A REBOUND IN PRICES

Relaxation of Pressure Against Steel Issues Drives Bears to Cover.

CLOSE DULL; BARELY STEADY

Railroad Stocks More Affected Than at Any Time by the Steel Weakness.

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Railroad stocks were more affected to-day, in sympathy with the recent weakness of United States Steel, than at any time during the heavy liquidation of that stock. The sharp rebound in prices at the end of the day gave room for the supposition that much of the selling of railroad stock was for short account, and room traders found the supply scanty when they attempted to cover the shorts. The demonstrative way in which the break in railroad stocks was heralded and tipped from professional quarters further the suspicion of the professional character of the selling. United States Steel preferred ended to-day unchanged from last night, although it sold at one time at 49 3-4. The relaxation of the severe pressure against this stock seemed to deprive the bears of some of their war material, and furthered their disposition to cover. It was generally expected that some further cuts in steel prices would be announced to-day as a result of meetings amongst authorities in the trade and the failure of these announcements was a relief to the United States Steel securities. The number of shares of Pennsylvania dealt in rose considerably over the number of United States Steel preferred, but Pennsylvania stock is in $50, or half shares. The acute weakness of this stock, which sold down to 114 1-8, had much to do with the general weakness developed in the other railroad stocks. The argument was used with effect that the depression in the iron and coal trades would be bound to affect the traffic of the trunk lines unfavorably, and most of all Pennsylvania. Transfers of currency to the interior to-day again rose to half a million dollars, and call money again loaned in some abundance at 6 per cent. Sterling exchange, however, made another downward plunge to a point where foreign bankers estimated that it would be profitable to import British sovereigns. The market closed dull and barely steady.

The bond market was dull and heavy. Total sales, par value, were $2,345,000.

United States bonds were unchanged on the last call.

Total sale of stocks to-day was 813,600 shares.

COTTON MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—The cotton market opened weak at a decline of 8@14 points under lower cables, the outlook for tremendous receipts, good picking weather and further liquidation in connection with heavy selling by Wall Street. The lowest prices of the day, however, were reached on the call when December sold at 10.70, January at 10.75; March 10.86 and May 10.78. This represented a net loss since the high level of the previous morning of about 40 points and seemed to represent the bulls' idea of a reaction for manufacturing interest and prices were rallied. For a time the market ruled very nervous and rather irregular, with fluctuations comparatively narrow, prices being influenced mostly by such trade as buying and selling orders for the account predominated. Generally speaking, however, the undertone was firm, and in the afternoon room shorts turned to cover and the bull leaders supported the market vigorously. It was asserted that prominent Philadelphian spot interests were heavy buyers of the late winter and spring months as a hedge against contracts to deliver cotton to mills, and it was also reported that New England spinners were heavy buyers. The receipts for the day were heavy, reaching a total larger than ever before recorded for any one day, but this was claimed by the bulls to represent teh demand for actual cotton, and the heavy exports were pointed to as well as the heavy clearings of cotton bills, which were claimed to be the cause for the decline in sterling exchange, as a confirmation of this view, and consequently failed to weaken prices, which reached the highest point of the day in the last half hour. December sold at 10.95, February at 10.98, March at 11.02, May at 11.03 and July at 11.03. Just before the close there was a reaction of 8@5 points from these figures under realizing, but the market was finally firm at a net advance of 4@10 points. Sales were estimated at 700,000 bales.

Receipts of cotton at the ports to-day 102,198 bales against 89,082 last week and 69,046 last year. For the week 410,000 bales against 417,[illegible] last week and 348,583 last year. To-day's receipts at New Orleans were 21,519 bales against 21,902 last year, and at Houston 40,049 bales against 19,994 last year.

Cotton futures opened weak and closed firm:

NEW ORLEANS, LA., Nov. 10.—COTTON—When the spot cotton market opened to-day prices were very easy and quiet, but during the last three hours of trading a brisk demand developed, resulting in sales of 9,200 bales, including 6,100 to arrive. Quotations unchanged.

Under the influence of lower Liverpool cables futures opened 3@10 points lower. By some traders it was considered that the local market showed surprising strength, in not going lower under the tide of selling orders, which continued to flow into the ring. In the early hours of the market prices fluctuated between the opening level and the close of yesterday. The heavy port receipts for the day—102,193, almost a record breaker, was the weightiest bearish factor. Later in the session the bull element was again in evidence and prices were gradually advanced to the close, when the list showed net gains of 10@17 points.

CHICAGO, ILL., Nov. 10.—Weakness, led by December corn, was apparent in the entire list of nearby deliveries of grain and provisions today. Net losses for the day in December options were: Wheat, ⅝@1⅛c.; corn, ¾@1¼c. January provisions closed with a loss of 7½@22½c. Statistics and current crop gossip was of a character designed to weaken the faith of holders, particularly the owners of corn.

Receipts continue light, caused by the dry weather and lack of season for handling tobacco. We are having a light warm rain this morning, and if it continues long enough to make a season we may expect very much larger receipts in the next five weeks.

DRY GOODS MARKET.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Buying of dry goods has been restricted again by the bullish influence of the raw cotton market upon the minds of the manufacturers. But instead of frightening the buyer into larger purchases the independent attitude of the sellers seems to cause general conservatism and the belief that a change in sentiment will be seen through this is consistently combatted by manufacturers.

COTTON IRREGULAR, BUT GAINS ARE MADE

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Opening weak at an advance of 5@16 points under lower cables, heavy receipts and active selling for local account the cotton market this morning, losing still another few points or, the call, showed a loss since the high level of yesterday of about forty points on the more active positions. After the call, buying was heavy enough to absorb all offerings, with a result that prices were rallied to within 6 to 9 points of yesterday's finals. Trading was very active, and fluctuations, while not particularly broad, were nervous and irregular.

Shortly after midday the market became very firm on aggressive bull support and further buying by spot interests, which, with the covering of room shorts, soon had prices advancing. From 10.50, the low point on the opening call, December sold at 10.90, January from 10.75 to 10.98; March from 10.76 to 11.02, and May from 10.78 to 11.03. These prices were recorded in the last half hour, but just before the close realizing eased values off three to five points and the market was finally firm at a net gain of four to ten points.

Sales, according to estimate, 700,000 bales.
