

What is Democracy?

DEMOCRACY represents the great principles of progress. It is onward and upward in its movement. It has a heart for action and motives for a world. It constitutes the principle of diffusion and is to humanity what the centrifugal force is to a revolving orb of a universe. What motion is to them, Democracy is to principle. It is the soul of action. It conforms to the providence of God. It has confidence in man and an abiding reliance in his high destiny. It seeks the largest liberty, the greatest good and the surest happiness. It aims to build up the great interests of the many, to the least detriment of the few. It remembers the past, without neglecting the present. It establishes the present, without fearing to provide for the future. It cares for the weak, while it permits no injustice to the strong. It conquers the oppressor, and prepares the subject of tyranny for freedom. It melts the bigot's heart to meekness, and reconciles his mind to knowledge. It dispels the cloud of ignorance and superstition, and prepares the people for instruction and self-respect. It adds wisdom to legislation, and improved judgment to government. It favors enterprise that yields to many, and an industry that is permanent. It is the pioneer of humanity—the conservator of nations. IT FAILS ONLY WHEN IT CEASES TO BE TRUE TO ITSELF.

THE BEDFORD GAZETTE.

Bedford, APRIL 24, 1857.

G. W. Bowman, Editor and Proprietor.

The Union of lakes—the Union of lands,
The Union of States none can sever;
The Union of hearts, and the Union of hands,
And the flag of our Union forever!

Democratic State Admissions.

GOVERNOR:

Gen. Wm. F. Packer.
CANAL COMMISSIONER:
Hon. Nimrod Strickland.

DEMOCRATIC COUNTY MEETING.

The Democracy of Bedford County will meet in Mass Meeting at the Court House in Bedford, on Monday evening of the approaching Court, for the purpose of fully organizing for the campaign now opened. It is expected that all who can make it convenient to attend will do so. Several speeches will be delivered on the occasion.

ATTENTION, BUCHANAN CLUB!

The Buchanan Club of Bedford Borough will meet on next Saturday evening at early candle-light. Punctual attendance is requested. All disposed to join are respectfully invited to attend.
JOHN MANN, President.
John P. Reed, Secretary.

A Few plain Words to Democrats.

Candidates for the various important offices to be voted for, next fall, in Bedford county, are multiplying, as will be seen by referring to the appropriate head, which is all right and proper. It is the privilege of every honest democrat that chooses to offer himself to the consideration of the party; and, if competent, one man's claim is just as strong as another. Offices were not made for the mere support of any body, but were intended to accommodate the public interests; and, when a majority of the party select their candidates, for any office, the man who finds fault with their decision, proves himself unworthy to have even been named in connection with a public trust. The candidates already in the field are all honorable, high-minded, working Democrats, and those among them who fail in their aspirations, will, we are quite sure, cast no reflections upon the nominating power. Some will be disappointed—this cannot be avoided—and one candidate has just as good a right to be left off "the ticket" as another—and as a good right to be put on! Frequently, the most deserving man are not to be found in the list of office-seekers, but this is not the fault of those who are. The best way for a man to fail, in announcing himself as a candidate, is, that he stands no chance out of 100 to fail in getting the nomination. This will at once quiet all unhappy forebodings, and enable him to laugh out of the right side of his mouth should he prove unsuccessful. Should he win, the effect will be far more palatable than if he had "always thought he would." But what gross folly for the democratic party—a party of principles and progress—to allow disappointed office-hunters to disturb the unity of their action to appease a grief for which there is no earthly excuse. Occasionally men threaten to "kick" if they are not all nominated, at the same time, for the same office! Well, let such kick till they batter their shins into a jelly, but let men of cool judgment ridicule the folly instead of participating in it. Kick because he can't get office! With as much reason he might kick because nature denied him the faculty of "common sense."

CALL FOR A N. S. STATE CONVENTION.

The Daily News publishes a call for an "American State Convention" to meet in Lancaster next month, to nominate a full State Ticket to be supported by that party at the next election. A great many of the names are published with the call, and the News says it is signed by many thousands to various parts of the Commonwealth. The name of Wilnot "links in the nostrils" of these men as it did when he first proclaimed himself the advocate of "negroes and free-trade." Now is the time for all good citizens to rally to the standard of Packer & Company! COME.

The Confession of Ward.

The Confession of Ward, for the murder of his wife, which we publish to-day, furnishes the most revolting specimen of wickedness and brutality ever put upon record.

Condemned out of his Own Mouth.

The Reading Journal, whose editor naturally belongs to the Woolly Heads, and who, while hypocritically professing last year to support Mr. Fillmore, was in constant private communication with the Fremont leaders, and finally, for reasons known to himself, and pretty well understood by those with whom he professed to act but betrayed, pursued a course, like some other's we know of, much better calculated to serve the purposes of the Republican leaders, than if he had avowedly acted as a Republican—this editor, not content now with a Jim Crow jump, from being a bitter and uncompromising denunciator of Judge Wilnot to a eulogizer and supporter of him, travels out of his way to make the following fling at us and the Americans of this City, whose principles are not as purchasable a commodity as his own may be:

Extraordinary Compliments!

While the Chambersburg Whig demolishes, with a single stroke of the pen, the Ministry composing the Baltimore Conference, because of their resolutions condemnatory of the incendiary Abolition Agitators, the Harrisburg Telegraph actually congratulates Mr. Buchanan upon one of his official acts. If we were called upon to decide as to the merit of these compliments, we would say, decidedly, that we would prefer that uttered by the Whig, as being the most harmless.

The Pardoning Power.

For many years opposition to the exercise of the pardoning power was the principal hobby of our opponents. Whenever a Democratic Executive chanced to pardon a convict, no matter from what cause, he was denounced in the most scurrilous terms, by the united opposition press of Pennsylvania, and by every bob-tail politician knee high to a duck. He was charged with treating Courts and Juries with contempt—and they even went so far as to denigrate "these institutions—a humbug—a farce—a mere creature at the mercy of a Governor!—At the time they were kicking up this fuss, we assured the people that the whole thing was trash, meaning nothing—and that, were the Executive of their party, they would approve his course were he to open all the Prisons and Penitentiaries in the State, and turn loose upon the community, in a single day, all the murderers, thieves, and other vagabonds there confined—and the proof to sustain this declaration has already been made so clear and manifest as to leave no doubt in the mind of any body.

If any man ever abused the pardoning power, the present Know Nothing Chief Magistrate has. He has liberated the most abandoned criminals, on the slightest pretext; and, in order to screen certain notorious and infamous convicts, he has given the lie direct to a law of his own making, in which he officially declared, with trumpets and flourishes, that he would grant no pardon unless notice of the application was published in one or more of the papers of the county in which the convict was sentenced. The pardon of Keys, for attempting to commit a rape on a child, is a case in point, the facts of which were set forth in an article we published last week from the Hollidaysburg Standard—and the act is more severely denounced by an article which we copy to-day from the Bedford County Whig which files at its mast head David Wilnot for Governor, and to which we invite special attention.

The Whig, however, is the only paper in Pennsylvania, opposed to the democratic party, that has ventured to make any declaration in condemnation of this obnoxious pardon. Here, in Bedford, where our opponents howled like wolves in search of blood, at every pardon granted by a democratic Governor, they look upon this enormous stretch of power as a great virtue, and they have not uttered a word either against the "Pardoning Power" or the "Veto King" since the induction of Mr. Pollock into office. When these facts are compared with their horrible and doleful cries touching the destruction of the U. S. Bank (a monster they are now ashamed even to speak of,) and the repeal of the Tariff of 1842, (which they have utterly and forever abandoned by taking as their candidate for Governor "Free Trade Davy" a man they avowed and declared would FOREVER stick in their nostrils,) all sober-minded men must see that to remain an opponent of the Democratic party they must make up their minds to be moulded by their leaders as clay is moulded in the hands of the potter. From Bankmen, Tariff-men, Anti-Veto and Anti-Pardoning-men, Antimason-men, and Know Nothing men, they have all of a sudden been transformed into advocates of the Black-man, and this is the only plank in their platform upon which they now have a hope! Even the "ten cent" slander has buried with their other humbugs and abominations. Such is the miserable caricature for a party now designated by the title of "American Republican." What a Buzzard Feast!

The Reverend Keys and Kallouch, who are so faithfully dignified in the Gazette of today, are models of the "Three Thousand" who understand to control the action of Congress and abolish the tariff! Whilst Mormonism is revolting to all the dictators of common decency—a blot upon the fair fabric of our lovely country—nothing has occurred there of a more degrading character than what has been presented to us in the conduct of the two Divines above named—but so much in consequence of their individual enormities, as in the fact that the Republican elite of New England, LADIES and gentlemen, rally to the defence of a Minister who admitted enough during his trial to forever disgrace him in the eyes of a Christian people—and in the additional fact that the "American and Republican" press, with a single exception, sanction the act of their Executive in liberating from prison another wolf in sheep's clothing convicted of an act which even a Mormon would have turned from with disgust.

We congratulate the citizens of Schellsburg upon having so worthily a Minister sent to preach for them, by the Baltimore Conference, as Rev. H. Wilson, a man who never fails to make warm friends wherever he goes. Besides being a faithful preacher of the Word, he is a social, pleasant gentleman, and we have no doubt he will prove highly acceptable not only to the Church, to which he belongs, but to the people of all denominations. We hope his labors will be attended with the best of results.

Major Raymond, of the Hollidaysburg Whig, "although not a member of the Methodist Church," nor of any other, we believe, but rather of the "slagger-brother-saloon," "apostate, in the name of Cause-traveler," against the anti-abolition resolutions of the Baltimore Conference, and wants to know "what the Church will gain by such resolutions?"—to which we reply that they will gain the love, respect, and admiration of all Christians, except such as attach their faith to heresies of the Keys and Kallouch stripe.

THE BILLYNA OF BLACK REPUBLICANISM.

The Forces of Abolitionism in the Northern States have been driven to desperation by the decision of the Supreme Court in the Dred Scott case. The issues on the whole Slavery question have been narrowed down to a very small compass. Either the constitution, as interpreted by those whose duty it is to interpret it, must be destroyed, or the whole frame-work of Black Republicanism must fall to the ground. There is no middle course to be pursued on this question, and each man must decide plainly and unequivocally whether he is for or against the Constitution of his country. All the propositions, and the whole platform of Black Republicanism, have been swept away by the highest judicial authority of the land, and it has now nothing left to stand upon except the most ardent demagoguism. Attacks upon this decision can only mean one of two things—mere "sound and fury, signifying nothing," or organized rebellion against the decrees of one of the most important branches of the government, and a derangement and overthrow of our whole political system.

THE BILLYNA OF BLACK REPUBLICANISM.

As a part of the scheme by which this latter result is to be accomplished, the Black Republican leaders, conscious that the good sense of the white people will not long sustain them in such a crusade, are determined, wherever they have the power, to extend the right of suffrage to the negroes, and to rally around their standard legions of ebony voters. In New York, their Legislature has been busy in furthering this project as far as possible, and the Black Republicans desire that not only those negroes who possess a certain amount of property should vote, as at present, but that the whole body of

THE BRITISH TRIUMPHANT.

The administration of James K. Polk is showing itself in its true color. Treachery has done its work, and the Tariff of 1842 is deemed, at least so far as the House of Representatives is concerned, the British Free Trade Bill, framed by Sir Robert Walker, and reported by J. H. Kay, passed the lower House of Congress on Friday last, by the decisive vote of 111 to 93. Of these 111 British Free Traders who voted to break down the present Tariff, one hundred and thirteen were Loco Focos, and but a solitary Whig—Mr. Hilliard, of Alabama. Among those who voted for the bill, was Mr. WILNOT of Pennsylvania, a Loco Foco, Free Trade, Rougead, from the Bradford District. Of the 93 who stood up for the Tariff as it is, there were ninety-one Whigs, six Natives, and but eighteen Loco Focos, all told, including those from Pennsylvania, who were instructed to vote as they did.

THE BILLYNA OF BLACK REPUBLICANISM.

The above vote speaks more eloquently to the people of Pennsylvania, and exhibits clearly which of the two great parties is in favor of protecting American Industry, and which goes for advancing British Interests. There is good reason to believe that many were BRIBED by the promise of Executive patronage, and not a few by BRITISH GOLD, which we doubt not was freely offered by the agents of the British Manufacturers, who have been hanging round the Capitol all Winter.

Our Pennsylvania—how shamefully have her dearest interests been sacrificed! Were a blighting miasma to fall upon every grain field in the Commonwealth, and utterly destroy every vestige of the abundant harvest that is now being gathered, it would not be so great a calamity as the passage of this Free Trade Bill. The principle of protection, which was and upon its maintenance are based all her hopes of prosperity.

THE BILLYNA OF BLACK REPUBLICANISM.

This TRAITOR to the interests of Pennsylvania, who voted for the British Tariff Bill of Mr. McKay, represents the Loco Foco counties of Tioga, Bradford and Susquehanna. His name should be held up to the scorn and contempt of every freeman in the State. The man who betrays his constituents by supporting a measure so disastrous to their dearest interests, IS UNFIT TO BE THE REPRESENTATIVE OF A FREE PEOPLE.

Such were the opinions of Jakey Knabb about David Wilnot in 1846. Though we have no recollection of his saying quite such hard things of Davy as Jakey did, we were equally as decided in condemnation of the treachery to Pennsylvania interests of which Mr. Wilnot was guilty, and the only difference between Jakey, who now abuses us for not supporting Wilnot, and ourselves seems to be this, that we are governed by principle, and cannot now call while that which we denounce then as black, white, but for the sake of success, is willing not only to throw principles to the dogs, but to show by his conduct that either he was a great liar then, or is a most unprincipled demagogue now.

REV. MR. KALLOUCH.

We remarked yesterday that the society worshipping in Tremont Temple had turned Mr. Kallouch out of the church, brought against him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that he preached in the Temple on Sunday morning, and that about commencing his sermon he was interrupted by a man who flung a stone at him, and that he would probably resign his ministrations in the sacred edifice. Our expectations are already realized. The Boston papers inform us that