HIGH SCHOOL LADS WIN IN FAST GAME

Beat McGuire's by Score of 12 to 6 at Broad Street Park.

CROWD VERY ENTHUSIASTIC

Players Showed Intimate Knowledge With New Football Rules. Details of Game.

McGUIRE'S School suffered defeat at the hands of the High School yesterday afternoon in the Broad Street Park by a score of 12 to 6. The game was pretty played from start to finish, and was enjoyed enthusiastically by a large crowd of admirers of the teams. Almost the entire attendance of both schools was present, and the players were loudly applauded by the rooters.

On a miniature scale, the game was as good from a spectator's viewpoint as many played in the larger teams. The plays were got off with speed and accuracy, and the players showed a most intimate knowledge of the new game.

The most interesting point of the contest was the brave taken for the McGuire's team in the second half. All during the first part of the game all that McGuire's team could do was to hold the High School from running over them. They fought hard, but could not stop the heavier team.

Got Together.

In the second half, however, McGuire's, after allowing the High School to score another touchdown, got together and carried the ball by line plunges from their ten-yard line to the other twenty-five-yard line. The excitement at this point was intense.

The bleachers and grandstand became a mass of waving red and blue, and five hundred throats voiced their cheers of their choice to do the best. The sport lasted until the end of the game, and concluded in a touchdown. The whistle blew for the end of the half with the ball in the middle of the field.

For the High School Sim-lole, Miles and Parsons did the stellar work. The forward pass worked, by Elzelloi and Parsons, was a feature. Only three of a half a dozen times did this play fail to gain, and then there was a good excuse.

Simon, at left tackle, handled his man in good form, and figured in smashing the interference. A. Jack was always ready for a gain when it was called on.

Russell, by a run for sixty-five yards and a forward pass, gained a place in the affections of the crowd, and proved that he was a valuable man.

For McGuire's, Miller and Meeker figured in the limelight. In mission back punts Miller was a star. At no time did he fail to gain, and he generally carried the ball far into the tradition. In running the team he used the head, and showed up very well. Meeker, at right-half, carried the ball well, and nearly always made a gain.

The Line-Up.

The lineup was as follows:

McGUIRE'S	Position	High School.
Williams	left tackle	Simon
Hix	center	Kirkham
Owen	right guard	Moll
Simon	right tackle	Clarke
Meeker	right end	Parsons
Miller	quarterback	Parsons
Anderson	left halfback	Simpson
Meeker	right halfback	Miles, Capt.
Davidson	fullback	Augustine

RICHMONDERS WIN.

Beat Petersburg Team in Fast Skating Contest.

Before a crowd that taxed the capacity of the big skating rink at Idlewood last night, the Richmond relay team, composed of Messrs. GREAT RIDING ACTS IN COMING CIRCUS

Will Be One of Leading Features on Program of Barnum & Bailey's Show.

A circus without riding acts would be an anomaly. There is no feature of the old-time circus which seems so essential to the completeness of the modern arenic exhibition, or which has so persistently retained its popularity with the public. The dashing equestrian, turning somersaults on the back of a swiftly-moving horse, and the dainty equestrienne, posing and pirouetting her way into the hearts of the audience, both add immeasurably to the effectiveness of the mammoth three-ring circus of to-day, just as they did to the little one-ring circus of a quarter of a century ago.

The Barnum & Bailey Greatest Show on Earth, which exhibits in Richmond Saturday, November 17th, has been a pioneer in introducing novel, and even startling, riding acts to the American public, and this year the management announces an unusually large number of equestrian acts of a unique character. One of these is entitled "On the Way to the Races." In this striking act a clever company of French riders and acrobats, known as Les Rowlandes, perform a series of startling feats in, over and around a tally-ho coach, and on the backs of four rapidly-moving horses. Another novelty, introduced by the Ray Thompson Troupe, is said to utilize four-wheel roundabouts and two-wheel carts in a performance full of original ideas and equestrian and driving surprises.

The list of clever riders, as made known by the preliminary announcements of the show, is an exceptionally long one. Among the headliners are Fred Ledgett and Emile Juran, the Brennans, the Bloomsburys, Miss Marie Meers, Josie de Mott, the somersault equestrienne, Stella Sebastian, Erasmus von Stuttenheim, Miss [illegible] and Fred Derrick, William de Mott, W. F. Melrose and the Austin Brothers. These are all users of international reputation. A large company of clever menage riders is also announced. For the hippodrome there is a stable of blooded Kentucky racers, and a group of especially engaged professional riders and drivers.

It is evident that patrons of the Barnum & Bailey circus will have no dearth of entertainment, for the program is replete with acts that provide new sensations for those who enjoy the thrills incident to the modern, up-to-date circus. The "Two Twirls of Terror," in which two daring bicyclists turn somersaults on their wheels while shooting through [illegible], and the "Ride of Death," are the years big arenic sensations, and have created endless comment and discussion. The latest things in aerial acts and acrobatic feats, forms of performing elephants, a new spectacle, founded on the Russo-Japanese war, a revival of the Roman hippodrome on an elaborate scale, and a greatly augmented menagerie are among the incidental features announced for the big show.

Will Be in Bijou.

The memorial services of the Richmond Elks, known as the "Elkdge of Sorrow," on the first Sunday in December, will be held in the Bijou Theatre this year, at the invitation of the management.

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY

"EVERYMAN," BY GREET PLAYERS IS WONDERFUL

BEN GREET.

Morality Play Last Night Was Sensation of the Season in Theatrical Circles.

AUDIENCE SAT SPELLBOUND

Academy.

Matinee to-day—"Everyman."
To-night—"The Merchant of Venice.

Bijou.

Matinee and night—"Black Creek."

Reverently, and with the utmost intenseness, an audience that quite filled the Academy listened to the solemn words of Everyman last night, and watched his progress from gay gallant, smart in bright colors, to the holy pilgrim clothed in pure white, who, with "rood" in hand, marched pure-hearted to his grave.

Not a sound disturbed the solemn story as it was slowly unfolded, not a whisper destroyed the sacred repose of the intensely dramatic picture which gripped the minds and hearts and very souls of every thoughtful listener, as the tale of life, splendidly told by both word and action, passed from the joy of living to the happiness of death.

There were times, more than once, when the art of the players rose to such heights of merit that applause seemed imminent, but so impressed was the audience with the holy scene, so realistically portrayed, that it received the tribute of all approval, the silence of intense interest and absorbing attention.

The performance of "Everyman" last night was both smooth and perfect, and perhaps no drama that has been presented to a Richmond audience ever received a more marked or more deserved stamp of approval.

Sacred Atmosphere.

To appreciate the mediæval morality play, one must go further than to read its mere lines, for, strong as they are, they need the art and intelligence that Ben Greet's players give them on the stage. It may be said by those who desire theatrical situations that the play has no scenery, and that there are no scenic effects, but never was there a greater mistake made than in such an assertion. The very simplicity of the holy scene, with its nave, cloister yard, where monks move slowly to and fro, brings a sacred atmosphere to the mind as no wealth of scenery could.

Then, too, this moral drama has been called sacrilegious, and doubtless it would be so to ignorant and foolish hands, for a single unheard act or missaid word, might well spoil the story, but the performance last night had no touch of taint of this. It was instead wonderfully acted, with an intensity of reverence that could but teach a lesson to all who appreciated its message.

On entering the theatre, one finds the curtain already up, with the stage set to show the cloister yard of Salamanca Cathedral. Upon the scene two Dominican monks enter and quietly seat themselves on either side of the stage. From the cathedral the sounds of an organ are heard, played softly, and, after a time, a monk sings Arkadelt's "Ave Maria," lead at first and then, with all his voice.

As the solemn chant dies away, a messenger stalks down the play-house aisle, and, mounting the stage, announces the play and prays that silence and decorum be maintained. As he departs the voice of Adonai (the Deity), hidden from the eyes of man, is heard, intoning, crying out against the evil life of Everyman (the world).

Appearance of Death.

Death, hideously depicted as a skeleton with grotesque turban and carrying drum and trumpet, appears, and at the command of Adonai, seeks Everyman who enters, a gay gallant, clad in doublet and hose, with a gold chain about his neck, a dagger in his girdle and carrying a berthroned lute in his hand.

To Everyman Death gives the message that he must go upon that long journey, which has no return, and then leaves him, wretched and all afraid, wondering which of his many friends will prove their loyalty by accompanying him upon his grim travel.

Fellowship enters and welcomes him with fair words, only to leave hurriedly with a song upon his lips as soon as he heard Death's message. Cousin and Kinsfolk are called, but both turn coldly from him when they learn his plight, and Goodes, seated in his treasure-house, a miser, surrounded by his wealth, laughs Everyman's request to scorn and taunts him with his spendthrift past.

All forsake him.

In his despair Everyman beholds him of Good Deedes, sick and scarce able to speak. He would go with him, she says, were she able, but she cannot move for weakness.

Listening to her words of truth and sacrifice, Everyman repents him of his past life and prays to God for forgiveness. Good Deedes, strengthened by his newly received faith, arises from her couch and leads him to Knowledge and

MISS SIBYL THORNDYKE,
Who Played "Good Deedes" in "Everyman"

Confession, who give him a robe of sackcloth and place in his hands a scourge for penance for his sins.

To his aid then come Beauty, Strength, Five Wyttes and Discretion, who promise to sustain him on his last pilgrimage and to attend him unto the very end.

Everyman, chastened and full of faith, enters the cathedral, and receives extreme unction at the hands of the church.

The bell sounds for the "Sanctus," the monks kneel, the indistinct words of the mass are heard, the tinkling of the censer chains is clear and the odor of the myrtle incense is wafted across the house to the audience sitting in breathless silence.

Everyman resumes, clothed in white and supporting himself with a pilgrim's "rood." The end is drawing near, but as the march to the grave is commenced, Beauty, Strength, Five Wyttes and Discretion leave, to return and nearly paralyzed, forsake their friend, who supported by Knowledge and Good Deedes, sinks down into his grave. An Angelic choir as the soul departs, a red-robed Doctor talks, the Messenger speaks an epilogue and the morality play is done.

Wonderful Acting.

This, in a rude way, is the story of "Everyman," but no mere words can tell the wonderful way in which it was acted, the solemn religious tone of the production, nor the intense effect it produced upon the audience.

Mr. Greet said last night that Mr. Milton Rosmer, who played Everyman, is better in it now than any one who has ever played it, and he is known, this is no faint praise, for Miss Matthison once played Everyman, succeeding Miss Dorothea Baird, who first played it for Mr. Greet.

Mr. Rosmer made a powerful impression by his interpretation of the part. He was forcible, earnest and natural, and added to his art was his remarkable personal fitness for the character. Indeed he made one feel the very sufferings and torments that Everyman felt, and his very stagecraft seemed almost natural.

Miss Sibyl Thorndyke, as Good Dedes, was excellent, reading her lines delightfully, and adding to the very pleasant impression she made here last season in "As You Like It" and "Twelfth Night."

It is will be noticed with interest that Everyman is sometimes played by a man and sometimes by a woman, the character being one that suits either, and that the monks, the Confessor and Good Dedes wore the black and white of the Dominican order, to which the priests of Salamanca belong.

Too much praise cannot be bestowed upon Mr. Greet, who, although he did not take part in the production last night, is responsible for its perfection and artistic force.

"Everyman" will be played at matinee to-day and "The Merchant of Venice" to-night, when Mr. Greet will be seen as Shylock.

The advent of the Ben Greet players is distinct theatrical occasion, and it speaks well for Richmond that the company has received so warm and approving a reception.

A. P.

Next week the Academy will offer three attractions. On Wednesday night, Miss Helen Grantly will play "The Little Gray Lady"; on Friday night Mr. Dustin Farnum will present his popular attraction, "The Virginian," and on Saturday, matinee and night, Mr. Paul Gilmore will be seen in the college play "At Yale."

TO IMPROVE SCHOOLS.

Advisory Board of Female Colleges Holds Meeting.

A meeting was held yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. C. B. Bagwell, of the advisory committee, having charge of the work of improving the female schools and colleges of the State.

Steps were taken looking to arrangements for the general meeting, which will be held in the Senate chamber for the same purpose on November 20th. The list of speakers was made up, and plans completed for entertaining the visitors. Those present were Mrs. C. C. Buchanan, Miss Davis, Miss Morris, Mrs. T. C. Johnson, Mrs. T. S. Wheelwright, Mrs. C. G. Bosher and Miss Campbell.

Some of the prominent educators who will attend the conference here are Dr. Alderman, of the University, Dr. Benedict, of Sweet Briar, Mr. and Mrs. Cocke, of Hollins, Miss Snow, of Farmville, Mr. and Miss Tucker, of Charlottesville, Dr. W. W. Smith, of Lynchburg, Mr. A. R. Davis, of Petersburg, Dr. Tribble, of Bawlins Institute, and Miss Kate Hunt, of Mossadon.

MAN DEAD HERE ARMY SERGEANT

solved. It is supposed that he went there because he did not care to wake the people with whom he was staying at such a late hour.

The fictitious name under which he registered means nothing. The people who register at such cheap lodging-houses do not care to use their true names and almost invariably assume others taken for the occasion.

The sisters of the dead man were soon found and notified. They are Mrs. Harlow, of 704 West Marshall Street; Mrs. Spindle, of West City Street, and Mrs. Bowles, of Louisa county. They ordered that the body be taken to Riley's undertaking establishment and made ready for burial.

All the sisters denied the suicide theory, and said that Crenshaw had nothing for which to kill himself. He was in tolerably good circumstances, and had no reason for suicide, in the first place. His family relations were of the happiest, and financially he was well off.

Crenshaw arrived in Richmond Wednesday, and made himself known to the officer in charge of the recruiting station in this city. He put up at the Busy Bee lodging house that night, and left early the next morning on his hunt for deserters. He came back Thursday night, and again registered at 10 o'clock. After this he left the place, and the proprietor did not see him when he came in. From Coroner Taylor's statement he must have arrived about 1 o'clock.

Was Good Officer.

Crenshaw was forty-two years old and had been in the service a long time. He was a good officer, as is shown by his mission here. He wore glasses and appeared to be a mechanic in good circumstances, as was evidenced by Mr. Rupnett, the proprietor of the Busy Bee, last night. A small amount of money was found on his person when he was examined by the coroner.

A message was sent to Fore Meyer last night by his sisters, advising the authorities of the death of Crenshaw. It is probable that a detachment will be sent from that place to-day to escort the body to the last resting-place of soldiers who have done their duty well. The officers in charge of the recruiting station of this city were also notified, and will do all honor to the body of a man dead in the service.

TALK OF DR. MITCHELL.

Friends Suggest Him as Fine Man to Head V. P. I.

Some of the friends of Dr. S. C. Mitchell, of Richmond College, have suggested him as a most admirable man to succeed Dr. J. M. McBryde as president of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and they are anxious that his name be pressed for the place.

Dr. Mitchell is one of the most distinguished educators in this section, and those who know him well are certain of his ability and general fitness for this most responsible position.

At present Dr. Mitchell is deeply engrossed in his work as a member of the faculty of Richmond College, and so far as is known is not giving the matter any consideration. He is a member of the city School Board, and is among the foremost in nearly every educational move that is made in the city and State.

SHANGHAI CASES COME UP TO-DAY

Important Witnesses for Government in Men Who Were Victims.

TELL HORRIBLE STORIES

Interesting proceedings are expected in the alleged "shanghaiing" cases before Commissioner Joseph P. Brady, of the United States Court, this morning when Messrs. J. H. Holladay, C. H. Smith and Louis Pfeifer will be given a preliminary hearing. Not only will the local cases referred to attract widespread attention, but the general fight against "shanghaiing" all along the lines will be watched with interest by the government officials and the public in general.

Officers Wren and Bailey, of the Richmond police force, who have been doing some valuable detective work in the matter, were yesterday summoned by Marshal Morgan Treat to appear in Norfolk Monday as witnesses before the United States grand jury in cases already sent on.

Commissioner Brady was visited yesterday by parties whom the government officials think will prove valuable witnesses, and the hearing to-day promises to reveal some horrible stories of suffering and privation on the part of men alleged to have been "shanghaied."

Had Rough Experiences.

Charlie Wells and Junius Strickland, of Richmond, returned here yesterday, having made their escape from an oyster boat called "The Earl of Cape Charles," off Tangier Island.

They are aged, respectively, twenty and seventeen. Wells lives at No. 325 Williamsburg Avenue, and Strickland, No. 200 Q Street.

One of them visited Mr. Brady with his mother and told a heartrending story of the treatment he and others had received on board the boat. He claims that he was engaged by the labor agency at No. 20 North Fifteenth Street, and was told he was going to some railroad to work. He says he was put on a two-masted schooner and suffered tortures before making his escape. His mother declares he was a most pitiful object to look upon after his return. The young man declares that the men are not only severely treated by the captains in the matter of being made to do the roughest kind of manual labor during long hours, but that they are given nothing to eat save molasses and beans.

These two men left here on October 4th. They spent unwillingly twenty-seven days on the sloop, and after undergoing the most barbarous treatment, made their escape at the port of Chrisfield, Md.

Another Star.

They joined Robinson's Circus there and finally landed in New York. When they got together enough money to bring them home they came, and will likely prove the star witnesses in the proceedings before Commissioner Brady to-day.

After giving a graphic description of his trip to Tangier, and the first portion of his stay on the boat, which is filled with allegations of brutality and privation, Strickland says:

"When the mate minded so to do, he would beat us fearfully. Oyster shells, broomsticks, anything that came to hand. On formal occasions he used a knotted rope, which was rough and tarred. I saw the mate beat a boy named Powell Hutcheson, who came to Richmond with Pawnee Bill's show. He wanted a change and went with the dredgers. The boy was nearly killed by the flogging.

"I never saw the land but once. That was when we went to Chrisfield, October 30th, to sell the oysters. Evans, the captain, thought we would not attempt to escape, and let us take some oysters ashore. Free again, we decided never to go back. In vain the captain begged and entreated, offered us the wages he had withheld, promising to pay it to us if we helped him to unload. We had had enough of his cruelty and wanted some fresh air.

Glad to Get Back.

An important witness will be a young man named Isaacs, who escaped from the clutches of the alleged tyrants, and who Sergeant Bailey has had for six days for this purpose.

It is sai dthat Isaacs will testify that a weak-minded young man named Bob Hutcheson, of No. 9 Water Street, Pittsburg, is now being held against his will, and that he is undergoing all kinds of cruel treatment. If this can be established, all efforts will be made to get the man released and the captain of the boat captured and punished.

It is not known that the accused to be tried to-day will have counsel, though it is likely that they will.

The government will certainly be represented, and it is likely that either Judge Lewis or his assistant, Mr. Talley, will appear.

FRANKLIN STONE FLEES WITH DIV

CINCINNATI, O., November 9.—Franklin Stone, formerly of Philadelphia, and now living Paris as his home, who is wanted by the government on an indictment charging misuse of the mails in the Storey cotton transaction, involving the loss of several millions of dollars, was in Cincinnati to-day, but disappeared before dark.

Last year the Storey Cotton Company's failure was announced with liabilities of about $7,000,000. Indictments were returned against Stone and F. Ewart Storey, president of the company. Both had disappeared, however, as also had Mrs. Sophie Lang, the company's stenographer.

Stone was finally located in the city yesterday and subjected to an interview to-day. He said Paris was now his home, and that he had several big deals on hand. Asked if he was afraid of arrest, he said he was not wanted now by the Federal officers, if ever he was wanted by them.

BOWLING TOURNAMENT ATTRACTS BIG CROWD

The fourth weekly tournament for the bowling championship of the city was rolled last night in Williams's alleys, with a large audience present. The contest of the leaders in the scores was watched with the greatest interest and enthusiasm, and the players were liberally applauded whenever they made a strike or a spare.

Spilling retained his lead gained last Friday night, and Williams crept up one place in the running by hard bowling when the score looked as if it would be a tie between him and Meyers. The close scores of the contestants made the tournament doubly interesting, and kept the audience in a stage of excitement all during the games.

The newspaper teams kept their places held at the last meet, which had the News Leader team at the top of the list. The Journal team ran a close second, with The Times-Dispatch third. The scores, however, were made a slight bit closer than before at the end of the tournament.

The scores of the men behind at the last meet showed little change, and their places on the score sheet were about the same with a few changes at the end of the games. In the lower end of the sheet few remarkable plays were made, and the interest centred on the leaders. The games lasted until half-past ten o'clock.

BANK CLERKS MEET.

Interesting Talks by Gov. Montague and Mr. George Bryan.

The Richmond branch of the American Institute of Bank Clerks held a largely attended meeting in Fraternity Hall last night, and interesting addresses were made by former Governor A. J. Montague and Mr. George Bryan.

President G. Peter Jones occupied the chair and presented the speakers.

Governor Montague entertained his hearers with a graphic description of his trip to Rio, and touched to some extent on the work of the Pan-American conference, of which he was a member.

Mr. Bryan delivered the first of a series of lectures on the banking laws of Virginia.
