Up, Friends, and at Them!

Here we are with but ten working days between us and the election.

What have you done, friend, to contribute to Democratic success? Have you said a word, or done any work, or given a dollar in behalf of our cause? If not, you should mend your ways at once.

To win this campaign we have got to work. There is no mistake about this. It is not to be a walk-over. We are fighting a big combination—Republicans, Populists, Hard Times, Overconfidence, and Apathy. And what is more, General Mahone is now known to be devoting his energy and astuteness to bamboozling Populists, bossing Republicans, and beguiling Democrats where possible.

As a result of Mahone's manoeuvres you will soon see a shifting of candidates in some districts—the result of new combinations, through which the Republican and Populistic votes will be consolidated against us.

So we say arise, Democrats, give your minds and energies to the campaign and help to turn disaster into victory wherever disaster threatens.

Up, friends, and at them.

Help to Make the Walton Law a Success.

If there were no other occasion for one's presence at the polls on November 6th, the fact that the Australian ballot system is then to be tested for the first time in Virginia ought to be incentive enough to all who wish well to this Commonwealth.

Certainly every Democrat ought to consider it his duty to go to the polls on that day to see for himself how the system works. He ought to ascertain for himself if it is true, as has been charged in this campaign, that the law was devised to enable the special constable to cheat the illiterate man out of his vote; that it invites and encourages petit larceny, and is a voter-robbing scheme devised, passed, and put into operation by the Democratic "machine."

Yes; we are to contend for two great prizes on November 6th. One is the congressional delegation; the other is the success of the new election-law and the vindication of the men who framed and passed it and are now held responsible for its execution. Incidentally, we are also to decide if the voters of Virginia have the intelligence and disposition to avail themselves of the advantages of the Australian ballot system as the people of so many other States have.

Go to the polls and vote and see for yourself how the law works. Form your own opinion upon evidence, not upon accusation. And you members of the electoral boards, judges of election, and special constables, be sure to inform yourselves well as to the requirements of the law, and make careful arrangements as to printing and distributing ballots, erecting booths, marking bounds, &c., so that voters may vote easily, quickly, and satisfactorily. Any man who is charged with the performance of duties at the polls and goes there uninformed and unconcerned as to the functions of his office is an enemy to his party and an unworthy citizen.

The success of the new law will depend in large measure upon the preparations made to put it into execution. Where the officers have studied the law carefully and perfected their arrangements at the voting-place, there ought not to be much if any delay in polling the vote. But dull, stupid, or careless men will be out of place as officers of election on November 6th.

That the election officers will do their duty honestly we do not allow ourselves to doubt. Our electoral boards, judges of election, and special constables are gentlemen, not petty thieves. The law was designed and passed by honest men in the interest of honest voting, and we invoke the aid and encouragement of every good citizen of this Commonwealth in seeing that it has a fair trial. If it should meet the expectations of its framers, if it should give peace and security to the State, it will be the greatest prize that we have won at the polls since 1883, when John S. Barbour took the lead of our party and expelled Mahone and Mahone's minions from power.

Therefore, if you love your State and your party, help to make the Walton law a success.

Our Friends vs. Our Enemies.

Let it not be forgotten by the Democrats of Virginia that even after Mahone had been elected to the United States Senate he claimed to be a better Democrat than Ben Hill, though he had deserted the Democratic party and was the candidate of the negroes, the Readjusters, and what not. Yet he seems to have felt some sense of shame at being found in such company as constituted his supporters in the Virginia Legislature, and he therefore claimed still to be a Democrat. At any rate, his desertion to the Republican party afterwards may be regarded by the Democrats of to-day as a warning that when a Democrat gets to be better than his party he is at least liable to find himself grazing in Republican pastures and enjoying the "net proceeds" of men in whose company no good Democrat ought to be found. See to it that you do not "flock" with such doubtful associates. Better "flock by yourself," as Dundreary has it, than flock with your enemies. Republicans, Populists, and Democrats too good to live, must feel out of place in the company of the "old regulars."

Andrew Johnson, afterwards President of the United States, said once that he did not like men who were more for him than he was for himself. Some of these superserviceable and over-righteous persons may be found now warning the Democrats that the Democratic party is not to be trusted on the silver question, the tariff question, the pension question, the sugar question, the negro question, nor any of the other questions of which our party has heretofore been the champion. Well, it would indeed be putting the lamb out to be nursed by the lion or the wolf to entrust the legislation of this country to the men who, after having had that legislation under their sole control for more than thirty years, can show no better claim to public confidence than is to be found in the present deplorable condition of the business interests of the whole land. It requires a good deal of effrontery for one party to lay its sins of omission or commission upon another, yet the Republican party has reached to "the height of this great argument." Will the people be deceived by men who thus seek to lay their sins upon the shoulders of their opponents?

But why should you elect these southern Republicans to the House of Representatives? Is it not plain that they have little or no influence with the leaders of the party they claim to belong to? Hasn't a northern Republican congressman more respect for a southern Democrat than for a southern Republican? In national conventions, in congressional caucuses in Washington, wherever these so-called Republican leaders from the South show themselves, they seem to us to figure as the "poor relatives" of the Republicans who control the Republican party. What a contrast between a Democratic congressional caucus, for example, and a Republican congressional caucus. In the former the southern Democrats predominate and dominate. In the latter the southern Republicans are treated as "poor boys at a frolic," and neither rule nor attempt to rule the party they claim as their own. In fact, though it may be because there are so few of them, the southern Republicans seem to be regarded in Washington as men whose votes and services have been sufficiently paid for when they are allowed to associate with and class themselves as Republicans.

In conclusion, we would again remind the Democrats of Virginia that they have a most important duty just before them. A few more days and the result will have been determined and announced. It will be too late then for you to repent your supineness, or your apathy, or your inexcusable neglect of duty.

Mischief-Makers.

Premising, what we do not concede to be true, that the prospects are not good for Democratic success in the elections soon to come off, the Washington Post proceeds to give reasons for this condition of things. It argues that the Democrats will be beaten because the people, without reference to party alliances or predilections, are distrustful of leaders who would renew tariff agitation and set up a fresh regime of unrest and suspense, and because the country has suffered three years of apprehension and longs for peace.

As we understand the position of the Democratic candidates for Congress in Virginia, they are not in favor of renewed agitation of the tariff question at present, nor at an early day. The tariff is a dangerous thing to handle. Governor Flower, of New York, would not have it revised for ten years. Let it be pruned or amended, as circumstances may require at any time, but let not such an attack be made upon it as will alarm the businessmen, and thus paralyze the business of the country.

Three Things to Go to the Polls For.

To send a Democratic delegation from Virginia to the United States House of Representatives.

To make the Walton law a success; to establish the fact that Virginians have the intelligence and disposition to avail themselves of the advantages of the Australian ballot system of voting, as the people of so many other States of this Union have done.

To adopt an amendment to the State Constitution, which will be the means of restoring to justices of the peace the jurisdiction that they had for so many years and up to the time when the Mary Miller case was decided.

If this amendment be adopted it will be the means of saving $60,000 per annum to the State in criminal expenses.

The amendment will be voted "for" or "against" on a ballot separate from that on which the names of candidates for Congress is printed.

The Richmond District.

No grass is growing under the feet of Colonel Tazewell Ellett. He is making an able canvass. He is full of energy and enthusiasm, and so are his numerous friends, and their work is mainly directed to overcoming the prevailing apathy, caused, in large measure, by the belief that everything is "all right," and that there is no occasion for much work.

Of course, with a full Democratic vote out, the district is ours by a majority of several thousand, but apathy begets apathy and overconfidence overconfidence. We must organize against both of these, and also against surprise.

In Richmond and Manchester, and the counties of the district, committee and club work should be pushed forward with vigor, and continued until all of our men are registered and voted. Remember, too, that it is a part of our duty to contribute to the success of the Walton law.

The Sun on David B. Hill.

It seems to us that the New York Sun uses not an extravagant word in speaking as it does day after day of Senator Hill.

The Sun may not "shine for all," as it claims to do, nor be the best of Democrats itself; but it is certainly one of the most carefully edited papers in the Union. We do not mean that it has none except good editorials, but that matter is not dumped into its columns. "If you see it in the Sun," it may not always be true, but it will always have been thoughtfully put into the paper.

When the Sun, therefore, endorses David B. Hill in many of its finest articles, we feel confident that there is not an extravagant word in any such article.

There are about half a dozen cases of small-pox in Washington. Only one white person has been affected so far.

The District Commissioners have adopted twelve regulations for the government of small-pox patients and physicians, nurses, and others who have to do with small-pox patients. These regulations require that small-pox cases shall be reported to the Health Office, and that proper means of isolation, cleansing, and disinfecting shall be used without delay. They order that a placard or warning sign shall be displayed upon the front of any house deemed by the health officers to be infected by small-pox; that the dead body of any victim of the malady shall at once be completely enveloped by the person in charge of such patient in a sheet wetted with a solution of bichloride of mercury, and shall be placed by such person in a coffin, which shall be immediately closed, and such body shall not be taken to any church or place of assembly, and it shall be buried privately within twenty-four hours. The body of no person dead with small-pox shall be removed in or out of the District of Columbia. Any violation of these regulations subjects the offender to a fine of $50 and to thirty days' imprisonment in the jail of the District of Columbia.

The New York Gerrymander.

The proposed new Constitution of New York is not to be voted upon as a whole. Therefore, the infamous gerrymander intended to put the majority under the control of the minority may be voted down and yet all the other projected amendments be ratified. We get this information from the last issue of the New York Evening Post, which says that when the voter enters the polling place he will be handed one ballot "for" and one "against" each of the five propositions for changes in the Constitution, and he must account for each of these ten slips of paper when he goes to the ballot-box. Of course he may, if he chooses, return all ten to the proper official and not express himself either way on any of them.

The Lynchburg News publishes the fac-simile of a letter which Mahone has written to many of his friends in the Sixth District, urging them to vote for Hampton Hoge for Congress.

The contest in that district is plainly between Otey and Hoge, and we earnestly trust that no Democrat will throw away his vote on Mr. Rucker.

It will be found before a week is out that Mahone is at work in every district in this State where there is the slightest prospect of Republican success. If Democrats suffer themselves to be divided, he will have the very opportunity he is seeking. Come together, friends.

If you are not registered you cannot vote. Everybody ought to know this, but everybody doesn't remember it at the right time, and the consequence is that after each registration-day has passed many persons realize that they have been cut out of their votes by their own faulty memory or indifference.

Take notice, therefore, that Saturday is registration-day.

If you have never registered, register then. If you have changed your place of residence since the last election, the probability is that you need a transfer. See to it. Prepare to do your duty as a good Democrat on November 6th.

Nathan Straus, the ex-candidate of Tammany Hall for mayor, who sailed for Europe on the North German steamship Aller Monday, was accompanied by his wife and children. Before sailing he sent a letter by messenger to ex-Mayor Grant's headquarters, in the Union Square Hotel, informing Mr. Grant of his intended departure. The letter, it is said, contained a check for $1,000 as a campaign contribution, with expressions of regard and best wishes for Mr. Grant's success.

CAMPAIGN IN WEST VIRGINIA.

Allen O. Myers, of Ohio, Makes the Republicans Mad With Rage.

HINTON, W. VA., October 25.—(Special.)—The Hon. Allen O. Myers, of Ohio, spoke here on Tuesday to the largest crowd ever assembled at the Opera-House. The speech was one of great ability, and enthused the people beyond anything of a like character ever delivered here. The Republicans are mad with rage. Myers is a great terror to them. He spoke to a large audience Monday night at Alderson, and went to Greenbrier Wednesday.

Hon. E. Willis Wilson, Jude O. Key Johnson, and Joe Chilton are booked to speak here on the 31st instant. The Democrats expect to challenge the opposition for joint discussion, as Hon. George C. Sturgess and other Republicans are also booked for this place on that day. Fun may be looked for.

The handsome new Methodist church was partially dedicated on Sunday last. Rev. Thomas E. Carson, of Alexandria, preached the sermon. The church, which is one of the most substantial and beautiful in this section of the State, was densely packed. The reverend gentleman preached Sunday morning, Sunday night, and also on Monday night, to the great enjoyment of those who heard him. Fifteen hundred dollars was obtained on Sunday by the congregation, to apply to the indebtedness of the building.

BOOK AND JOB WORK NEATLY EXECUTED AT THE DISPATCH PRINTING-HOUSE.

I Was Weak,

Tired and nervous, my food did not digest easily. In fact I was in poor health generally. I had to sleep propped up in bed to breathe easily at night. I had the grip and afterwards a severe cough. I found relief in Hood's Sarsaparilla. I have taken seven bottles and can eat what I please, sleep soundly and feel rested unless I overwork. I feel as young as I did at 18 when I use judgment in my daily exercise. I cannot begin to express my thanks sufficient for such a great soothing, health restoring medicine

FRIDAY,

Remnant-Day.

The selling of other goods is not interfered with in the selling of these goods that are marked below all recognition, and which we feel bound to dispose of. Every department has its own special bargains—so-called remnants—the intrinsic value of which may not be at all diminished, but marked down for reason of being only a small lot not to be duplicated, broken sizes, short lengths, &c., good as ever to those consumers who in other stores pay full-price value.

This is the first day of Remnant Sale we've had in three weeks, been too busy to throw them out. Some great plums to be disposed of to-day.

Price hints of a few only:

5 remnants of Navy-Blue Storm Serge, double fold, 5, 6½, 7, 9, and 10-yard lengths, 12½c. a yard.
8 lengths of Illuminated Pin-Dot Serges, 6, 8, and 9-yard lengths, 25c. a yard.
15 Fancy Double-Fold Dress Patterns, just taken out of show-window, 50 to 65c. value; any 35c. a yard.

219 REMNANTS OF SILKS, all made in the last week or two, newest goods on remnant counter to-day.

78 Remnants of Priestley's and other well-known makes of Mourning Goods on remnant counter to-day.

8-yard piece of Black Hopsacking, $1.75 for the piece.
10-yard piece of Double-Fold Black Albuca, $1 for the piece.

IF YOU TRY

a pair of Spectacles, fitted to your sight, you will catch a glimpse of how much you don't see without them. That would be a sight of sight as you ought to have it. We can enable you to have it very easily, if you will allow us the opportunity to examine your eyes and determine what you require. Glasses are the furtherers of the eyes, which protect them against overstrain and procure for the sight a new lease of duration. Never trifle with time in the matter of overtaxed sight, but avoid altogether such risk by immediate recourse to glasses. Drafts on sight are wholly inadmissible and needless.
