FRIDAY.....NOVEMBER 3, 1893.

City Politics and Populists.

If our good, easy-going, unsuspecting Democrats do not want to see another "reform" party built up here in Richmond, ready to take the field next spring, ambitious to revolutionize the city government, let them continue indifferent to the realities of this campaign.

The Populists have six well-organized clubs here, and are going to "make a break" against our line on the 7th of November. It is observable, too, that their orators now-a-days mention the Republican party very considerately, from which fact we may be sure that they are now engaged in trying to secure the aid of the colored voters.

We know that many respectable colored men are going to vote the full Democratic ticket here next week; but without a doubt the effort will be made by the Populists to "capture" the bulk of this vote. If they succeed they and their allies will present a formidable front, numbers considered; but they will cease to be formidable the moment Democrats begin to buckle on their armor for the fray.

The Democrats of Richmond would be the weakest, blindest fools imaginable if they permitted their enemy to organize right under their eyes; organize to make a good showing for the Populists at this election; but more particularly to "reform" the city government next year. They mean fight; but let us give them a beating at the polls which will scatter their cohorts like chaff before the wind.

Voorhees Law—Future of Silver.

The effect of the final passage of the bill to repeal the Sherman silver-law seems to have been "discounted" in New York, to use a technical word, as soon as the action of the Senate and the House of Representatives had indicated that that bill was about to become a law. Nevertheless, silver in bars sold in that city on Wednesday at sixty-eight cents, and silver certificates at sixty-seven cents. The lowest figure, we think, to which these certificates have ever fallen was sixty-five cents. The silver in a silver dollar was on that day worth hardly fifty cents in gold.

It has puzzled a good many people to understand how it would advance the price of silver for the government to refuse to purchase any of that metal when its action in purchasing 4,500,000 ounces of it every month had failed to raise the price. The mystery is not yet solved. We must be governed by the old motto—"Attempt the end, and never stand to doubt.
Nothing so deep but search will find it out."

But even if there were now a sudden decline in the value of silver as compared with gold it would not be charged to the passage of the Voorhees bill. It would be difficult for the wisest financier to answer the interrogatory as to how that law will affect the price of silver—that is, answer it with any considerable degree of confidence. As has been over and over again remarked, the laws of finance are always operating just as the experts in the financial world do not expect them to operate.

The closing of the mints of India to free coinage on private account caused a rapid and sudden decline in the price of silver, and so alarmed the President of the United States that he forthwith convened Congress in extra session to consider the propriety and expediency of repealing the Sherman silver-law. For his part, he recommended the unconditional repeal of the purchasing section of that law and nothing could induce him to change ground and consent to any compromise so far as that measure was concerned. He scored a grand triumph, and is the hero of the hour.

If the effect of the repeal of the Sherman silver-law should be, as is not impossible, a still further and permanent decline in the price of silver, we may soon look for such a clamor on the part of the Populists as was never before heard on such a subject. But that decline would not argue that the President was wrong in recommending the United States to stand from under the burden of silver which India was trying to place upon our shoulders, but rather that his recommendation had turned out to be a most unfortunate one; for it looks now as if the operation of the financial legislation of this country had had the effect of keeping silver from falling to the point to which the action of the Indian government would otherwise have caused it to descend.

We draw the conclusion from the condition of things prevailing to-day that nothing will save silver from becoming a mere commodity and silver coins from becoming mere token coins except an international bimetallic conference, which by wise and timely action shall prevent those results. Such a conference cannot be held too soon.

It is, of course, not to be thought of that gold can be substituted for silver to be carried in pieces of $1 or less. The yellow metal lacks the necessary bulk and weight. Silver subsidiary coins would seem to be indispensable.

However, it is evident that the whole commercial world is groping in the dark in this subject, and that the wisest of our Statesmen and the most expert of our financiers are alike at sea. But the Voorhees bill has lifted this country out of a terrible quagmire. The United States government is now unshackled and free to do in regard to silver whatever future circumstances may seem to demand.

A Few Reflections as to the Canvass.

O'Ferrall's Democracy is beyond question. Amongst the partisan charges which have been brought against him there is not one which accuses him of being a traitor to Democratic principles. He is as true in peace as he was in war. He gives sledge-hammer blows to the Populists, but he never gives them a lick amiss.

The Prohibitionists are a mere side-show—hardly that. They were wise enough to recognize the fact that they must have nominees of their own for the several State offices, or they would be compelled by the people whom they addressed on the hustings to signify whether they were for Cocke or O'Ferrall. "Do not bother about the Prohibitionists." Except in Augusta county and a few other localities their strength is weakness itself. Colonel Miller has no more expectation of being elected Governor of Virginia this year than he has of being elected President of the United States three years hence. He is merely playing into the hands of the Populists. We have no harsh words to apply to him, but it really does seem to us that he has wandered far away from his Democratic home, and unknown to himself is walking in a path which will certainly lead him into the Republican camp. We do not say "into the Populist camp," because the approaching election will be the only one in which that faction will take part in Virginia.

We again remind the gallant Democrats of this city that their services ought to be rendered to their party without intermission from now until next Tuesday. No other town, city, or county has so many and so varied interests at stake as Richmond. A Legislature of Populists would be a body as much prejudiced against this city as were the Mahone Legislatures, whose rancorous denunciations of her people kept them in constant dread of having forced upon them a charter under whose provisions the city government would have passed into the hands of the malignant Mahonites.

Finally but three days (Friday, Saturday, and Monday) remain between now and election-day. Whatsoever you may find to do must be done at once, or never. Now, or never, is your opportunity to serve your party, and serving it, to serve your country. "He who serves his party best serves his country best," said Mr. Garfield. With much more truth, perhaps, can this be said of the Democrats and their party.

Gas, Its Price and Odor.

According to the statement of the Superintendent of the City Gas-Works just laid before the Council Committee on Light, the gas now being furnished our people is 40 per cent. coal-gas and 60 per cent. water-gas. The public would like very much to see the percentage cut down in that direction from which the bad smell of the gas proceeds. The new gas is vastly more objectionable in odor than the old gas.

As somewhat of an offset to this defect we are to remember that the price of gas to consumers has now been reduced from $1.25 to $1 per 1,000 cubic feet. The Superintendent also reports that the new gas is of greater illuminating power than the old.

Water-gas, or "mixed gas," has come to stay. On this point there can be no doubt. But we should like to see measures adopted which will relieve the gas of its present objectionable odor. That the gas is not now so malodorous as it was when it was first made we feel sure, but it is still far from being as good as it should be, even after most householders have gone to the trouble and expense of having their pipes and fixtures overhauled.

If there is any possible way to lessen the smell complained of it should be done, and done quickly.

No More Tedious Talks.

Mr. Holman yesterday, in the House of Representatives, in discussing the question of recess vs. adjournment, gave as his opinion that by taking a short recess Congress could end its regular session by July 1st. We should think so.

When it comes to framing a tariff bill the country is not going to be content to have Congress dawdle along. Full discussion, of course, there should be, but the people will not tolerate any waste of time, because in that event business will surely suffer. Congress should make up its mind to proceed with all convenient speed in tariff reform, else we shall hear the same sort of clamor that there has been heard concerning repeal. While congressmen generally are at their homes, the House Committee on Ways and Means should proceed with their work on the tariff bill, so that the House may early begin the discussion of it.

We all want good work on the tariff bill, but we also want quick work. The business-men of the country could not enlist in a better undertaking than in urging congressmen to the speedy performance of this duty.

Now to Business.

The panic has lasted too long already. Let us all join hands in the effort to put an end to it. The Baltimore Sun says on this point:

"The President's magnificent courage and firmness are rewarded by success. The country, free from suspense, can now at length make preparation for the revival of deferred enterprises. A better feeling exists already. Wall-street transactions yesterday showed improved values and an upward movement. Interests that have long been holding aloof appeared in the market and added to its springiness."

The Sun ought to have excepted silver from the list of articles that went up in price on Wall street last Wednesday.

But the Sun is right on the main question. Let us get everything else to show an upward movement, and the financiers will find some way to solve the silver problem. The good work of Wednesday must not be allowed to stand alone.

Give Mr. Cocke What He Asks.

In his letter accepting the nomination of the Populists for Governor Mr. Cocke says: "For myself I ask nothing." Then his case may be easily disposed of. If he asks nothing let us give him nothing.

It is no time for any Democrat to be contemplating the desertion of his party. Be not misled by Mr. Cocke's fine words. He has an office in view, and desires to use you to aid him to step into it. With your assistance he will succeed in gaining his object. Without your assistance he can do nothing.

He asks nothing, and if he is elected, as he certainly will not be, your portion of the victory will be nothing.

The Ferris Wheel Company propose to run the wheel till November 29th, but they have already had trouble with the World's Fair people on this question, and more is threatened. There are various alleged causes for this, among them the refusal of the company to pay to the fair authorities $75,000, said to be due the latter. Ferris claims as an offset, in part, that he has suffered divers and sundry damages at the hands of the fair authorities. There seems to be no disputing the fact that Ferris has right of possession of the wheel's site for sixty days from October 30th.

We return thanks to Hon. Harry St. George Tucker for a copy of his able and interesting speech on the Federal election-laws. He establishes the proposition that either Congress can appoint supervisors over the election of senators by the legislatures, or it cannot do so as to representatives. Mr. Tucker, of course, does not claim to have been the first to advance that proposition; but nobody else has maintained it so successfully.

The New York Herald says that the homicidal-crank crop is large in all parts of this country. Not so. Such cranks are very rare in the South. It may be that they fear lynch law down here, and hence restrain their murderous passions. If so, that is one thing that must be put to the credit of lynch law.

In Deep Water.

Like incautious and weak swimmers are those who incur the risk of chronic rheumatism by a neglect of safety. This can be insured at the start by that live preserving medicine, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Rheumatism may attack the heart. There is no safety then. Forestall the chronic stage of the malady by using the Bitters, which is equally efficacious in malaria, dyspepsia, liver complaint, constipation, and kidney disorder.

NEWS FROM RIO VIA SALEM.

Rio Grande do Sul in Revolt Over a Year—The Cause of the Trouble.

(Correspondence of the Dispatch.)

SALEM, VA., November 2.—Lieutenant Thomas Griffin, on board the "Charleston" at Rio, Brazil, writes, under date of October 24, to his brother, County-Clerk Griffin, of Salem, that the State of Rio Grande do Sul has been in revolt more than a year, and that sentiment seems divided, and it is impossible to say which side has the sympathy of the greatest number of people. To an outsider it looks, he says, like a fight for place of the acting president, Peixoto using his position to put his friends in power to secure renomination and election in March, and the opposite side trying to force him to resign. Guns had been placed, and 5,000 soldiers are stationed in Rio. The foreign commanding officers had told Admiral Mello that they would not allow the city to be bombarded, although he had previously told them that he would not bombard unless fired upon from the city. A force for landing, if necessary, to protect the foreigners in the city had been arranged by the ships, and was to consist of 740 men. If they had to go Lieutenant Griffin would command those from the "Charleston," consisting of two companies of infantry and one of artillery. Both parties are partial to the United States, he writes, and our citizens are well treated.

From all of which it would seem that the newspaper reports that Admiral Mello and his followers are seeking to re-establish the monarchy are idle tales.

It will be remembered that Captain Picking, of the "Charleston," on board of which Tom Griffin is lieutenant, succeeds Admiral Stanton in command of the American fleet in Brazilian waters.

DEATH OF MR. A. J. SKEEN.

A Little Boy Stabs His Mother—The Wound Probably Fatal.

(Correspondence of the Dispatch.)

CLINTWOOD, VA., November 1.—News has reached here that Mr. A. J. Skeen, of Stratton, this county, died on Thursday last. He had a cancer about his face, and, after suffering intensely for several months, was relieved by death. Mr. Skeen was a prominent farmer, and was regarded with esteem by all his neighbors. He was about 60 years of age.

A little 8-year-old son of Robert Baker, near this place, stabbed his mother with a knife on yesterday, inflicting a dangerous if not fatal wound in her left side. Mrs. Baker said something to the boy which he did not like, and he threw a large knife at her and the blade took effect as above stated. The boy has been almost unmanageable for some time.

YUENGLING'S BREWERY SOLD.

Bought In by the Reorganizing Committee Under a Friendly Agreement.

The foreclosure sale of the real and personal estate of the D. G. Yuengling, Jr., Brewing Company, including franchise and royalties, was held Wednesday at the New York Real Estate Salesrooms by Peter F. Meyer & Co., says the New York World. The foreclosure proceedings were instituted by the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company as mortgagors, also as trustee for the stockholders. The judgment was for $1,405,500.

The sale included all the company's real estate on 128th, 129th, and Lawrence streets and Amsterdam avenue, together with all the plant, horses, machinery, and equipment. The property was sold in one parcel. The bondholders had appointed a reorganization committee, who bid in the property for $20,000 over the incumbrances.

Sam'l Untermyer said to a World reporter: "The sale made is pursuant to a friendly arrangement between the bondholders and the company. An agreement has been reached by which the holders of the $1,000,000 bonds now outstanding are to take new bonds for 75 per cent. of their old bonds and to get the balance of 25 per cent. in stock; also Mrs. Yuengling's right of dower, for which they are to pay her $75,000 in bonds. Mr. Yuengling will continue to manage the concern.

RICHMOND, November 3, 1893.

Every one that has given attention to our Sale of Remnants Fridays and Saturdays for the past few years can readily see the great loss such a sale involves upon the house. Experience taught us many years ago that a loss wisely lost means a gain in the modern manner of merchandising. To rid the stock of the not-wanted stuffs—to keep before you at all times a fresh, new, clean stock, well bought and properly represented—to mark down such articles as are shop-worn, become soiled, short-lengths, odd sizes, etc., to a price that will take them away at once—means a loss direct and a greater gain indirect. It is wise to know how to lose.

You must look to the various departments to which they pertain for the various goods. The original prices and the marked-down prices are side by side.

Only a few can be enumerated here:

2¼ yards Old-Rose Moire, original price $3.38, for $2.
3½ yards Illuminated Taffeta, original price $5.40, for $3.70.
