To Whom It May Concern:

W. G. Sears, who is a candidate for sheriff, is a moulder by trade, and was in good standing when he quit his trade. Our records show that there is nothing against his record as being unfair to the union.

H. F. CALLAHAN,

Secretary Iron Moulders' Union No. 53.
