

The National Whig
SATURDAY EVENING, MAY 8, 1847.
FOR PRESIDENT, IN 1849, MAJOR GENERAL ZACHARY TAYLOR, OF LOUISIANA, THE HERO OF BUENA VISTA.

An explanation is due to our readers for the detention in the issue of our paper last evening. Our press was removed into a more convenient room during the morning, but in the act of removal a screw got loose, and it was late before it was adjusted.

Mr. Fulton's election from the Little Tennessee District is still involved in doubt. J. R. J. Daniel (Tory) is a candidate for Congress in the Wake District of North Carolina, and R. S. Dannel (Whig) in the Newbern District.

The counties of Lewis, Madison, and Fleming, Ky., have nominated Old Zach for the Presidency amid the most unbounded enthusiasm. The Elizabeth, New Jersey, Journal has hoisted Rough and Ready's Flag. Another ball!

The Mexican hero, who had threatened to die for his country, is reported to have fled before his life was in imminent danger. Tory Union. Like Mr. Polk, who threatened to die by 54 40, yet backed out and took 49!

The United States of America. Too magnanimous to demand conditions which would degrade their enemies. Generosity is not inconsistent with justice. Yeast, Conner Dunier. Very pretty talk, this, but why is it that the President does not display some of that magnanimity here prated by his minions? Why does he demand conditions which must degrade the conquered Mexicans?

It is not the spoils of office, nor the voice for the succession, the Whigs and Republicans of the nation seek in elevating General Taylor to this office. It is the restoration, says the Loudon Chronicle, of their country to the path of integrity pursued by her prior to the era of spoils and political servitude. The National Whig says the Loudon Chronicle, is the title of a new daily and weekly journal published in Washington city. The editor writes with a quill plucked from the back of a porcupine, and his ink is a strong solution of lunar caustic.

We congratulate our country again on this glorious triumph of our gallant arms. Tory Union. And so do we; but are we any nearer the peace which Mr. Polk professes he is striving to conquer? General Jessup says we are not—every man of common sense sees that we are even farther off from it than ever.

The war has not been declared twelve months, and Mexico is covered with defeats, and our arms are covered with victorious wreaths. Tory Union. And the public taxes are increasing by leaps and jumps, and the blood of our citizens is poured out almost in rivers, and a thirty years war stares us in the face with the certainty of fate!

The New Orleans Picayune, on publishing General Taylor's official account of the battle of Buena Vista, remarks, that like all the others from his pen, this document "is written in that clear and forcible style which has obtained for his compositions a celebrity but little short of the fame of his military operations. It is couched in the serene language of history—elegant from its simplicity, and eloquent in truth. No one can arise from its perusal without feeling his admiration for the brave old General increasing within him. No one can help acknowledging, what has been said of him by participants in the action, that the first element of the victory of that bloody day was Zachary Taylor."

In a country of such extent as this, the objects of government should be to give variety to labor, to bring out the active energies of the people, and develop its peculiar abundance. D. Webster. Mr. Polk differs with you, sir? He thinks that the grand object of the Government is to make war upon a weak neighbor to "conquer a peace" which he purposely broke!

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE. The illumination to-night, from what we can learn, will not be general. We have seen several beautiful transparencies prepared for the occasion. The boys have cleared the pavements of the merchants' empty boxes and barrels, with which to make bonfires. The several Departments of the Government are to be lit up. Mr. J. Simonds, a messenger in the city post office, was yesterday engaged in emptying a mail bag, when his foot slipped, and he lacerated his arm by falling on a hook.

An aqueduct has been made from the canal to the site of the Smithsonian Institution, to supply water for building purposes. A deputation of Indian Chiefs from the Shawnee, Seneca, Quapaw, and Cayuga tribes, will shortly visit our city. Jenny Maher, we understand, will administer to their somnolent and epigastric comfort!

The Rev. Mr. Early, of Georgetown College, will preach in St. Patrick's church to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock, and a collection will be made for St. Vincent's Orphan Asylum. This morning, at daylight, we were awakened from our slumbers by the firing of cannon, in honor of our victories over the Mexicans. At twelve o'clock we had a repetition of the music, and the ringing of the bells of the engine houses. The star-spangled banner was all day flying in various parts of the city.

A portion of one of the walls of the house, now being fitted up for a Star Hotel, at the corner of the Avenue and Fourteenth street, fell down this morning. The excavation inside undermined the foundation. From present appearances—the remainder of the wall being cracked and propped with poles—the whole of the north side may fall.

The agent for the "National Whig" is industriously engaged in making such arrangements as will secure a prompt delivery of the paper by trusty carriers, and obviate complaints of its numerous patrons. TELEGRAPHIC. Telegraphic Correspondence of the National Whig. No additional news from the South. Dr. Warner's remains passed on for Baltimore today. T. H. L.

THE DEVIL ON TWO STICKS AT THE WHITE HOUSE! WASHINGTON, May 8, 1847. I was present, Mr. Editor, last afternoon, when the news was communicated to the President of the bloody fight at Thayrow Gowrdow (Cerro Gordo) as my yellow skin friends, the Mexicans, call that narrow mountain pass, and I do not know that I have ever been more gratified, since I urged Cain to kill his brother, at the charming effects upon the human heart of the murderous principle.

You must know that Mr. Polk is not really in favor of peace, though he professes it with his lips, and hence the pleasure he feels at the intelligence of the shedding of human blood in this unnatural and unattractive war; which, I am proud to say is the work of my hands. When it was told to Mr. Polk that General Scott had gained a victory, he could scarce contain himself. His soul swelled with delight, and the first thought I suggested to his mind, (for I am the demon to whom his destiny has been given in charge) was, whether Scott's success would operate to check-mate Taylor and prevent the people from making the Old Ranchero President, I assured him it would and he fairly chuckled at the idea. "Anything," thought he, "to put down Taylor!"

The Cabinet were equally delighted with the news of the thrashing of Santa Ana. Their object is the same as that of their Chief—to do and favor everything to prevent the people from making Taylor President, but everything they do in this wise is destined only to destroy them and elevate the wise and brave and merciful Hero of Buena Vista which they do not know, "Whom superior power destines, &c.," you know the rest. It is my duty to close their eyes to their true situation, and to lead them on in the ways of wickedness till they meet with their daggers.

The Old man of the Union, is peculiarly under my influence, because his office is to write and print the sentiments of the President and his Cabinet, and I must say, I find him eminently fitted to accomplish the purposes for which he has been chosen. This Mexican War is not a thing of a day. The President designs to "keep it up. His demands are such that the Mexicans will never submit to them, and he knows it. I urge him on in this policy. While he believes that the continuance of the war will prevent Taylor's election, a primary object with him, because he hopes to be re-elected himself, he knows likewise that his friends have it in their power to make fortunes out of the public expenditure. Mephistophiles passed along the other day, and paid the President a visit, and hinted to him that Scott would be in Mexico City, by the 16th of May. I have encouraged this idea and now Mr. Polk is fully persuaded that such will be the case or ought to be. He even grumbled in his heart at the tardiness of Scott, but the victory of Cerro Gordo, has put all things right, and he now boasts that the Capital is already in our possession!

The conquest and the military occupation of the whole of Mexico, is a grand object with the Administration, because Mr. Polk believes, (and I favor the idea,) that it is the only question upon which his party can retain power. It will not be very long before this question will be openly started, and the orders given for the friends of the Administration everywhere to take ground in favor of it. Mr. Polk thinks that it is the only way to kill Taylor's policy of a defensive line, and to keep the progressive party together.

The great trouble that troubles the hearts of Mr. Polk and his party Chiefs is the course of the People and particularly the taking up Taylor for the Presidency. I try all I can to persuade them not to heed the matter while I guide their feet into the very paths which lead to destruction. You must not err in supposing that there is any goodness of heart or love of country in the men who now control the United States government. There is not a spark of integrity or patriotism in their souls. The whole aim of their life has been and is, self-interest. At this shrine they worship and none other. They are all children of my father, the Devil, and pupils of my school. I rejoice in such pupils as you may well imagine.

There could be peace with Mexico to-morrow if Old Zach were at the head of affairs, and Mr. Polk could make peace to-morrow, if he chose to do so, but mark my prediction—there will be no peace till General Taylor is President in 1849. There is only one policy which the United States can adopt to secure peace, and that is for Congress to decide what shall be the line of boundary, and for the American arms to occupy that line and hold it. Such is Gen. Taylor's policy, and it is the true one. Many of his party, and many of the Whigs, think Mr. Polk is a good and just man. They are in error. I know his heart. He is vindictive, never forgiving, low-minded, and seeks always to attain his objects by circuitous routes. It is not his nature to march up straight to a thing. He would prefer going round about to it. There is a remarkable obliquity of vision about him. He rarely ever can appreciate the truth. To his mind two and two often make five than four. Hence his constantly coming into collision with his friends on questions of fact.

On Monday you shall have another letter. I am called off now to attend to Mr. Walker, who is in trouble about his loan. THE DEVIL ON TWO STICKS. LATER FROM OLD ROUGH AND READY. On the 1st of April the murder of 24 Mexicans were reported to General Taylor at Monterey. The murder was committed by a party of 20 Americans in the night. The murdered were made prisoners and then shot through the head. Suspicion attaches itself to the corps of Texas Rangers, which was at Marin on the night of the murders, near where they took place. General Taylor has avowed his determination to hang the murderers if he can catch them.

The barbarity of the soldiers under Urrea who massacred the wagoners on the 22nd of February, has excited great horror in the breasts of the Americans. It is supposed the murders above referred to were in retaliation. The hearts and eyes of the poor wagoners were dug out by the brutal lancers. Urrea was believed to be at Linares with 4 pieces of artillery. Thirteen regiments of General Taylor's column will be discharged in May.

To the Editor of the National Whig: Sir: Having been a close observer of the work in progress (but slow) on Pennsylvania Avenue, I feel it to be my duty as a citizen to enquire into the cause of the slowness of this work. Knowing that you are always alert in such matters, I hope you can answer my inquiry, and also inform me as to the cause of the pavos' striking.

Yours, &c., A WHIG. We know nothing of these matters, but will be glad if some correspondent will enlighten the public. Editor Whig. A correspondent from Berlin, thus writes of the Oratorio of the Creation recently performed in that city: Succeeding the text, "and the spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters," the music takes a soft, low, shimmering movement, as if some subtle, ethereal presence hung tremulously suspended over the bosom of chaos. But the first extraordinary and almost inspired passage in the Oratorio, is the world renowned illustration of the sentence, "Let there be light, and there was light." The orchestra is silent until the last "light" is pronounced—then it bursts into one magnificent crash of harmony, louder and louder, swifter and swifter, higher and higher, so that the Lights seem actually to stream up into a very blaze of universal and glorious effulgence.

Resolved, That the Legislature cannot refrain from expressing the hope and belief, that seems so rapidly laying hold of public opinion, that the services of the distinguished chief of this gallant little army may lead to his being called by the acclamation of the whole people, to the highest office in their gift. The above resolution was introduced into the Louisiana Legislature, on the 28th of last month, by Mr. Nicholas, a Democratic member of that body. What do you think of that Monsieur Polk?

Mr. Webster in his recent Richmond Speech holds the following just views respecting the Constitution. I desire to thank Almighty Providence that it was not left to our day to make it. It evinces deep reflection, deep study of the nature of human government. Let us take it as an inheritance come down to us from men at least as wise as ourselves, and acting under circumstances more favorable than ours.

[From the New York Herald.] WASHINGTON, May 4, 1847. A Case of Executive Interposition in a Small Way.—Mr. Wilson, late chief of the police at the Capitol, and a good Presbyterian, and, having, moreover, rendered general satisfaction in his office for twelve or fourteen years, was a few days ago displaced, and a Mr. C. W. Dunnington, a gentleman and a scholar, and a printer, late of the Globe office, was put in his berth—salary $1200 per annum.—Mr. Wilson stands accused of having exercised an undue influence over the Senate in the rejection of Mr. Beaumont, who was appointed by the President Commissioner of Public Buildings, but rejected by the Senate. Mr. Wilson is charged with having required of Mr. Beaumont on his appointment, a pledge that he, Mr. W., as one of the subordinates of the Commissioner, should not be dismissed in any changes that might be made. This pledge Mr. B. refused to give, and Mr. W. concluding therefrom that he was unsafe so long as such a pledge was refused, in order to save himself, employed all his energies with the Senators against Mr. B.; the result of which was the decided rejection of Mr. B. Chagrined beyond repairment, Mr. B., it is said, told the story to the President—whereupon the President of the United States requested Mr. Douglas, the new Commissioner, to expel the chief watchman, Mr. Wilson, and to appoint Mr. Dunnington in his place; which of course was done.

This is a specimen of the manner in which Mr. Polk executes the high office, entrusted in an evil hour to his hands by a confiding but deceived constituency! It is gratifying, however, to reflect that the citizen is not forever subject to the capricious tyranny of such a man. The people of 1848 will expel him and his myrmidons from power, with a voice that will haunt them to their graves!

[A negro woman and her five children (slaves) sued recently for their freedom in one of the Louisiana Courts and upon proof of the fact readily obtained it. By the laws of that State a negro slave can only appear in Court as a suitor for his freedom, which is invariably accorded where the proof is sufficient. Indeed the Courts of Louisiana incline in favor of the Liberator's.

LATEST NEWS ITEMS. In Valladolid, a town of Yucatan, the whole white population, male, female, and children have recently been either murdered or burnt alive. The great Comet of 1556 is expected to make its appearance in the course of next year. A National Medical Convention is now in session in Philadelphia, convened for the purpose of interchange of scientific sentiment, &c. The French Government is about to erect a glass canopy over the street from the Boulevard St. Denis to the Place de Chatelet. Mr. Cranston, who was stabbed at Baltimore has recovered, and is to reside over the Pavilion Hotel, at Rockaway, Long Island. On the occasion of removing the inmates of Bellevue, in New York, to the new Poor House on Blackwell's Island, where labor has been provided for them, and where they can not get liquor, some 200 of them refused to go and went into the city!

The Camanches observe the treaty they made with the United States with religious exactitude. A meeting of several Christian sects is in session at the present time in New York for the purpose of forming an Evangelical alliance for the United States. The negro Kings on the river Bonney, in Africa, have recently been found to murder all persons in cold blood, and roast them and eat them with salt and pepper. The loss by fire among the Jersey Pines a week ago is estimated to be very heavy. The people of Mississippi have raised money by subscription to enable the Towbigby volunteers (what remains of them) to return to their homes when they reach New Orleans. Thirteen negro slaves were suffered to pass through Cleveland, Ohio, last week, on their flight to Canada, though $1500 reward was offered for their apprehension!

The rot has made its appearance among the Neshaul and white Merce potatoes in Missouri. The Captain and first Lieutenant of a German company just formed in Dayton, Ohio, to go to Mexico, were both in the battles of Leipsic and Borodino. A planing establishment was burnt in Cincinnati last week—loss 15,000 and one human being. The Mississippi river at last dates was overflowing the levees between Vicksburg and New Orleans, and doing great damage. The celebrated Dr. A. L. Warner, of Va. is dead. He was eminent as a surgeon. The statue of William Pitt, which once ornamented the front of the Government House in New York, has been recently discovered among the rubbish of a cellar.

Lieut. Hunter for the gallant capture of Alvarado, which Con. Conner essayed twice in vain to take, has been sentenced to be reprimanded and dismissed the squadron! A son killed his mother a few days since in Greensburgh, Ky. He shot her as she lay asleep in her bed. He was intoxicated! The Governor of Louisiana has been called on by the President to raise five companies of Dragoons for the war!

The New York Mirror says very justly of General Taylor that he has "proved himself brave, humane, generous and sagacious. He has neither said, nor done a foolish thing, nor been tempted by his rare success into the expression of a vainglorious thought, nor committed an act of extravagance or cruelty since he moved from Corpus Christi; and now that his brave deeds have caused his past life to be examined, his character is found to be stainless, and his name free from reproach."

The people of Batavia N. Y. are to meet this evening to nominate General Taylor for the Presidency. Stop that ball, Mr. Polk! There is to be a large meeting to-morrow in Anne Arundel County, Md. to nominate Old Zach for the next Presidency. The whole country is on fire! Hear you that, Papa Ritchie?

The Governor of Connecticut was inaugurated on the 5th inst. at Hartford. His message took strong ground against the war and Bob Walker's Tariff. Dialogue in a cheap Restaurant in Paris.—Waiter, bring me a tooth pick, if you please. 'We have none, sir.' 'Why?' 'Our customers carry them off so often, that we can't afford to keep them any longer.'

Let Mr. Polk, who wields the energies of this Government with so feeble an arm, learn from the following sentiment of Daniel Webster, what is the true duty of a President of these U. States: "Under these general impressions of the constitution, I believe that our ancestors set us an example of great things. We have had no battles of liberty to engage in (whatever other battles it may have been the policy of our rulers to undertake,) [laughter] nor were we born to the work of making a constitution. The maintenance of justice and right, the observance of the precepts of law, religion and morality—these are the objects to which we have to look. Our government is designed less for achievement than for perseverance in the maintenance of public order, the public good, the conservation of the public institutions."

D. R. C. A. Van Zandt's Health Restorative Pills is a medicine which not only cures but prevents disease, capable of great results, and equally calculated to be safely used for apparently small ones. We all know how dreadful and dangerous a seated bilious disorder is, and we are also well aware of the seeming insignificance of its first warnings or incipency. The individual suffering from slight pains in his chest, back, or stomach, or from occasional nausea, dull headache, extreme nervousness, sleeplessness, trifling prostration of appetite, and other disagreeable visitations so commonly and foolishly looked upon as unimportant, may not know that these symptoms, treated so contemptuously, are the consequences of a diseased state of the liver, which if not remedied, will lead either to speedy death or a long train of unbearable ills which are known by the following names: Hypochondria, mania, dizziness, slow fevers, epilepsy, asthma, dropsy, rheumatism, chlorasia, convulsions, nausea, nervousness, cramps, gout, pleurisy, jaundice, irritability, and violence, dyspepsia, hiccups, scurvy, foul stomach, dry coughs, glandular affections, colds, lingering sore throats, various disorganizations of the great intestine, strictures and spasmodic complaints internally, eruptions, shortness of breath, heartburn, neuralgia, vital inflammation, flatulence, gastric fevers, &c. Sometimes, too, there ensues an irregular action of the heart. Take these pills and suffer no more.
