and neither Murphy nor any other boss would have dared to oppose me."

Generally throughout the evening Mr. Hearst spoke substantially as follows:

"I was attacked last night by Mr. Croker, who claimed to represent Democracy, and Mr. Root, who claimed to represent Republicanism. I know nothing that has tended more clearly to show the truth of my statement that in this campaign corporation Democrats and corporation Republicans were united in support of the corporation lawyer at the head of the corporation ticket.

As to Secretary Root.

"Mr. Croker, whose ice trust Mayor I drove out of office, endorses McCarren as a noble example of corporation Democrat. Mr. Root, corporation attorney for the Metropolitan Traction Company in the Jake Sharp bribery cases, and for the whiskey trust, the tobacco trust, the steel trust, the sugar trust, the gas trust, the watch trust, and the insurance trust, endorses Mr. Hughes, corporation attorney for the lighting trust, the shipbuilding trust, the New York, Westchester and Boston franchise grab, and the sugar trust.

"Mr. Root, to-day a public official, who occupies a high place in the United States government, and who should represent the whole people of these United States regardless of party, has dragged his high position into a partisan campaign, and into a personal attack in a local situation in order to serve his corporation masters.

"Last year Mr. Ryan issued through Mayor McClellan postal cards bearing libelous and indecent attacks upon me, which the United States government stopped in mails. This year Mr. Ryan puts forth these same indecent and slanderous attacks through his corporation attorney, through a man who is still his faithful servitor, though in public office and partly paid by the people.

"It is natural that Mr. Root, who defended Boss Tweed, the most corrupt politician of his day, should join hands with Boss Croker, the most corrupt politician of the present day, in support of Mr. Hughes. It is natural that Mr. Root, who appeared for the Metropolitan Traction Company in the Jake Sharp cases, and who was himself accused of bribery by four men who testified under oath that he had given them money for their votes, should unite with Patrick McCarren, the professional briber of the Standard Oil Company, the gas trust and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit, to support Mr. Hughes and oppose me.

Root, Croker, McCarren.

"I have said I am proud of the enemies I have made and I am prouder of none than I am of Elihu Root, Boss Croker and Pat McCarren.

"You know this man Croker is fighting me because I fought his ice trust Mayor for betraying the people, and drove him out of office.

"Mr. Root objects to my opposing Senator Knox.

"I have no personal hostility for this man Knox, and I do not think I have ever seen him or met him, but I do know that I sent him documentary evidence that absolutely convicted the coal roads of criminal combination and of crushing out independent coal mine owners. He pocketed that evidence, and refused to act for two years, although his United States district attorney, Barnett, had reported to him that his evidence sustained all my charges against the coal trust and warranted their prosecution, and although he recommended to Mr. Knox that the government institute proceedings against these roads in the Eastern District of Pennsylvania. I was finally compelled to proceed outside of the Attorney-General's office, and I [illegible] my evidence before the Interstate Commerce Commission, and because of the [illegible] and [illegible] powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission, he [illegible] the railroad rate bill in Congress, which the Republican party takes the credit for. I positively assert that the Republican party stole the greater part of my bill, and that they would have had a better bill if they had stolen all of it. And that is my answer also to Mr. Root's criticism of my course in Congress.

"Finally, I say that the same recognized and unwritten law that makes the President of the United States the President of all the people and not of any faction or section should apply to the officers of his administration, and that when Elihu Root, Secretary of State of the United States, drags his high Federal office into a State election and into a personal and partisan attack, he degrades his office to his own level."

BRYAN'S LETTER TO BIRD S. COLER

Ask Any Friends He May Have in New York to Vote for Hearst.

NEW YORK, November 2.—William J. Bryan has written a letter to Bird S. Coler, borough president of Brooklyn, endorsing the candidacy of William R. Hearst for the governorship. Mr. Bryan's letter follows:

"My Dear Coler,—I am very anxious to see Hearst elected, and would have come to New York to help him if I thought an outside speaker would have been of assistance. From indications, however, he is going to win as he ought to. If I have any friends there I want them to vote for him. * * *

(Signed) "BRYAN."

The portion of the letter not given out was of a personal nature.

Mr. Coler said: "Mr. Bryan's letter should be enough for all Democrats in this city. As for Independents, I cannot imagine that they are going to take the advice of the [illegible] leaders of an old predatory political system. They will, I think, before voting, ask themselves [illegible] It is [illegible] was known as 'commercialism in politics' [illegible] to Mr. Hearst.

CATHOLICS PRAY FOR THEIR DEAD

Mt. Calvary Cemetery was yesterday morning the scene of solemn and impressive services, when the Feast of All-Souls was observed by the Catholic congregations with due and appropriate ceremonies. The day is regarded as one of the most important in the Catholic church year, for it is on this day that prayers are offered up for the souls of all those who died in the Catholic faith.

It is the custom annually for the bishop, priests and people to assemble in Mt. Calvary Cemetery and to say masses for the dead in all the Catholic churches of the city. In most of the churches it is customary to read a list of all the dead members of the parish, and to ask special prayers for them.

Immediately after the high requiem mass said yesterday in St. Peter's Cathedral at 9 o'clock by Very Rev. Father Bowe, a large number of the congregations of the city repaired to Mt. Calvary Cemetery to take part in the annual services for the dead.

The services in the cemetery began at 1 o'clock, with a procession of altar boys, about seventy-five in number, and most of the priests of the city, through the grounds. The services were conducted by Bishop Van De Vyver. They consisted of the chanting of the canticle Benedictus, Dominus Deus Israel, and the giving of the ritual prayers for the dead. The prayers were said at the foot of the cross, situated on a large mound in the centre of the grounds, where the stone memorial and the gathered people, with heads uncovered, set in a background of flower-strewn graves, formed a most impressive scene.

Father De Monde was to have delivered the sermon, but as he was prevented from being present by illness, Father Magri acted in his stead. Father Magri preached on the subject, "The Efficacy of Prayers for the Dead," in which he showed the grounds on which the faithful base their belief in an intermediate place for departed souls, and gave comfort to all those around him for the safety of their beloved dead.

There was a large crowd present, and many beautiful wreaths were left to crown the numerous graves.

There were various accounts of the shooting given to the officers until yesterday, when Perkinson was arrested. He was bailed by Commissioner Gardner in the sum of $1,000 for his appearance one week from to-day before Justice George W. Thompson.

Conway was attended by Dr. James, of [illegible], and his wound is not seriously [illegible].

GOULD AND PARTY ON FLYING VISIT

Spend Evening in Richmond and Will Leave To-Day for Hampton Roads.

SMALL LUCK AT FISHING

Howard Gould and a party of New York friends paid a flying visit to Richmond yesterday afternoon, arriving in the city at 5 o'clock, registering at the Jefferson Hotel. Mr. Gould was accompanied by Messrs. W. H. Hall, M. D. Chapman and Henry Blossom, all of New York. The party spent a quiet afternoon, and at night went to the Academy of Music, where they had a box and watched the performance of "The Isle of Spice."

Mr. Gould and his party left New York ten days ago, and, taking a cruise through Southern waters, arrived at length in Chesapeake Bay, where they have been fishing round the capes. Mr. Gould was asked the proverbial question, "What luck?" but though a good fisherman, he did not give the proverbial answer.

"Only moderate," he said, under the most provocative circumstances, in which a man is generally excused if he stray somewhat from the path of veracity. "Fish are rather scarce," he sighed, "but I hope for better luck when we go back."

The trip is being made in Mr. Gould's yacht "Niagara," and the party came up to Richmond in the ship's boat, "Niagara IV.," in which they will return to the bay this morning. Mr. Gould and his friends will spend about ten more days in the bay, going up to the higher portions, where they hope to find better fisherman's luck.

Mr. Blossom, besides being a prominent clubman, is a man of no small literary distinction. He is the author of "Checkers" and of "The Yankee Consul," a popular comic opera.

Mr. Gould said that he had not been in Richmond since his last visit fifteen years ago, and remarked that he noted many improvements that had been made in the city since he was here before. He thought the city was booming, and seemed much pleased with the result of his flying visit.

The party will return in the "Niagara IV." to Hampton Roads at 8 o'clock this morning.

JUDGE WADDILL BAILS FELSTEIN

Newport News Man Charged With Concealing Assets and Swearing Falsely.

Of far more than passing interest was the case of Max Felstein, of Newport News, before the United States District Court here yesterday, the question being upon the granting of bail to the prisoner by Judge Waddill. The case has already had a good deal of prominence in the press, and is unique in several respects.

It seems that Felstein was a merchant in Newport News, and some time ago he took steps looking to availing himself of the bankrupt law. Later on he was arrested in New York upon a warrant sworn out by the trustee in the voluntary bankruptcy proceedings, Commissioner Garrett, of Newport News, charging him with concealing certain assets from the trustee and with making false oath to the schedule of assets returned with his voluntary petition in bankruptcy. Forty thousand dollars' worth of the concealed property was discovered in New York upon the arrest of Felstein, and he was taken before Commissioner Shields, of that city.

He waived examination and was brought to Newport News and turned over to the Federal authorities there on October 25th. Some days ago the prisoner applied for bail, and it was refused on account of the insufficiency of the security offered.

Bail Is Granted.

His application was renewed yesterday, and Judge Waddill allowed Felstein bail in the sum of $5,000 for his appearance before the United States District Court at Norfolk on November 13th, to answer any indictment that may be found against him by the grand jury. He offered H. J. Wale, Max Levison and Marx Rosenroth, of Newport News, as sureties on the bond, and they were accepted.

The United States Statutes provide that upon conviction the prisoner is liable to punishment by confinement in the penitentiary two years for each offense.

Felstein will be vigorously prosecuted if true bills are found in the case, and it is stated that a Richmond attorney has been engaged to appear for certain commercial interests to assist the district attorney.

CASE DISMISSED.

Father-in-Law Fired First in Family Squabble.

Evidence adduced in the Police Court yesterday morning was conclusive that W. A. McBride did not shoot at his father-in-law, W. R. Adams, until after the latter had fired. It was also shown that McBride had not concealed his pistol, but had pulled the weapon from his coat pocket and fired only after he had been fired upon by Mr. Adams.

The case was dismissed after a hearing of more than an hour.

COUNCILMAN RICHARDSON, WHO SEEKS PLAN FOR IMPROVEMENT OF PUBLIC SCHOOL SYSTEM.

ERA OF INQUIRY IN CITY AFFAIRS

might be manufactured or compounded at much smaller cost.

IMPROVE SCHOOLS.

Investigation Into Entire System Now Being Proposed.

An inquiry into the efficiency of the public schools of the city of Richmond will be instituted by Councilman W. Fred Richardson, who will at the meeting of the Council on Monday night introduce the following ordinance:

Be it resolved by the Council of the city of Richmond, the Board of Aldermen concurring, That a special committee of five to consist of two members of the Board of Aldermen and three members of the Common Council, to be appointed by the presiding officers of the respective bodies, be, and they are hereby, appointed to inquire into the matter of the efficiency of the public school system of the city of Richmond as now conducted and managed, and further to inquire and ascertain what methods, if any, can be adopted for the better and more efficient management of said system, and to report fully thereon to either branch of the Council of the city of Richmond, accompanied with such recommendations as they may deem advisable in the premises. And said special committee are hereby expressly authorized and empowered, in making the investigation hereby directed, to send for persons and papers and examine witnesses under oath.

Mr. Richardson, when asked as to the proposed ordinance, was averse to discussing the matter in advance of its presentation, but explained that the purpose of the special joint committee proposed was to ascertain whether there is not need of a higher standard and more efficient methods of instruction in the public schools. Mr. Richardson believes there is, and, without intention to reflect upon the schools or any official or teacher, to ascertain whether improvement cannot be made.

"The smaller children are passing through the lower grades," said Mr. Richardson, "hurriedly and without receiving such instruction as to equip them to enter the high school, while the older pupils are passing through the high school without receiving such preparation as will properly prepare them for life.

"The schools are overcrowded to such an extent that the teachers cannot give that attention to the individual pupil that might be given if each teacher had fewer pupils, and that is necessary for their proper advancement."

Defects in System.

When Mr. Richardson was asked to specify the school or class in which there was overcrowding, he explained that he did not mean that there were more than could be comfortably seated, but merely more than could receive proper instruction and assistance from the teacher. He expressed the conviction that many of the pupils passed through the high school were not prepared to enter college without first taking a course at an academy or private preparatory school. He cited the cases of three children who had failed in mathematics, and stated that after personal investigation of all three he discovered that in each case the child's failure was due to lack of sufficient instruction and proper instruction on the part of the teacher.

Mr. Richardson is of opinion that the increase of the curriculum by the introduction of non-essentials had diminished the opportunity of the child to secure sufficient instruction in the fundamental elements of a good English education. He expressed the belief that the child's mind was confused by the multiplicity of studies and phases of school work until ill health resulted in many cases, and nervous breakdown in others, while a sufficient knowledge of the fundamentals was not secured.

As an evidence of the fact that many children were carried through the grades of the public schools more rapidly than they were equipped to go, he cited a case of a child who upon being sent to an excellent private school had been sent back several grades, because not prepared sufficiently.

Mr. Richardson stated that he had no purpose to criticize or reflect upon any teacher, principal or official, but merely to bring to the attention of the public what he regarded as defects in the local school system, and to endeavor to secure greater efficiency. In this he was assured of the co-operation of school officials.

ANOTHER INQUIRY.

Investigation of Affairs of Street Cleaning Department.

Another department which is to be made the subject of inquiry by a Council committee is that of Street Cleaning. A subcommittee of the old Committee on Health, now known as the Committee on Street Cleaning Department, has called a special meeting for next week, at which Superintendent Cohn will be asked to appear and be prepared to answer such inquiries as the committeemen may propound. The committee proposes to go thoroughly into the details of this work, the employment of men, the relations of the superintendent and his employes, and everything relating to the department or designed to promote its efficiency. Just what the subcommittee has in mind is not disclosed, but it is assured that the inquiry will be thorough and will be conducted on the highest plane.

WELL KNOWN MAN PASSES AWAY

Mr. Matthew F. Pleasants Dies After Several Years of Failing Health.

HAD MANY ASSOCIATIONS

Mr. Matthew Franklin Pleasants, an old and respected citizen of Richmond, died at noon yesterday at his residence, No. 11 East Franklin Street.

The death of Mr. Pleasants removes a man widely known and loved, and at one time prominent both in social and professional circles.

Mr. Pleasants married Miss Lydia Mosby, of Richmond, and carried her to his home in New York, in 1852. Later they moved to Washington, where, as pardon clerk, Mr. Pleasants rendered signal service to the Southern men seeking to re-establish themselves in business after the storm and stress of the war was over.

In 1870, when Judge Bond was appointed to the United States Circuit Court for the Eastern District of Virginia, he selected Mr. Pleasants as his clerk, and they returned to the early home of his wife.

The appointment was very popular, and for thirty-five years Mr. Pleasants served as clerk and became during those years the valued friend of all the distinguished members of the bench who held court here, numbering among his close personal friends Chief Justices Waite and Fuller, Judges Simonton, Hughes and many others.

It is now two years since his ill-health made it necessary for him to relinquish all active duties, and his death was not unexpected. He leaves two daughters, Mrs. Reginald Gilliam and Miss Virginia Pleasants, and four nieces, the daughters of his brother, the late J. Adair Pleasants, Miss Louisa Pleasants, Mrs. E. C. Minor, Mrs. B. L. Purcell and Mrs. W. W. Archer, besides a large number of nephews and nieces who do not live in Virginia, and three little grand-children, the children of his son, the late Mr. McLain Pleasants.

The funeral will take place from St. Paul's Church on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The pall-bearers will be as follows: General Charles J. Anderson and Messrs. George Mayo, John H. Montague, Jr., Thomas B. McAdams, Joseph P. Brady, Isaiah Fuller, L. D. Crenshaw and Isaac Winston.
