VIRGINIANS FALL BEFORE TIGERS

V. P. I. Line Gives In Like Paper Before Fierce Princeton Onslaught.

Princeton, N. J., October 12.—Princeton outplayed Virginia Polytechnic Institute here this afternoon, and had little difficulty in piling up a 21 to 0 score on the only Southern eleven on its schedule. Princeton was on the attack almost through the entire contest, and the weakness on the Virginian defense, coupled with the individual brilliancy of the two sets of backfield men which the Tigers used, tells the story. The Virginians line up in the paper before the fierce onslaught of the Orange and Black men.

Princeton resorted entirely to straight football, but presented a variety of plays. Line-up:

PLACEMENT KICK MADE ON HARVARD

First Points of Year Scored on Crimson Team by Williams Eleven.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Cambridge, October 12.—Although Harvard won its annual game with Williams with comparative ease, the Berkshire boys scored the first points of the year against the Crimson, as the result of a goal from placement, kicked from the thirty-yard line by Captain Mitchell. The final score was 38 to 3, and Harvard had all its points when Williams turned its forward passing game loose early in the third period. Harvard had its substitute backfield in the game, and these men were bewildered completely by the daring passes used by their opponents. Four forward passes were tossed off in succession, three advancing the ball from Williams' twenty-one-yard line to Harvard's seventeen-yard line, a distance of sixty-two yards. The passes were all beautiful, being executed by Wallace and Lewis, and being received by Davis, Garfield and Dunlap. The longest pass was twenty-one yards, and the shortest twelve yards. Williams started the game, and the Harvard men were penalized for offside, which upset Williams' plan. The Williams kicking started off again after the kick-off, but after it had made five yards, a forward passing game, tossed from Davis to Harvard, gave the regular backfield men the ball. Williams passed about after world's record.

Washington and Lee Loses Well-Played Game to Georgetown, 20 to 0.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Washington, D. C., October 12.—In a well-played game, the Georgetown football team, defeating the strong Washington and Lee team by the score of 20 to 0. The Virginia eleven out-played the Blue and Gray in the first period and threatened to score a touchdown before Georgetown got started. Washington and Lee gave the ball to Georgetown's [illegible]-yard line on a fumble by Costello. This would have scored but for a tackle behind the line made by Van Brocklin, who downed the runner for a loss. Jim Dunn starred for the Blue and Gray team, his line plunging netting his team substantial gains.

Georgetown started off in Washington and Lee, and for the first few minutes the Virginia boys played them off their feet, forcing the ball to their opponents' [illegible]-yard line. After that Georgetown got into its regular form and scored two touchdowns. The first was made by Murray after Georgetown had brought up way from the centre of the field. It made its second on a forward pass from Gallagher to Darby, who ran twenty yards for a touchdown.

Harry White, who has been out of the game with a [illegible] shoulder, got into the game for the first time. He played only through one period, but his work was of best Blue and Gray. He ripped the Hoya line to pieces and was next over for one of the touchdowns.

Van Brocklin, the plucky little quarterback, had a bad [illegible] in the game. The injury is not serious, however, and he will be back in the game within a few days.

The visitors made but a chance of scoring in by using the same [illegible] that Georgetown used with [illegible] success. Only once or two of Gallagher's passes were [illegible].
